DR. WYNNE, New York's commissioner, says that, with parents co-operating, diphtheria could be wiped out.

Cardinal Hayes, archbishop of New York, in a letter to clergy and laity, urges parents "to adopt scientific means to prevent diphtheria."

The cardinal has arranged "through our parochial schools to put the means at the disposal of those unable to patronize their family physician."

Public schools should follow the example set by Cardinal Hayes in parochial schools.

The Schick test, followed, when needed, by "toxin-anti-toxin" treatment, is safe.

Fortunately in this enlightened age there will be no repetition of ancient prejudices against the use of quinine.

Because quinine was discovered by a Catholic and named for a Catholic, Protestants in Great Britain refused to have anything to do with the only known specific for malaria.

Fathers and mothers are interested in Edwin J. Melhuish, murderer and suicide. He drove his daughter home from a Connecticut high school, the daughter's 17-year-old friend going with them.

Dropping his daughter at her house, the father drove on and, a little later, after a struggle with the girl, he murdered her and killed himself with revolver and poison, hidden in a book, hollowed out to conceal them. This indication of careful preparation for murder should interest girls who call their mothers "old fashioned, not up to the times."

Wise Mrs. Culp, dean of girls in a Jacksonville (Fla.) high school, told young ladies with "sun-back" dresses to go home and put on decent clothing.

The sun-back dresses enable the lovely sunshine to do its work without interruption the full length of the spine, from the cerebellum almost to the coccyx.

One young lady says: "My mamma approves and, anyway, I don't think it's any of the teacher's business what I wear."

It is part of the teacher's business what the young ladies DO NOT WEAR.

Schoolgirls should be either dressed or undressed; half measures are poor measures.

"Bandits kill merchant" is the headline of a short news story. Two youths entered the store of Hyman Friedman, asking for necktles. Friedman didn't "stick 'em up" fast enough and the young men killed him.

Other merchants, who may be killed today or tomorrow, will be interested in the statement of police officials that the secret drug trade is responsible for at least 80 per cent of modern youthful crime. It is too late for Mr. Friedman to be interested.

Grover Whalen, New York's police commissioner, tells the Rotary Club, "Prohibition is the worst breeder of crime."

He says that speakeasies and "hostesses"—young ladies that entertain and help to drink—are responsible for the increase in crimes of violence.

Grover Whalen says there are 32,000 SPEAKEASIES IN NEW YORK CITY. There were about 3000 saloons before prohibition.

Such is progress.

Trading in Wall Street yesterday was the smallest in several weeks, the 'call money down to 6 per cent, actually below the usury rate, according to the laws of New York.

But that won't last.

The Federal Reserve was in session, and speculators felt as a little boy feels when mamma is talking to the doctor in the next room. He wonders whether he will get castor oil to cure him or a penny for being a good boy.

Speculators were expecting castor oil.

Vice-President Curtis, told that his sister must go into official dinners AFTER the wives of foreign ambassadors and ministers, feels, quite naturally, that his sister is as important as the the wives of foreign representatives.

The people will agree that she is as important as the wife of anybody. The interesting thing is that in a republic there should be any quarrel about "precedence." If there is to be any precedence, it should give place to the oldest woman at the party. That would be democratic, and it would avoid quarrels. Many ladies would be willing to go in last.

SENTENCES 'COMMON THIEF'

Rudolph Renaud, 21, alias James Brady and described by police as Lowell's "gentleman burglar," was sentenced to from 10 to 20 years in state prison, after pleading guilty to burglary indictment charges today in Middlesex Superior Court.

Sentence was passed by Judge Fosdick, following assertion by Probation Officer Ramsey that the youth's father was responsible for the son's downfall, in that he had been a bad influence.

Young Renaud was characterized by the court as a "common and notorious thief."

5000 See 39 Ordained by Cardinal

Before 5000 persons 39 men, the largest graduating class in the history of St. John's Seminary, Brighton, were ordained to the priesthood today at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross.

Following the ceremonies, at which Cardinal O'Connell presided, the newly ordained priests adjourned to the Cathedral high school and bestowed blessings on the crowd which stormed the doors to receive them.

Prominent among the new clergymen were Fr. Robert H. Lord, former Harvard professor; the Woburn brothers, Fr. Joseph W. and Daniel L. Leahy, Fr. Anthony J. Flaherty and Fr. Otis F. Kelley, former Winthrop physician.

HUNDREDS IN FLOOD TRAP

Detroit, April 5 (AP)—Hundreds of families today were marooned in their homes by flood waters from Connors creek on Detroit's east side, caused by a torrential rain shortly after midnight.

Water to a depth of five feet swept over streets and many families were forced to the second floor of their homes for safety.

All available police were sent out in boats to remove men, women and children to dry ground.

An area about a mile square was flooded and automobiles parked on streets were swept away.

So quickly did the waters rise that many families were unaware of the flood until it was too late to make their way to safety.

1st Ball Pass for Hoover

Washington, April 5 (AP)—John A. Heydler, president of the National League, presented President Hoover today with a pass for all games in the league. The card bore the serial No. 1 and was enclosed in a case of elephant hide.

Although it is customary to give No. 1 to the President, Woodrow Wilson always asked for No. 13.

BAY STATE WET DRIVE IS NEXT

By FRASER EDWARDS

Washington, April 5—Elated over the smashing dry victory in Wisconsin, [illegible] wets have opened a national drive to repeal state prohibition enforcement laws.

Massachusetts has been marked as the next Commonwealth in which a fight will be waged to wipe the so-called "Baby Volstead" Act off of the State statute books.

In announcing this campaign, Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, expressed complete confidence in the outcome of the battle in the old Bay State.

The Massachusetts State-wide referendum is scheduled to be held next year. It is being promoted by the Constitutional Liberty League of Massachusetts, a branch of the National Anti-Prohibition Association.

As evidence of the growing re-

Rum, Cream Do Not Mix

Liquor and ice cream don't mix —and this law of the internals was discovered by William C. Gleason, 22, of aHrvard st., Cambridge, a law school student, he testified today in East Cambridge court.

Nevertheless, Gleason was fined $100 for operating of an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The fine was suspended until September.

Gleason told Patrolman Jeremiah Mahoney of Cambridge that he had had two drinks at a fraternity party and had eaten ice cream which made him sick. His car struck a taxicab.

Girl Accuses Dentist

Dr. John E. Kehoe, South Boston dentist, was arrested today, charged with drunkenness, with drunken driving and with assault upon Miss Anne Crovie of Leverett st., West End.

The warrants charging Dr. Kehoe were sworn out after Miss Crovie had called police officers to her assistance on Huntington ave., where she said the young dentist had attempted to force her into his automobile.

According to the girl's story, Dr Kehoe drove along beside her as she walked from her place of employment toward her home on Leverett st., West End.

CLEAR NICKY IN THEFT

New York, April 5 (AP)—Thomas Kearns of Raynham, Mass., owner of a hotel in Taunton, Mass., failed today to identify Nicky Arnstein as one of the three men who stole $32,000 from him.

He likewise failed to identify Harry Fields, arrested with Arnstein, but did identify Stewart Donnelly, self-styled "promoter," arrested with the other two.

Despite the failure at identification, Nicky and Fields were held without bail as suspected fugitives from justice.

DOCTORS CARE FOR BABIES

The three babies seized in the alleged illegal "baby boarding house," conducted by Mrs. Winifred Conley in Gaylord st., Dorchester, were under care of physicians today at the State hospital in Canton.

Meanwhile Mrs. Conley is under summons to appear Monday in Dorchester court and answer to charges of operating an unlicensed boarding house for infants and boarding infants under two years old without notifying State welfare department authorities.

Two of the infants were in egg crates, and the third was in a market basket. All showed signs of neglect, it is charged.

HARVARD MEN SEE CORPSE

The body of an unidentified woman was discovered in Charles river today, when Arthur Kimball, student at Harvard school of business administration, drove the prow of a light racing shell into it.

Whether or not the woman, about 40, was the victim of foul play, suicide or accidental drowning, was not determined, pending an autopsy.

The body was partly submerged, near the Weld boathouse on the Cambridge side of the river.

Kimball rowed ashore to notify the police, but in the meantime Marian Phillips, a student in the same school, who had witnessed the incident from the Lars Anderson bridge, had telephoned to Brattle sq. station.

The Metropolitan police at the Brain station were notified and sent a launch, in which the body was taken ashore.

It was described as being that of a woman 5 feet 6 inches tall, 150 pounds in weight, with brown hair, wearing a light figured dress, blue felt hat, blue coat with fur-trimmed collar and cuffs, and black gloves.

Police said the body had been in the water only a short time. Medical Examiner Magrath was notified, and in the meantime the police broadcast the description and began a checkup of missing women.

BLOOMINGDALE STORES MAY BE ADDED TO FILENE CHAIN

According to a report from New York today, Bloomingdale Bros., Inc., has been added to the new department store chain started by the merging of the William Filene's Sons Co., Abraham & Straus of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the Lazarus Store.

Officials of the Filene Company declined to make any statement

In a letter sent out last month by A. Lincoln Filene, chairman of the board of directors of the Boston company, to common stockholders, it was stated that the affiliations would in no way change the name, individual character or local identity of any one of the stores.

the water and were picked up by the crew of the Sandwich.

The accident occurred in a thick fog and the sailing vessel was at anchor. The schooner was rammed near the stern and cut through to the cabin, sinking swiftly.

The Sandwich was only slightly damaged and, after transferring the rescued men to the Coast Guard patrol boat CG285, which had put out from Woods Hole, it proceeded on its way from New York to Portland.

There were no passengers on the Sandwich, which carried a general cargo and a crew of 45. The Frances L. Taussig, owned by Crowell & Thurlow, Boston, was voyaging from Norfolk, Va., to Eastport, Me., with 1550 tons of coal. The Eastern Steamship Lines owns the Sandwich.

COAST GUARDS TO AID.

Aid of Coast Guards was not summoned by radio but by persons who saw what had happened from the shore near here. The fog had blanketed the sound since daylight. Suddenly it lifted and revealed the schooner sinking bow first and the steamer standing by. The Woods Hole Coast Guard base was notified by telephone.

It was at first thought the freighter was sinking, too, and several privately-owned small boats put out from this port.

The sinking occurred at almost the exact spot where the British liner Port Hunter, with a cargo of war supplies valued at $8,000,000, went down in a collision on Nov. 8, 1918.

The Taussig sank within 15 minutes. Her captain is F. W. Hunter. The vessel is registered as 972 tons net and was 193 feet long. It was built at Boothbay Harbor, Me., in 1918. Capt. Mahoney is in charge of the Sandwich, whose home port is Portsmouth, N. H.

Washington, April 5 (AP)—The captain and two members of the crew of the schooner A. Ernest Mills were reported missing in advices to the Navy Department today after a collision between the schooner and the destroyer Childs of the scouting fleet off Hampton Roads Wednesday night.

The missing are: Capt. A. C. Chaney of East Kingston, N. H., and George Barnes, Portsmouth, Va., and Paul Ferguson, Norfolk, Va., both seamen.

Seven of the schooner's crew were rescued by the Childs, but the master and the two seamen are believed to have drowned. The Childs, aided by the other destroyers of the scouting fleet, the Cochran and Bruce, are searching for the missing men.

He identified Donnelly as that of Charles Correia, 16, bellboy in the Hotel Bellmore, Taunton, where the theft occurred, who positively identified Donnelly.

Accuse 2 Malden Men in Attack

John B. Cronin and Michael Driscoll, both of Malden, were arrested today by Charlestown police on warrants charging them with assault and battery on Jeremiah Driscoll of Haverhill st., Charlestown, after luring him to a store by telephone call. Both were arraigned in Charlestown court and pleaded not guilty. They were held in $500 each for next Tuesday.

treat of Mexican rebel forces in Sinaloa.

As another measure of protection for Americans in Naco, Ari., Secretary Stimson today requested the Secretary of War to convey to rebel leaders an additional warning that their airplane pilots must refrain from dropping bombs into the American city when they raid the federals in the Mexican town of Naco across the border.

The Secretary requested the American military commander at Naco to see that the warning is effective.

Rebels Are in a General Retreat After "Massacre"

Mexico City, April 5 (AP)—Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles today pushed federal cavalry northward through Santa Rosalia de Camargo in an effort to overtake and "exterminate" fleeing remnants of Gen. Escobar's rebel army which aviators sighted at dusk yesterday.

The rebels began a general retreat after a defeat at La Reforma.

The rebel dead in the La Reforma action was reported to have exceeded 1000. The wounded numbered 500. The Federal took 2000 prisoners. Total "casualties" were estimated at about 4000.

Some accounts of La Reforma action reaching here today described it as a "massacre."

American Is Shot by Mexican Bandits

Nogales, Ariz., April 5 (AP)—Harry Meadows, an American mining engineer, was shot by Mexican bandits who surprised him at his mining camp located 43 miles from Magdalena, Sonora, Tuesday night. He made his way here today.

The bandits left him for dead after shooting him through the shoulder and leg, Meadows said.

Refloat Schooner

Woods Hole, April 5—The fishing schooner Elmer S., which went aground at the entrance of Lewis bay in the heavy blow last Tuesday, was floated by coast guard cutters.

3 SAILORS HELD IN ROBBERY OF TAXI MAN

Charged with holding up and robbing a taxi driver at gunpoint and stealing his cab, three sailors attached to the Chelsea Naval Hospital were arrested on Darrow st., Hough's Neck, by Officer Ben Sabin.

The sailors were booked as Corpsman Everett H. Vincent, home at Tarrytown, N. Y.; Hospital Attendant Charles Moore of Kansas City, Mo., and Pharmacist's Mate James Meisner of Easthampton.

In Quincy court they were arraigned on a charge of armed robbery against Arthur Shute, taxi driver, of Spring st., Cambridge. Judge Arthur H. Pratt held them in $8,000 each for the grand jury and the case immediately was presented to that body, sitting in Dedham.

GUN AT HIS HEAD

Shute told the police three men engaged him in Scollay sq. to drive to Hough's Neck. On arrival one of them put a gun to his head, while the other two robbed him, and he was then ordered out of the cab, which was driven away.

POLICEMAN CALLED

Joseph Clancy, a resident of Darrow st., telephoned the Quincy police there was some trouble outside his house, and Lieut. Thomas Malone sent Officer Sabis to the scene. The policeman came upon the three sailors walking on Darrow st., and a short distance further on picked up Shute.

190 Slain in 'Wet-Dry War' Since 1920

WASHINGTON, April 5 (INS)—Enforcement of the dry law by the prohibition bureau proper since the law was placed on the statute books in 1920 has caused the deaths of 55 agents and 135 civilians, Treasury Department records show. Deaths by years:

Year	Agents	Civilians
1921	8	14
1922	12	13
1923	4	17
1924	2	22
1925	5	20
1926	6	17
1927	5	16
1928	7	10
Totals	55	135

These figures do not include fatalities caused by enforcement by the coast guard and border patrol, the department said.

METHODISTS GIVE PURSE OF GOLD

Brockton, April 5 (AP)—The Rev. E. E. Roberts, retiring superintendent, was today presented with a purse of $50 in gold by the New England Southern District Methodist Episcopal Conference in session here. Having completed six years as superintendent, Mr. Roberts will return to preaching.

The board of examiners for 1930 was appointed today, consisting of the Revs. R. S. Moore, Joseph Cooper, C. H. Vannatter, Harold Gritchlow, T. J. Stuart, W. H. Bath, S. A. Lippencott, G. G. Strivener, J. G. Layton, G. S. Help, E. Story, S. A. Livingston, H. M. Crawford and Oscar J. Aldrich.

Approval was voiced to the resolution drawn up by the general conference in the Middle West which condemned war, objected to military training in high schools, opposed th envay bill and favored the nation's entry to the World Court.

The lay electoral, with 106 delegates from Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusetts, met today in the First Baptist Church. B. F. Thurston of Newport, R. I., was elected chairman and J. R. Oldham of East Providence, secretary.

bellon against prohibition Curran cited the move in the Rhode Island legislature yesterday to petition the Supreme Court to declare illegal the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead Act and the measures offered in both branches of the Michigan legislature for a State prohibition referendum in 1930.

PLAN BIG DRIVE HERE

At the same time, Curran said his association would "take up" the cases of Massachusetts Congressmen who voted for the Jones bill when they come up for re-election in 1930. He added:

"We shall bring about a referendum in Massachusetts. We are already working on it. I have no doubt what the people of Massachusetts will do. They voted last fall by a majority of 284,000 for repeal of the eighteenth amendment so the people would be relieved of this form of federal oppression."

Walsh Sees Wisconsin Vote as Evidence of Awakening

By SENATOR DAVID I. WALSH.
(Written Exclusively for International News Service.)

Washington, April 5—The Wisconsin referendum and the recent action of the Michigan Legislature, in declaring that dealing in small quantities of liquor does not constitute a felony, thus leading to life imprisonment after the fourth offense, is an awakening to the truth that legislative bodies can never create a crime that will be long sustained by public opinion.

Drinking wines and liquors has never been a moral wrong and there is no basis for the assumption that it is such.

There is growing evidence that the people are awakening to this truth. It is only to believe an intelligent and conservative people, inheritors of freedom brought about by the denial of personal liberty, will long entertain the conviction that carrying intoxicating liquor should be classed with murder.

SHIP SADLY SAILS WITH HERRICK

Brest, France, April 5 (AP)—The body of Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France, bade goodbye to French soil today and aboard the Tourville, finest of French cruisers, started the long trip back to America.

The farewell, however, was to France and not to Frenchmen. Until its arrival April 13 at New York the body will remain in the hands of men of the country he loved and which loved him.

HAS GUARD OF HONOR

Commandant J. M. C. Abrial of the Tourville accepted his charge with moving military terseness:

"In the name of my country I salute the body of a friend of France. He is now in my charge and will reach America safely."

The reception of the body aboard the boat was brief, but impressive. A salvo of 19 guns—the ambassadorial salute—shook Brest roads, as a small shrieking crane lowered the coffin to the Tourville's deck from that of the gunboat Dolmen which had conveyed it from the wharves.

The Tourville's band changed from Chopin's funeral march to the Star Spangled Banner. Then six husky French sailors lifted the coffin shoulder high and bore it into the "Ardent Chapel," where two sailors at a time will stand guard in watches of four hours until New York is reached.

FAREWELL SALUTE

There was a moment of farewell and final salute. Brig.-Gen. William Harts, military attache at the Paris embassy, and other Americans bade goodbye to William Schott, the embassy's third secretary, who will be the only American to accompany the body.

Then they boarded the Dolmen again and the Tourville lifted its anchor and began the long voyage, a voyage which is to be made at about half the speed of which the Tourville is capable, so as not to reach New York ahead of the Aquitania, bearing the ambassador's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Parmely Herrick, and some of her friends.

Cardinal Gasquet Dead

Rome, April 5 (AP)—Cardinal Gasquet, archivist of the library of the Holy Roman Church, who was created a Cardinal in 1914, died today, ager 83.

39 Ordained as Priests at Cathedral Service

FACULTY IS PRESENT.

The edifice was filled to the doors when the ceremonies began, the sacrament of Holy Orders being administered by the cardinal. He was assisted by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Finn, D. D., rector of the Cathedral, as archdeacon; Rev. Dr. Joseph C. Welsh, D. C. L., assistant, and Rev. Francis L. Keenan, D. D., and Rev. Harry M. O'Connor, as masters of ceremonies.

The following members of the faculty of the seminary were on the altar:

RELATIVES BLESSED

The entire student body of the seminary, 220 in number, was also at the altar, and the following seminarians acted as acolytes:

Immediately after the services the new priests breakfasted in the lower part of the Cathedral and then went to the auditorium of the Cathedral high school for the reception. Each of the new priests was surrounded with a group of relatives and friends to whom blessings were given.

It was an epochal occasion to the parents, the ordination of their sons being the fulfillment of long-cherished dreams on the part of the mothers. Shining eyes and smiling faces marked their joy as they clustered around the new priests, and as a reward they received first blessings.

FR. LORD CONGRATULATED.

William J. Leahy of Arlington, father of the brothers ordained, was visibly affected by the consummation of his desires.

One of the largest gatherings was grouped around Fr. Lord. Prominent in the throng who offered him congratulations being Prof. Daniel Sargent of Harvard and his wife, the former Frances Parkman.

The former Harvard professor, who is 38, completed the four-year course in St. John's Seminary in two years. He was graduated from Harvard with the class of 1906 with a master of arts degree, and received his Ph. D., from the same institution four years later.

Throughout the week the Rt. Rev. John B. Peterson, auxiliary bishop of Boston, has been investing the new priests with various offices preliminary to the ordination.

On Tuesday they received the tonsure and other minor orders in the seminary chapel. Wednesday they were invested with the subdeaconate and yesterday they received the deaconate.

The following were ordained:

Rev. Lewis F. Kearn, Church of Our Lady, Assumption; Rev. Edmund D. Chadbourne, St. Clement's, Somerville; Rev. Thomas P. Connolly, St. Charles', Woburn; Rev. Edward W. Desmond, St. Bernard's, West Newton; Rev. Ralph J. Gallagher, St. Mary's, Cambridge; Rev. Edward T. Harrington, St. Eulalia's, South Boston; Rev. Richard J. Hawko, Immaculate Conception, Malden; Rev. Joseph W. Healy, Immaculate Conception, Malden; Rev. Raymond L. Hyder, St. Augustine's, South Boston; Rev. Albert A. Michaud, St. Anthony's, Shirley.

Rev. Richard F. Norton, St. Patrick's, Watertown; Rev. Michael J. O'Brien, St. Francis', Braintree; Rev. Bernard J. O'Rourke, St. Peter's, Cambridge; Rev. John L. Parsons, Mission Church, Roxbury; Rev. Joseph P. Shea, Church of Our Lady, Newton; Rev. John J. Sullivan, St. Margaret's, Lowell; Rev. Richard S. Burke, St. Mary's, Lynn.

Rev. Frances X. Bransfield, St. Peter's, Dorchester; Rev. George M. Dowd, St. Clement's, Somerville; Rev. Francis B. Driscoll, Church of Our Lady, Newton; Rev. Anthony J. Mrs. Geo. Orvis Quits G.O.P. to Fight 'Drys'

New York, April 5 (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune today quoted Mrs. George Orvis as saying her recent resignation as Republican National Committeewoman from Vermont was due to a desire to work for a change in the prohibition law.

"I believe it will be women who will in the end be responsible for the repeal of the 18th amendment," she said. "When it becomes clear to the men that women are not all dry, as is so often said, they will be willing to consider a change."

Mrs. Orvis announced her resignation several weeks ago, shortly after that of Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, committeewoman from New York, but neither made known the reason at the time. Mrs. Sabin later said she had quit to work against prohibition.

SHORTAGE OF HOMES FOR WORKING PEOPLE

ASK AID FROM INSURANCE COMPANIES

That there is a shortage of good homes at reasonable prices for working people was stressed today at a hearing before the House ways and means committee by Chairman Charles H. Adams of the commission on the necessaries of life.

This shortage exists, he said, despite the fact it is commonly known there are more houses than can be purchased or occupied.

To relieve this congestion in the population of the larger cities, he said the commission would be glad to make a study.

At previous hearings on the subject, it was brought out, insurance companies in New York and New Jersey have gone into the home building field extensively, replacing buildings in the slum districts with modern homes at rentals within the reach of the working class.

It was the thought of some of the speakers that the insurance companies might be induced to extend the enterprise to large cities in this state, particularly Boston.

SEEKS PROBE OF L. A. W. OFFICERS

Representative Edward J. Kelley of Worcester today introduced an order in the House, calling upon the Attorney-General and the district attorney of Worcester to proceed forthwith to investigate the conduct of former officers and directors of the Superior Credit Corporation of Worcester, Inc.

This corporation succeeded the Worcester L. A. W. Company, which figured prominently in the legislative investigation of former Attorney-General Arthur K. Reading.

Worcester, April 5 (AP)—Louis A. Wolfe, former president of the United L. A. W. Corporation, to which the Superior Credit Corporation is the successor, and who went to Jerusalem in, February, 1928, to restore his impaired health, will return to Worcester this summer, according to his brother-in-law, Samuel Rosoff, of this city.

Rosoff was emphatic in denying that Wolfe "fled" to Palestine or that he was "in virtual exile."

SMALL BOYS SET SUN ON FIRE

Those sunny natures so peculiar to small boys with idle time on their hands nearly blotted out the Sun in Winthrop today and the two-story brick building in which the weekly paper is housed.

The youths had an "idea" yesterday and, climbing to the roof, dropped into the chimney and after armful of small wood, paper, cloth, tarpaper and leaves.

It was very effective, because today when Edward Leonard started a fire in the stove the blaze continued all the way up the chimney, endangering the shop and the apartment of George Bakis overhead.

Firemen drowned out the fire. Loss $200.

Casassa Halts White Girl-Chinese Bridal

A Chinese filed intentions at Revere City Hall today to marry a 21-year-old white divorcee—and war was immediately declared by Mayor Casassa.

Wong Gim Yuen, a laundryman in Shirley ave., Revere, filed the intentions to wed Mrs. Myrtle L. Bilodeau, whose home address was given as Gorham, N. H.

As soon as he heard of the intentions, Mayor Casassa called City Clerk Alfred J. Brown into his office and ordered that Brown refuse the license when the five days have expired next Tuesday.

WILL TALK WITH GIRL

The mayor said he wished to talk with the girl and some of her relatives and learn to his own satisfaction that she knew her own mind.

City Clerk Brown said he would withhold the marriage license until further orders.

It is the first time an Asiatic has applied for a marriage license in Revere.

When Yuen took out the intentions he asked Clerk Brown if he would perform the ceremony next Tuesday and Brown acquiesced.

FATHER IS WEALTHY.

Papers were produced by the Chinese to show that he was legally in this country. They cited that his father is a well known merchant in San Francisco.

The expectant bridegroom gave his birthplace as Shing-Ning-Chin, China, his father's name as Wong Pang and his mother's as Gee Shee.

The annual prize drill of the 15th Regiment of Cadets, Boston High School of Commerce, was held in the school gymnasium on Louis Pasteur ave., Roxbury.

The captain of the winning company 5, Herman Matthei, becomes colonel of the regiment as the result of his victory. The other officers to be promoted are: Capt. Edward Dowler, Co. 1, to lieutenant colonel; Capt. James Cowhig, Co. 2, to major of first battalion; Capt. F. Thomas Leonardi, Co. 6, to major second battalion; and Capt. William S. McFettridge, Co. 11, to major of third battalion.

Hub Dinner for Prince

Plans have been completed for the reception of Don Louis de Bourbon, prince of Spain, who arrives in Boston Wednesday as the guest of Joseph Carleton Beal.

Don Louis, who will escort Miss Anne Schreiber of Pittsburgh, will go to the home of Edward K. Newbegin, 11 Chestnut st., where a dinner will be given in his honor, with 10 guests. The entire party will attend a theater.

Those at the dinner will include Miss Rosamond Pierce of Chestnut Hill, Edward K. Newbegin, Robert Newbegin, 2d, of Harvard, Edward P. Goodnow of Brookline, Joseph Carleton Beal and Miss Schreiber.

Somerville Church Plans First Reunion

Plans have been completed for the first annual parish reunion of St Polycarp's parish, Somerville, next Wednesday evening, in Knights of Columbus Hall, Highland ave., Somerville. A feature of the evening will be O'Leary's Irish Minstrels, with Thomas Quinn as tenor. Rev. Fr. John E. O'Connell, formerly at the Gate of Heaven Church, South Boston, is pastor, and his assistant is the Rev. Albert Jacobbe. A committee, headed by John Doyle, has the arrangements in charge.

AID OF HISTORY SOUGHT IN MRS. GANN'S 'WAR'

Washington, April 5 (AP)—The capital's current social crisis over the status of Mrs Edward Everett Gann, sister and official hostess of Vice-President Curtis, is causing many worried hostesses to turn hopefully to history for precedents to guide them until Secretary Stimson hands down his final decision.

Most of the incidents which have raised similar questions in the past, however, have had to do either with the official hostesses of Presidents who were bachelors or widowers, or with those of officials lower than the Vice-President.

With specific guidance thus denied them, some hostesses have about decided to follow the ruling made by former Secretary Kellogg just before his retirement that Mrs. Gann as a guest at official dinners should follow and not precede the wives of ambassadors and ministers.

In view of Mr. Curtis' protest of this ruling and his belief that his official hostess should be accorded the same recognition a Vice-President's wife would receive which would place her ahead of diplomats' wives, other hostesses are not nearly so certain about what to do. Mr. Curtis and Mrs. Gann, meanwhile, are abiding by their hostesses' decisions.

The little blue book of Washington society, "Social Washington," written by Anne Squire, a social secretary of note, who used to have Mrs. Kellogg on her list, lays down certain rules of precedence which are said to have been furnished her by the State Department.

"Sisters, daughters, daughters-in-law, and other members of the family of an official like no precedence whatever," says the rule, which has been violated innumerable times but still is held to be a rule. "Even when they act as hostesses for the head of the family, they are, except in his house, deprived of the rank of a wife."

Social War Amuses Elite in England

London, April 5 (INS)—British official and social circles are enjoying many a hearty laugh over the social war which has broken out in Washington over the social status of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and official hostess of Vice-President Curtis.

British social leaders scarcely suppress their smiles when answering published queries from Washington asking, "What would England do in a quandary such as this?"

The answer is that if British society precepts were followed, the married sister of Vice-President Curtis would have no official social rating whatever, outside of her own or Vice-President Curtis' home.

Umpire Dies After Plunge of a Bus

Quantico, Va., April 5 (INS)—Thomas Crooke, Washington, umpire of the Cornell University baseball team, died in the Marine Base Hospital today from injuries suffered when a bus carrying the team plunged off the Richmond-Washington highway last night.

Twenty-seven passengers, most of them ball players, were hurt, five seriously. Physicians declared the others will recover.

HALT LOVE SUIT SO TEMPLETON CAN WEEP

It was a damp and drizzling day today in Middlesex Probate Court, what with the almost constant tears of John R. Templeton, 26, of Bedford, while testifying in his divorce suit against Mrs. Olive Barker Templeton, 23, Boston bank clerk.

Templeton felt so badly when he told of wanting to die because of his wife's cruelties that it was necessary to take "time out" until his tears quit flowing.

"Never will I live with that woman again," he declared between sobs and after describing beatings he alleges she administered. "I don't want to eat; I don't want to live. My desire to die began when my wife kept nagging."

Templeton's brother - in - law, Thomas Whiteside, with whom Templeton makes his home, testified that one night last August, shortly after Templeton had slashed his wrist in an Allston apartment and had expressed a wish for death, Mrs. Templeton remarked:

"I've never worried and I'm not going to start now."

Whiteside testified that before Templeton began to have trouble with his wife, he was a skilled pool player.

"Did he clean the table?" he was asked by counsel.

"No. I was playing, too," Whiteside replied.

"No stacked cards were there?" asked Judge Campbell, smiling.

"Well, conscience dies in a poker game," Whiteside answered.

To Transfer Leviathan

The transfer of the S. S. Leviathan from control of the U. S. Shipping Board to its new owners, The United States Lines, Inc., will take place Monday at Pier 86, North River, New York.

Guests and officials will be present from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and other cities.

Formal delivery of the Leviathan to President Paul W. Chapman of the United States Lines will be made by Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the Shipping Board. Ten other North Atlantic passenger liners will be similarly transferred in the near future.

PIN HOPE IN MORSE GIRL HUNT ON CHUM

SOME FRIEND MAY 'TIP OFF' DETECTIVE

A girl chum of Rosamond Morse, missing 17-year-old Brookline girl, may eventually be the means of solving the mystery of her whereabouts, in the opinion of G. Clifton Watts, head of the Watts Detective Agency.

Watts, who has been on the case for three months, believes Rosamond may have placed implicit confidence in a chum and may be in communication with her in regard to what is being done to find her.

Realization of the extreme anxiety of the missing girl's father and stepmother may finally induce such a confidante, if there is one, to come forward with information, in the detective's opinion.

"There is little question but what Rosamond Morse intends to go to Paris sooner or later," he said. "She was surreptitiously examining her forger passport some time before she left home in January."

Search was made for the missing girl in Fall River today following reports to the police by several persons that a girl strongly resembling her was selling magazine subscriptions in that city last week. The Morse family formerly had a summer place in Rhode Island, not far from Fall River. The magazine girl was reported to have said she came from Providence and was going to New Bedford.

Arrangements have been made, it was learned, for steamship agents to notify the family if anyone answering her description engages passage for Europe, and passport authorities at Washington will also aid in this way, regardless of what fictitious name the Brookline schoolgirl may use in her application.

The search has also been extended to Greater Boston stores, in which women's wearing apparel is sold.

In some stores of this general district, detectives were hoping to find a clerk who will recall selling to the 17-year-old heiress a blouse or a sweater to match a red colored skirt which she packed in her bag when she fled her home at Fairmount st., Brookline, sometime during the night of Jan 4 last.

Discovery that the blouse of the skirt had been left behind by the young beauty started the hunt in this direction today. For, it was reasoned, taking as few clothes as she did, Rosamond would be in need of supplementary attire for the skirt. It would be natural enough for her to make a short diversion on her flight to secure one.

HAD $200 SAVED UP

Still another line of reasoning was opened up by the realization that only the skirt of the red suit had been taken by the cunning Miss May's school student. This was, that contrary to previous belief, she departed her home in haste.

Hitherto it had been theorized that her flight was well planned and deeply laid plans. Now, it is believed, that some incident occurring shortly before she retired at 9 o'clock shocked her into a determination to make her great adventure. Or it could, perhaps.

Otherwise, there would have been no overlooking of such an important feature as her dress.

There was no lack of funds to hamper Rosamond in her adventure. She had saved over $200 of her allowance during several months, her father, Edward W. Morse, Jr., revealed. Her father believes that she planned to pay her way to France with this amount after she had earned more money by employment.

RESUME DRAGGING

The dragging of Hammond's Pond, Newton, for the body of the girl by Metropolitan Police was to be resumed today. At the same time friends of the girl were urging that the Brookline Reservoir be dragged, despite the declarations of the private detectives that this body of water was frozen three days after her disappearance.

20 Dead, 59 Hurt in Rumania Rail Wreck

Bucharest, Rumania, April 5 (AP)—Twenty persons were killed and 59 injured when the Bucharest-Jassy express train was derailed near Buzev. Most of the bodies remained in the snow all night long until relief trains arrived.

Relief work was made most difficult by a blizzard today. Such injured as could be removed were taken to a hospital at Buzev.

SOLDIERS' SHOP SALES ABOUT TO BEGIN

Society Leaders Throw Open Homes to Assist Worthy Charity, Says Betty Alden

CERTAIN SIGNS OF SPRING ARE INDUBITABLY about. There is still-very-youthful Back Bay Boston rolling its hoop about the Garden's graveled paths. And the brave purple-blue and golden crocuses blooming gaudily hard by the Somerset Club's austere bow windows. But spring is surely just in the offing when the Soldiers' Shop up in Boylston st. commences to set out its wares here, there and everywhere as beneficent hostesses offer their drawingrooms or their gardens to the cause.

THE 11TH OF APRIL, A THURSDAY, LOOMS important in the Shop's spring caravanings. On that day the brightly painted truck that is a Mrs. Charles R. Butler donation to the Shop is packed full to overflowing with priceless handmade articles and trundled away to Fitchburg. In that city Mrs. Thornton K. Ware opens her drawingrooms at 87 Prospect st. and sees to it that a large advance interest is whetted for the caravan's coming.

BEAUTIFULLY WROUGHT AND MARVELOUSLY colored are the goods the caravan will disgorge in Mrs. Ware's establishment. And so delicate the tints, so fanciful the designs, so exquisite the workmanship, one marvels that masculine fingers, laboriously trained to the craft through days of physical disability, can do the fashioning. The toys; the leather goods; the silver and copper hammered and molded as by experts, the pewters that answer the present popular demand, woven things and hand painted things, all are in the stock so encompassingly rich.

STAUNCH FRIENDS OF THE SOLDIERS' Shop nearer town than Mrs. Ware next rally to the cause and open their homes. And like Mrs. Ware make success a foregone conclusion by notifying friends of the sale's arrival. Miss Alberta Houghton, of Garden st., Cambridge, as truly a Shop adherent as the organization can boast, will be the hostess on April 16, and have set out in her attractive drawingroom a rainbow effect, like a spring garden come within doors.

MAY FOR THE SHOP STAFF MEANS AN excursion out Hopedale way, and to Milton. In the latter suburb, so prettily countrified and so exclusive, Mrs. Geoffrey Whitney welcomes the caravan of goods and its sales force. And in Hopedale, so definitely linked with the name of Draper, the spouse of Eben Draper of the clan is hostess. At the moment the date for the latter excursion is not definitely set, but results are sure to be keenly satisfactory, in dollars garnered and new friends made.

ONCE AGAIN WHEN MISS EVE LE GALLIENNE comes to town with her Civic Repertory group are the allied circles of art and charity benefitted. Adding one more to the season's overwhelming long list of benefits stretches the philanthropic season well into May that it may include Miss Le Gallienne and her company devoting the premiere of "Peter Pan" to a good cause, the Nursery Training School that flourishes out in Ruggles st.

SPONSORS ALREADY ARE gathering for the benefit and the opening, May 2, at the Hollis Street Theater. The preliminary list includes Mesdames Franklin W. Hobbs, Francis W. Peabody, Dwight Blaney, Charles Jackson, Robert Winsor, Jr., William Morton Wheeler, Robert W. Emmons, Mark W. Richardson, Francis H. Williams, N. Penrose Hallowell, Henry C. Hutchins, Arthur W. Moore, Paul J. Sachs and John F. Moors. Also Miss Ellen Mason, Mies Mary Winsor, Mrs. Ralph Hornblower, Mrs. Henry L. Mason and Mrs. Randolph Byers.

OF COURSE THE LIST WILL grow enormously. Such is the way with benefits with a fashionable sponsorship and society's never ceasing interest to urge affairs to financial and artistic achievements. Mrs. Howard T. Swain, Mrs. Henry F. Colt, Mrs. Roger L. Lee, Mrs. Henry Fay, Mrs. Franklin Dexter, Mrs. Erwin H. Schnell, Mrs. Henry H. Faxon, Mrs. John H. Bartol and Mrs. Moses Williams, with others just before mentioned, comprise the list to date. And may well see it much more impressive as to numbers.

350 Clubwomen in Bare Feet at Play Day

THREE hundred and fifty barefooted clubwomen scrambled for their own footwear in a great pile of mixed shoes in the Town Hall when the Whitman Woman's Club held a "gymkhana program" to dissolve their dignity.

"We called it a 'gymkhana' because no one knew what the word meant; we didn't either," explained Mrs. C. W. Cartwright, Jr., chairman, reporting this original entertainment at the Club Institute at Hotel Vendome.

Mrs. Frank E. Peckham, president of the Rhode Island Federation, and her first vice-president, Mrs. Haskell, were honor guests, here to learn how to conduct club institutes in their state next year. They were keenly interested as Mrs. Cartwright proceeded to tell the 250 delegates how the "gymkhana" promoted friendliness and replaced the former reserve among the members of her club. It has 500 members. Mrs. Paul Jones is president.

Mrs. Frank E. Peckham

"Announcements of this play day were purposely vague," she said, "We wanted to create curiosity. Members were told to come prepared to take off their hats, also their shoes, which must be either laced or buttoned on.

"They were met by a reception committee dressed in old fashioned costumes and further mystified by the announcement of a secret handshaker in their midst. A prize pencil was given the 13th woman with whom the secret shaker clasped hands."

COMEDY AS CLIMAX

A "kitchen orchestra," "gymkhana" clown, caricature of short, tall, fat, thin women, bean guessing contest, pantomime illustrations of book titles, ridiculous magician, and the shoe-mixing contest, were climaxed by a comedy sketch in which members worked out the interpretation of "gymkhana" in a telegram of words beginning with the letters it contained. The prize telegram read: "Guard your modest knees hold aside naughty antics."

Seating members in groups according to their birthday months broke up cliques and promoted new acquaintances, she added. Past presidents were judges of the contests.

Another interesting club program was described by Mrs. John Jennings, first vice-president of the Brookline Women's Club, who told of the "Vice-Presidents' Day" given for vice-presidents of 31 neighboring clubs. This was one of the social triumphs of the past club year.

A musical program and tea was given and elaborate courtesies extended in a dress party setting. The four state federation vice-presidents were honor guests with the district director, Mrs. Thomas Rees.

Only one program not supplied by home talent was suggested—that of a noted "human engineer" lecturer—who aroused such interest in the Concord Woman's Club that a score of townspeople joined in taking the "aptitude tests" he had described. These tests were to determine a person's natural aptitude for certain kinds of work and are made upon thousands of employes of the corporation the lecturer represented, Mrs. Hans W. Miller, president, told of his methods while scores of delegates took notes.

CHARLES RIVER DEBATE

Beacon st. will be a conglomeration of cellar deli..atessens, tailor shops and rooming houses in another few years unless the Charles river basin project for a motor roadway below the level of the esplanade is approved by the Legislature, M. H. Gulesian, retired business man, told 300 women at the Republican Women's Club. He urged them to write their senators to support it.

He cited Union Park district as an example of what proud Beacon st. will become unless motor traffic is diverted to the river side. He charged that property owners opposing a measure of great civic improvement such as this were selfish and short-sighted.

His opponent, William Homan, representing a committee of Beacon st. property owners, countered with reading a contract made by the owners with the state, through which they paid $30 a front foot to have a 100-foot esplanade made when the present embankment was built. He declared that social service workers interested in preserving the present park for children of the South, North and West Ends are opposing a "speedway" and that traffic figures show no necessity of such a motorway.

GIRL SCOUT CONTESTS

Girl Scouts all over Massachusetts are preparing for their annual Bugle and Drum Corps contests, to be held all day, April 27, at Boston Arena. Mrs. Walton S. Redfield of Newton is directing the event in which the girls will compete for championship cups in bugling, drumming and drum majoring.

Individual competitions will begin at 9:15 a.m. and the corps competitions at 1 p. m. Mrs. Arthur W. Hartt, State Commissioner of Girl Scouts, will present the cups.

87 MILLIONS FOR CANAL

Stalingrad, Russia (AP)—The linking up of the rivers Volga and Don by means of a canal, first considered in the sixteenth century, may soon be realized.

Survey work has been completed and the year 1930 has been fixed as the date for the beginning of the excavation work. By 1935, it is expected the canal will be in operation.

It will cost approximately $87,500,000.

SEEK KIDNAPED GIRL IN SOUTH

Mobile, Ala., April 5 (AP)—A close watch on outgoing steamships is being maintained by police here for abductors of Barbara Ritcher, Montreal school girl.

Reports to the local department were that two men and a woman were believed en route to this city by auto in an attempt to spirit the girl out of the country by steamer.

Montreal authorities telegraphed that the abductors had been traced through several Eastern cities, evidently making for Mobile or New Orleans.

VAMPED INMAN 'RIVAL,' THEN HE BEAT HER

Reno, Nev., April 5 (INS)—Helene Garnet Patton Inman "vamped" John Steele, noted singer, to make her husband jealous and to regain his love, and Inman broke her nose and blacked her eyes so that "no one would ever love her," she told the jury.

Mrs. Inman, closing witness in her cross suit to divorce Inman, Duke tobacco fortune heir, was to resume her story from the witness stand today. Categorically denying all of the charges made in her husband's suit, Mrs. Inman charged him with gross intemperance, neglect and cruelty.

She admitted having corresponded with Steele and declared she had purposely left the poetic love letters from the singer for her husband to find.

"Did you love Steele?" her counsel asked.

"No," she said.

"Did he care for you?"

"Why did you write to each other?"

"I vamped Steele to make Walker jealous," she said. "I wanted to make him wake up and not be so neglectful."

STILL HOPE TO FIND LOST FLIERS

Sydney, N. S. W., April 5 (AP)—Improving weather conditions today heightened the hopes of those searching "somewhere east of Syndham" for Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his companions of the Southern Cross.

Aviation authorities, admitting the immense difficulties of the quest due to the inaccessibility and wild nature of the northwestern Australia area, nevertheless encouraged everyone to hope for its success. This, they believed, might be nearer than anyone suspected.

The airliner Canberra left here early today for the northwest to join the search for the missing airmen, who have been lost since their forced landing on a Sydney to Syndham flight Sunday. The plane carried provisions and medical supplies and was piloted by a Capt. Holden with a Dr. Holden as passenger.

Some believed that the aviators, realizing that descent in the wild, broken country further inland probably would be disastrous, headed for the sea as soon as they realized they were in difficulty.

Nation-Wide Bus System Organized

New York, April 5 (AP)—Ernest H. Miller, president of the Yellow Taxi Corp. of New York, announced today organization of the Parmelee Transportation Company as the nucleus of a proposed country-wide motor transportation system. The new company, he said, will acquire control of the Parmelee Transfer Co. of Chicago and the Yellow Taxi Corp. of New York as well as a substantial interest in the Chicago Yellow Cab Co. It expects, in time, to associate with other units operating cabs and busses.

iOliver Ames, Jr., Post Gives Drama

Oliver Ames, Jr., Post, A. L., presented a military play in three acts last night at the high school of practical arts, Roxbury, before a large audience. Principal parts were played by John Diamond, Hubert O. Robinson, Richard Minton and Bertha Sutherland. Spear Dennett was chairman, assisted by Ross H. Carter, adjutant.

Alexander New Dean of Men at U. of N. H.

Durham, N. H., April 5 (AP)—Norman Alexander, associate professor of economics at the University of New Hampshire, has been appointed dean of men. He will succeed Adrian O. Morse, who resigned to become executive secretary of Pennsylvania State College.

Boys Roll Manhole Cover on Railway Tracks as Joke

Somerville police have been requested to watch for boys who have been removing a manhole cover from the rear of the west wing of the Somerville High School and rolling it down the hill onto the tracks of the Boston & Maine railroad.

The Somerville building commissioner reports that two or three times the manhole cover has been rolled down the hill and upon the tracks and that engineers have been forced to stop their trains and remove the cover from the tracks.

PRICE ON HIS HEAD AS HE HUNTS 'RING'

Jacksonville, Fla., April 5 (AP)—Declaring unrelenting war on "the worst rum and murder ring in Florida," Sheriff W. S. Cahoon, on whose head bootleggers are reputed to have placed a price of $1000, today redoubled his efforts to find the slayer of Joe Haywood, his former deputy, who was shot to death.

Haywood, since coming to Jacksonville as deputy sheriff, had become known as the "terror of bootleggers." He, too, had a price on his head, authorities were informed, of $500.

Among the 14 suspects who were in jail today, the sheriff believed he had the slayer.

Cahoon announced that the shotgun with which Haywood was killed as he sat in a car at a grade crossing waiting for a train to pass, had been found, and it was the property of the sheriff's office. The gun was in possession of Bill Oglesby, who was held for questioning.

DRY LAWS DID NOT LAST LONG YEARS AGO

In submitting an interesting entry in the Hearst $25,000 Temperance Prize Contest, John Mahoney of 4 North Sovereign ave., Atlantic City, N. J., quotes an interesting page of prohibition history, published in The Nation, 13 years ago.

This quotation evidences how previous American attempts in various states to bring about temperance through prohibition had failed.

Referring to "The First Breeze of 'Prohibition'" Mahoney quotes from the magazine of March 16, 1916:

"Sixty years ago, there was a movement for prohibition which seemed like the beginning of the end. In 1850, Vermont passed a prohibitory law and Ohio one prohibiting the sale of liquor to be drunk on the premises.

"In 1851, Illinois imitated Ohio, and Ohio put a prohibition amendment in her Constitution. The next year Massachusetts and Rhode Island joined the procession, and Vermont strengthened her law. In 1854 Connecticut fell into line.

"The following year saw a great breach made in the liquor ramparts. Delaware, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, New Hampshire and even New York went 'dry.' No other year has witnessed so many victories for the cause.

But defeat was only less swift. Illinois had already repealed her law of 1851. New York's statute was declared unconstitutional the year following its passage. Delaware repented in 1857. Indiana, Iowa and Nebraska in 1858. Rhode Island's excess of virtue held out until 1863. Connecticut's nine years longer, and Massachusetts and Michigan fell together in 1875.

"Of the 13 states which, between 1850 and 1855, had adopted prohibition, only three retained it 20 years later. Of these three, Ohio gave it up in 1888, and New Hampshire and Vermont in 1903."

Other views of thinkers on the uppermost subject in America are:

DR. HENRY ALLEN OVERSTREET, professor of philosophy at the College of the City of New York, and author of "Influencing Human Behavior" and other volumes of psychology—The worst enemy we face in America today is one very special kind of prohibition—the prohibition to think honestly and critically about a federal law. Many of us believe that the Volstead Act has been a breeder of a new kind of hypocrisy and a new kind of lawlessness.

FRANK GARBUTT, prominent business man and civic leader, Los Angeles: The prohibition situation is an intolerable condition that is undermining the integrity of the nation. Mr. Hearst's $25,000 temperance prize contest should accomplish much good by giving widespread publicity to the best constructive thought on the abatement of this unfortunate condition.

CLEARS MORGAN AND U. S. MEN

Washington, April 5 (INS)—Representative John C. Schafer (R.) Wisconsin, one of the party of Congressmen-junketers who returned from Panama last week, doesn't believe Representative William M. Morgan, Ohio's dry Congressman, brought in four bottles of liquor, as New York customs inspectors charge.

Schafer does know, he said today, that there was no abusive language directed at the inspectors.

Schafer was standing right next to Morgan on the pier, he said, and if any unpleasantries were said he would have heard it.

Pere Marquette K. C. "Old-Timers'" Night

With all the Past Grand Knights and former officers as guests of honor, the annual "Old-Timers'" night of Pere Marquette Council, Knights of Columbus, will be in the council rooms, N st., South Boston, on Monday evening.

Among those appearing are Louise Wills, Marie Jennings and George Whalen, soloist; John and Catherine McLoughlin, step dance; Albert Sullivan, accordion; Neal Nolan, banjo and Bob Bowes, piano.

'Who Owns S. Pole?' London Papers Ask

London, April 5 (AP)—Reports published in the United States that the American government was preparing a diplomatic 'note contesting British claims to sovereignty in the Antarctic, based on the explorations of Comdr Richard E. Byrd, were published in the Evening Star and Evening News today.

"Who Owns the South Pole?" and "U. S. Challenge to Britain in Antarctic" were headlines. The Star does not think that the latest reported flurry in Anglo-American relations needs serious treatment.

Proctor Academy Has 50th Birthday

With 140 alumni and friends present, Proctor Academy, the only Unitarian school in New England, observed its golden anniversary by a dinner at the University Club.

The Rev. Maxwell Savage, D. D., of Worcester announced that the trustees are making this 50th birthday the occasion to launch a campaign for a Proctor Academy endowment fund of $112,000.

DRUG ADDICTS IN U. S. ARE DECREASING

Washington, April 5 (INS)—Drug addiction is decreasing throughout the United States, according to a nation-wide survey just announced by the Federal Narcotics Bureau.

The survey further revealed that the average age of addict is increasing, indicating, officials declared, that few recruits are being added to the ranks of addicts.

A year ago the bureau placed the number of addicts at 100,000. This figure was described as a liberal estimate. Today, the survey says, the number has fallen. A definite estimate was withheld. Other authorities have estimated the total addicts from 1,000,000 to 1,000,000.

The survey, which will be placed before President Hoover's law enforcement commission, was based on questionnaires sent to federal agents all over the country.

Generally speaking, Col. Nutt declared, the domestic drug situation is well in hand. He said less than 5 per cent of the drugs legally manufactured in America are diverted to illicit channels.

The average age of male addicts convicted was found to be 35½ years, and women 33¾ years. Only three years ago the average age of addicts was 27 years.

As in the past, the chief problem confronting enforcement officials, Nutt added, is to break up dope smuggling operations.

Valuable Linens Included in Loot

Valuable embroidered linens, brass candlesticks and cigarettes were among the loot taken from The Samovar, a Russian tea room at 88 Warrenton st., by thieves who boldly enjoyed a hearty feast in the kitchen before walking out the front door with their plunder.

The robbers consumed innumerable little Russian cakes, two entire roast chickens and plenty of cream and milk.

Teacher Reveals Secret Wedding

Plainville, April 5—A wedding ring noticed by other teachers on the finger of Miss Mildred B. Curtis, teacher in the Central School, caused her to reveal that she was married to Albert R. New of Portsmouth, N. H., a New Hampshire State College student, Friday.

BOAT'S A BOAT, FISH ARE FISH TO JOHN

John Cadigan, lately of the crew of the beam trawler Yale, is the sort of fisherman to whom fishing is fishing—and he never bothers about such foolishness as being funny over what boat he fishes from.

John's erstwhile skipper, the captain of the Yale, found out John's peculiarity today.

The Yale was all ready to put to sea, when the captain called the roll. John was missing. The skipper notified the police. The time was 10:10 a. m.

At 10:28 a. m. came news from harbor police headquarters. John was all O. K., according to half a dozen witnesses who knew him. He had gone aboard the ship late last night—the wrong ship, but still a beam trawler.

"Where is the boat now?" demanded the Yale's skipper irately.

"Gone fishing," reported the harbor police.

$60,000 for Harvard Employment Bureau

A fund of $60,000 to support for three years an employment office for Harvard University alumni has just been raised at Cambridge, it was announced through the Harvard Alumni Bulletin. This fund of $60,000, a large portion of which was contributed by two non-Harvard men, A. Lincoln Filene of Boston and former Senator Simon Guggenheim of New York, is to be devoted exclusively to the building up of a bureau that will be of assistance to Harvard alumni in securing suitable positions.

Behind the raising of the $60,000 fund is a desire on the part of Harvard to provide not only a liberal education but also assistance in the vital personal problem of vocational adjustment, it was stated at Cambridge. At present, Harvard is looking for a suitable man to take charge of the alumni employment work in the capacity of director.

Bay State Urged to Meet Dairy Demand

Belchertown, April 5—New England farmers were called upon to meet the rapidly increasing invasion by Western milk and cream producers, the call being voiced by Lynne P. Townsend of Ludlow, in an address at the Pomona Grange meeting here.

Lansdowne House May Be Moved to U. S.

London, April 5 (AP)—Lansdowne House, palatial home of H. Gordon Selfridge, in the heart of Mayfair, may be removed to the United States.

Its sale for $8,750,000 marks the passing of the last of the great houses of London excepting Crewe House, former residence of the American ambassador. Devonshire House, Grosvenor House and Dorchester House have already been demolished and Britain fears that Lansdowne House will follow unless, like other British treasures, it finds a place in the United States.

The purchaser of the property, Benson Greenall, has acquired large blocks of property in Mayfair and is known to have big ideas on town planning and the making of a new London. It is thought that on the site of Lansdowne House he intends to erect a great theater.

Already plans of Lansdowne House have gone to prospective buyers in the United States with a view to its transportation and re-erection there.

The house was begun in 1765 and is considered one of the finest in London. Gordon Selfridge has been its tenant for eight years.

AUTO HITS AN 'L' TRUCK; 3 HURT

One man is in Haymarket Relief Hospital and two others were bruised and shaken when they were thrown from an Elevated tower truck by an automobile operated by Frederick Bright of Fellsway, Medford, on the Fellsway near Wellington bridge today.

According to the Metropolitan police, Bright was arrested on a charge of drunkenness and in Malden court his case was continued one week.

James McGurk of 8 Cleveland st., Allston, who was struck by the automobile after it had hit the truck, was taken to the hospital suffering from injuries to his right side. Hugh McDonald of 714 Washington st., Quincy, and George Schlaich of 20 Eglseton st., Jamaica Plain, who were thrown from the tower, escaped with abrasions.

According to police the tower was in the car tracks with McDonald and Schlaich working on the wires when the crash came.

Milton Without Lights

For more than two hours several streets, stores and residents in East Milton were without electric light as a result of a faulty transformer that burned out on a pole on Adams st.

Gives Up Horses for Hoover Economy

Washington, April 5 (INS)—President Hoover's idea of economy, which ditched the presidential yacht Mayflower and abolished the White House stables, has been followed by Secretary Hyde.

Two saddle horses, long maintained for the pleasure of the Secretary of Agriculture at government expense, will be so no more. The horses will be used on the agricultural experimental farm.

Taylor Leaves for Providence Bout

Chicago, April 5 (INS)—Bud Taylor, former bantam, now contending for a second title in the feather division, will leave Sunday for Providence, R. I., where he meets Young Montreal in a 10-round go Wednesday night. He will return here following the Montreal go to train for his bout with Tony Canzoneri in Manhattan, April 26.

Must Close Kansas City 'Dives' at 8 P. M.

Kansas City, Mo., April 5 (INS)—Chief of Police John L. Miles, newly appointed, today issued an order that Kansas City bootlegging "joints" must be closed by 8 o'clock each evening under threat of invoking the Jones law. The chief said his edict was the forerunner to compleet annihilation of all local speakeazies.

LOSES IN RENT SUIT AGAINST EX-BOOTLEG

Bootleggers aren't good people and their business isn't nice, according to law, therefore Thomas McAuliffe of Fitchburg st., Watertown, lost out today in an attempt to collect $60 from James Murnahan of Common st., Watertown.

Murnahan volunteered information that he was a bootlegger when he had desk room in McAuliffe's office in Washington st., Boston.

In return for $5 a week rent, Murnahan testified, McAuliffe was to answer the telephone in Murnahan's absence and take orders for liquor. McAuliffe's suit alleged that the rent had not been paid $60 worth.

Judge Counihan ruled that inasmuch as McAuliffe was declared to know of Murnahan's illegal business and knew it to be illegal, he had no claim that was collectable. A claim of $8 for a damaged typewriter was allowed, however.

'Copey' Reading in New York Tonight

Professor-emeritus Charles Townsend Copeland of Harvard, who retired from active teaching a year ago, left Cambridge for New York where tonight, at the Harvard Club of New York, he will give one of his famous "readings." A large number of Harvard graduates, including many of the leading figures in political and financial circles in New York, are to be on hand to hear the reading by their former English professor.

Boston Widow Held for Worthless Check

Springfield, April 5 (AP)—Mrs. Beatrice Bonni, 33, Boston widow, received examination in court today and was bound over to the Grand Jury on a charge of larceny by means of worthless checks. She was sent to jail in lieu of bonds of $1000.

She was arrested after she had purchased a car, giving checks totaling $450.

Driving Belt Hurls Boy, 9, to Death

Fitchburg, April 5 (AP)—Norman Ouellette, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ouellette, died as a result of a fractured skull received by being hurled against a machine when he fell on an eight-inch driving belt of a stone crusher in the rear of the Webber Lumber Company. He was playing on an embankment.

MORROW GIRLS ALL RIDE WITH LINDBERGH

Cuernavaca, Mex., April 5 (AP)—All three of the daughters of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow are air-minded. One of them in June will marry Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the foremost American aviator. The other two, since "sister" is to have an airman husband, are losing no chances to get some of her thrills for themselves.

Miss Elizabeth Morrow, sister of Col. Lindbergh's fiancee, Anne, flew with him yesterday for more than an hour, their trip in his small two-seated plane took them over the twin volcanoes, Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl.

Anne's other sister, Constance, went for an airplane ride, too, though hers was not so long as Elizabeth's. Anne herself did not go up until her two sisters had come back to earth.

Col. Lindbergh and the Morrows expected to return to Mexico City late today in order to see Constance, the youngest daughter, off to school after a 10-day visit with her parents. She will leave Mexico City tomorrow morning as a passenger on the Brownsville airmail line, proceeding to her school in Massachusetts.

ASKED TO HOLD STOCK THIEF

Police Inspector Joyce, prosecuting Robert Courtenay of Chicago on a charge of defrauding the Hotel Statler of $183, told Judge Zottoli in municipal court today the Baltimore police have asked to have Courtney held, alleging he stole negotiable stocks valued at $90sT.

The inspector requested Courtenay's bail be increased from $2500 to $20,000. Judge Zottoli deferred his decision pending arrival of photographs to identify the defendant as the man sought in Baltimore.

2 Prison Guards Lose Jobs After 2 Breaks

Providence, April 5 (AP)—William Griffin, yard officer at the state prison at Howard, was discharged at Howard, and Iver Holmes, hospital guard, was held in $2000 bail on a charge of negligence in letting prisoners escape, as a result of the jail break in which Thomas Di Mizio, 21, escaped, and Carlo De Rosa, 26, was recaptured after breaking his leg in jumping from a 22-foot wall.

BUILDER LOSES IN ROXBURY APPEAL

Following a public hearing marked by several clashes, the board of appeal in City Hall today sustained a ruling of the city building department dismissing a petition of John Basile to change building zone regulations applying to Center st., West Roxbury.

Canty said Senator Bacon opposed the change because it would affect property owners and because conditions were not stable for the erection of a big apartment house there, as desired by Basile. He also said Senator Bacon was "on the verge of a big victory in giving to the residents of that district a high way which will cost more than $1,000,000 and will be one of the best drives in any part of the State."

Both Basile and Jobe said the petition had the appoval of Rev. William P. McNamara, pastor of the Church of the Holy Name.

DRIVES TRUCK OUT AFTER 50 FOOT FALL

Paul Beaudion of Madison st., Atlantic, must have been kissed by "Lady Luck" when he started for work today.

Driving his five-ton truck, loaded with groceries and canned goods, down Schumacher's hill on the Newburyport turnpike in Topsfield, the heavy vehicle went out of control, ripped through a fence and rolled down a 50-foot embankment, turning over and over.

Beaudion crawled out of the mess of disturbed comestibles and discovered that he had sustained —a cut finger.

He worried the truck out of the hollow under its own power and, after reloading, got under way again carrying congratulations of State troopers.

'DON'T CHOOSE' EXPLAINED BY COOLIDGE

The second chapter of Calvin Coolidge's own story, "On Entering and Leaving the Presidency," is published in the May issue of Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan which appears on the newsstands today.

The present instalment is called "Why I Did Not Choose to Run," and is more startling in the sense of political revelations than the first chapter, though it is written in the same simple, human fashion.

Coolidge reveals for the first time what was in the back of his mind when he coined his famous phrase, "I do not choose to run," and why he expressed himself in those particular words.

TWO TERMS ENOUGH

He tells of the steps he found necessary to head off his nomination at Kansas City, despite the issuance of that statement.

He also discloses why he never said that he would refuse the nomination if it were tendered to him, why he did not declare for any candidate before the convention and why he believes no man should be President for more than two terms.

The publishers of Cosmopolitan yesterday felt that they could allow only one quotation from the article. The extract they permit is significant because it indicates Coolidge's attitude towards his future work. He says:

TITLE TO NOBILITY.

"They (retiring Presidents) have only the same title to nobility that belongs to all our citizens, which is the one based on achievement and character, so they need not assume superiority. It is becoming for them to engage in some dignified employment where they can be of service, as others are.

"Our country does not believe in idleness. It honors hard work. I wanted to serve the country again as a private citizen."

GALLAGHER AIDS POLICE IN NEW BUREAU PLAN

Plans for a bureau, at which police inspectors of Bay State cities and towns can get together and exchange information, will be drawn up as a result of a vote taken at the monthly meeting of the Massachusetts Police Chief's Association at the American House, at which Walter F. Gallagher of the law firm of Mayberry, Ham & Whit was the principal speaker.

W. F. Gallagher

Atty. Gallagher spoke on the subject, "Police As I See Them From Day to Day." He mentioned the movement to take billboards from the roadsides and highly praised the chiefs of police and fire departments for their stand on this question.

A committee of five was appointed to draw up plans for the new bureau, this committee consisting of Chiefs George R. Dean, Manchester; Edward J. Tighe, Revere; Michael Conlon, North Adams; Ernest Bishop, Quincy, and James E. Travers, Milton. Chief Dean was elected chairman.

Chief Travers brought the subject before the meeting and he presented a motion that the Chiefs' Association take steps which would lead to the different department investigators getting acquainted and being in a position to compare notes on the crimes which happen in their respective municipalities.

Chief Thomas O. D. Urquhart of Arlington amended the motion to provide for the association drawing up a bill and presenting it at the next session of the Legislature, which would make it compulsory on every police department in the State to send on officer daily to a meeting of detectives for the purpose of giving and receiving information.

BUREAU FAVORED

This amendment did not meet with the unanimous favor of the members, as they only received the report from President John F. Welch a short time before, of the work necessary to defeat the "Police Radio" bill, which contained a number of mandatory features which the police chiefs opposed as being against the best interests of police work.

A number of the chiefs spoke in favor of the creating of such a bureau and showed by experience how valuable it would be not only for the detection of criminals, but also as a school for the younger members of the detective forces.

It was said that criminals have certain methods of operating, especially burglars, and where slight clews are picked up in one city as to the identity of men when notes are compared with officers from another city, the chances would be greatly in favor of some officer being able to connect the information with somebody he knew.

This bureau, for a start will be made up by the departments in the metropolitan district, but will welcome officers from any other department in or out of the State. Chiefs from distant cities who spoke on the question said that if it was not possible to send a man to each meeting, they would be glad to send a letter with any information they had which might prove of value to the officers attending the meeting.

REPORT NEXT MONTH

Chief Frederick E. Cos of Woonsocket, R. I., was a guest at the meeting and spoke of the work of the association in his State. He also spoke of a joint meeting of the Massachusetts and Rhode Island associations. Chief Martin Feeney of Fall River spoke of the joint meeting and said that on the invitation of Senator Vanderbilt of Rhode Island, the meeting would be held at Vanderbilt's Oakland farm, just outside of Newport, in June.

Chief Feeney was named as chairman of the committee to arrange for this meeting and he will report at the May meeting of the association the date set for the gathering. Both associations will be the guests of Mr. Vanderbilt at a Rhode Island clambake.

Chief John F. Welch of Medford, president of the association, spoke of the fight waged by the association against the enactment of House bill 1031, which was "misnamed a "Police Radio Bill." He said that the House committee on ways and means had referred this legislation to the next annual session, but warned the members to watch carefully against the presenting of any bill which would be against their interests.

TAX PLAN MAY GO OVER YEAR

The legislative committee on taxation today reported "reference to the next annual session" on the report of the special taxation commission, which included among its recommendations a graded income tax law.

The action of the committee was foreseen when the Supreme Court recently informed the Legislature that a constitutional amendment would have to be put through before Massachusetts could put such a law in effect. The income tax is now based on a flat rate.

The committee recommended passage of a resolve for the continuation of the work of the special commission.

W. O. Hamblin of New Bedford Dead

Jersey City, N. J., April 5 (AP)—William Osborne Hamblin, 63, supervisor of drawing in the public schools here for 20 years, died today. His body will be sent to New Bedford, Mass., his native city, where he formerly taught.

Bay State Judge, 85, Returns Home With His Fourth Bride

North Brookfield, April 5 (AP) —Associate Justice Emerson L. Barnes, 85, gave his friends a surprise yesterday when he returned to his home with his fourth bride, Mrs. Christie A. (White) Barnes, 50, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Judge Barnes said they were married Wednesday in Syracuse by the Rev. M. A. Banning, pastor of the Delaware Baptist church.

Rev. J. F. Connell Celebrates High Mass

The Rev. John F. Connell, S. S. J., son of Mrs. Rose Connell of Medford, will celebrate a solemn high mass Sounday in St. Catherine's Church, Hayes sq., Charlestown, where he was once a parishioner. Fr. Connell was ordained to the priesthood on March 22 by Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore. He will leave on April 15 for Baltimore, where he will receive his appointment to work among the negroes of Maryand.

NEPONSET K. C. TO BREAKFAST

The fifth annual communion breakfast of Redberry Council, Knights of Columbus, will be Sunday morning in Walnut hall, Walnut st., Neponset.

Two hundred and fifty members are expected to attend the breakfast which will follow the 9 o'clock mass in St. Ann's Church. The mass will be celebrated by Rev. John J. O'Donnell, pastor.

The members will march from the church to the hall, headed by the Rev. J. J. Scannell, council chaplain.

Among the speakers are State Deputy John E. Swift, William H. O'Brien of the public utilities commission, Charles E. Fay and District Deputy William J. Henderson.

Grand Knight Francis V. O'Brien has appointed Daniel J. McLoughlin chairman of the committee. Assisting him are William Donovan, John S. Kiernan, Timothy Neville, Henry Glynn and Daniel Neville.

ASSESSOR QUITS IN MEDFORD

Resignation of Thomas D. Collins as a member of the Medford board of assessors, which was received by Mayor Larkin and which, Collins stipulated, was to become effective immediately, leaves the work of assessing the city in the hands of two new appointees, John D. Devaney and William F. Grady.

These two were confirmed only a few days before the time for annual assessments arrived. Collins, who has been chairman for five years, was defeated for re-election by Devaney.

The domestic help problem is solved by having a kitchenette apartment, and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

REPARATIONS CODE DECIDED

Paris, April 5 (AP)—The commission of experts seeking a settlement of the reparations problem is expected to engage in private exchanges of views for at least four days more are Owen D. Young, chairman, calls another plenary session.

When that plenary session is called probably the total amount of the allied claims against Germany will be discussed.

The view of French circles that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, was attempting to delay this discussion on the ground that the greatest delay was most beneficial to his cause, led to a meeting of four allied nations' delegations.

THEATERS

All Golden at the Tremont Is "The Silver Swan"

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

It has remained for the fading days of a season distinguished for the froth and frenzy of its musical production, to square accounts with the faithful playgoer and make some atonement for many hard nights spent in the theaters since last September. No matter what your own tender feeling may be on the subject, operetta isn't always as bad as it seems on some first nights. "The Silver Swan," now on exhibition at the Tremont, may be urged as an example of what the musical drama ought to be—even if it usually isn't. For this relief, let the fervent playgoer take to his own altar and offer up his thanks.

ALMOST unheralded, this new-est of the season's offerings crept into town. When it packs up its baggage and moves away, it will be remembered as the most glowing of the theater's springtime gestures. Captivating melodies by H. Maurice Jacquet, much after the fashion of the good old days of Strauss, weave their spell upon willing ears; romance in all its gay perplexities, streams through the story. And, behold! there are singers who really sing. Of course, there are other essentials to safe and sound operetta—and none are missing. You may laugh, if you choose, or you may sigh, with the silver noted heroine. You'll probably do a great deal of both. Everybody does.

Nicholas Young

"The Silver Swan" is just richly dressed Viennese operetta, brighter in all of its spots than most of them are in a few. For, besides its coaxing score, there is a story of natural freshness that runs as smoothly as the best written of plays; the interruptions are neither forced nor untimely. Every musical number fits perfectly into the narrative. A splendid chorus serves faithfully—and in good voice. The principals, of course, demand more attention. Not even the smallest role is neglected. Charles Purcell and Georgia Caine are the two most familiar to local playgoers. Purcell probably holds the world's record for having sung his way into the hearts of more prima donnas than any romantic songster on the musical stage. Here he simply carries on—most efficiently.

A new comedian bursts into bloom—Florenz Ames. He's a comic little stranger, and an artist to his finger-tips. For that good old Ziegfeldian term, pulchritude—and there is none more expressive for this occasion—Myrtle Clark may be highly recommended. And she knows intimately all the best upper notes. Bonnie Emerie, a wee brunette with an agreeable voice, keeps Mr. Purcell at his ballads at frequent intervals.

MAINE GIRL IS CANDIDATE FOR QUEST AWARD

Fryeburg, Me., believes Miss Leona B. McIntire, a postoffice employee, is the Typical American Girl. Miss McIntire has been nominated as a candidate for America's Typical Girl in the Boston Evening American-Smart Set Magazine Quest by Mrs. Charles H. Merrill of Intervale, New Hampshire.

Not only does Mrs. Merrill think Miss McIntire is qualified to represent herself as America's Typical Girl, but Fryeburg, Me., has no doubt that if this young lady is selected she will stand an excellent chance of winning the $5000 award which goes to the "Typical American Girl" to be selected by Smart Set Magazine in New York.

"Miss Typical New England" is to be sent to New York, all expenses paid, together with a chaperon, to compete with girls from other large cities.

HEADS CLUB

In nominating Miss McIntire, the following letter was sent by Mrs Merrill:

"I wish to nominate Miss Leona B. McIntire as the Typical American Girl because I think she is one.

She is five feet, six inches tall and has brown hair (not bobbed) and blue eyes. She was born in Fryeburg, Me., and graduated from Fryeburg Academy with scholastic honors.

"She is healthy and has a very pleasing personality. She plays basketball and tennis and enjoys swimming. She is president of the Business and Professional Woman's Club."

Today's mail also brings the nomination of Miss Bernadine Lovell, which reads as follows:

"Miss Bernadine Lovell is 17 years of age, weighs 120 pounds and is five feet seven inches tall. She is a blonde.

ROXBURY GIRL

"Miss Lovell attended the Belmont High School and is an accomplished pianist and organist. She also plays the mandolin, violin and other string instruments. She has played at many entertainments and was also organist in a Waverley theater. She is also very fond of reading."

Another candidate nominated today was Miss Mildred DeMuth of 154 Warren st., Roxbury

NOMINATION BLANK

Quest of Typical American Girl

(Any reader of The Boston Evening American may nominate a girl or young woman for title and honor of the TYPICAL AMERICAN GIRL in the Quest of the Smart Set Magazine and Hearst newspapers by filling out this blank):

SIGN BELOW:

I wish to nominate the following named person as a Typical American Girl, with the understanding that judging will be in accordance with the rules of the Quest:

Her Name Is .....

Her Address .....

State whether past 17 or give age.....

Name of person nominating .....

Address .....

(All nominations must be in the hands of the Quest Editor not later than April 15, 1929. Address Typical American Girl Quest Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq, Boston, Mass.)

Leaping Lena! $1000 Frogs Are Kidnaped!

Toledo, O., April 5 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Rana Catesbiana, aristocrats, have been kidnapped mysteriously. Their disappearance is a blow to some biological experimenters. They were spirited away from their de luxe tank apartment in a doctor's backyard. Other ordinary frogs were left behind. Mr. and Mrs. are valued at $100. Each is a foot and one-half long and weighs three pounds.

3 From Revere to Make Pilgrimage

The Rev. Timothy J. Holland, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Revere, and the Rev. John J. McGinley of the same church and Daniel W. Sweeney, Lynn, who has been chairman for M. C. O. F. of Revere, announced today they will be in Cardinal O'Connell's party on the pilgrimage to Rome, which begins April 19.

BARES FEDERAL JOB SELLING

Washington, April 5 (AP)—Letters telegrams and affidavits to show large sums were contributed in recent years to Republican campaign funds by postmasters and other federal office-holders in Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama and Tennessee were put into the record of the Senate patronage committee today by Chairman Brookhart.

Affidavits collected by the post-office department at the request of the committee disclosed that more than $2000 was contributed by 110 postmasters of Mississippi, one of the gang $2123. Some of the money, is affidavits said, went to E. P. Bee, husband of the negro Republican national committeewoman for that state.

Farmer Earl Longs for Old Home in Alberta

London, April 5 (AP)—All that glitters is not gold to the new Earl of Egmont, who until recently was plain Mr. Percival, an Alberta farmer. He is not so sure but that he was happier back in Canada.

"I have a sore throat," he complained to a representative of the Daily Mail at the ancestral estate at Ringwood, Hampshire. "And I am having trouble with my digestion. I don't like the bread here. I expect it is the change. I am used to hard work. Now I have nothing to do but hang around.

"Meanwhile the villagers are trying to "make out" the new Earl and his son, Viscount Percoval. The Viscount, seemingly oblivious of the dignity of his new state plays around with them in the market square.

Flying Plane Picks Up a Dozen Eggs

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., (AP)—A contraption whereby planes in flight pick up articles from the ground has a catapult that projects an article toward the plane as a rope dangling from the plane picks it up. The idea is to prevent shock. In a test a dozen eggs mounted to the plane unbroken.

WOMAN, 67, DIES IN ROXBURY

Roxbury today mourned the death of one of its oldest and most widely known woman residents, Mrs. Mary A. Otto, 67, of 49 Linden Park st. Mrs. Otto, the widow of William A. Otto, was the mother of five children and had 13 grandchildren. She was prominent for years in church and charitable activities.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home tomorrow with solemn requiem high mass at St. Francis de Sales Church.

ALICE BRADLEY

famous among FAMOUS EXPERTS ON FOOD and entertaining now presents to smart hostesses the new FRO-JOY 2-FLAVOR PINT PACKAGE

Alice Bradley is the renowned Cooking Editor of the Woman's Home Companion, and Principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery.

BRIGHT hostess—here at last is a modern answer to the old disturbing question of what to offer your party guests, or your bridge guests, or your own family—tonight, or tomorrow, or any time!

Now, each week Fro-joy Ice Cream comes in a new 2-flavor pint package—with unusual flavor blends by Alice Bradley—out-of-the-ordinary combinations. Each week's combination is smart—modern—selected with a canny eye to harmonized tastes and harmonizing colors. And so enticingly, lusciously good!

And each week's package contains a new leaflet—bringing you expert advice on entertaining from Alice Bradley herself—menus, refreshment suggestions, all sorts of tips and pointers that can help mark you as a talented hostess.

And remember that these Fro-joy 2-flavor treats bring health as well as delightful pleasure. For this package reaches a new high pinnacle of Fro-joy creamy goodness—a new pinnacle for all ice cream, no matter where you buy or what you pay.

Fro-joy is pure—scientifically made by experts—each package wrapped three times and sealed for complete protection. And Fro-joy is health-giving as few foods are—concentrately full of the famous Fro-joy "Youth Units,"—phosphorus, calcium (lime) and organic iron, which give stamina, strength, youth.

GENERAL ICE CREAM CORPORATION.

THIS WEEK

THE NEW FRO-JOY 2-FLAVOR PINT PACKAGE CONTAINS

MAPLE WALNUT & ORANGE PINEAPPLE ICE CREAM

"Nuts and fruit always go well together, the meaty, nutty taste setting off the sparkling freshness of the fruits. As with all Fro-joy Ice Creams, fresh fruit flavors only are used so you are certain of securing the full measure of their deliciousness."

—ALICE BRADLEY

And Fro-joy is always available in pint packages in vanilla or chocolate or both combined, and in Neapolitan, which is vanilla, chocolate and strawberry. A constant favorite is vanilla, served with berries, chocolate sauce or sliced fruits.

"Youth Units"—What are they?—"Youth Units" are food elements that, when eaten regularly, have the power to rebuild and rejuvenate cells. Only foods which contain the essential vitamins and the vital mineral salts—soluble iron, calcium, and phosphorus—are capable of keeping cells young. Many people age prematurely because their diets do not include a sufficient amount of cell-rejuvenating "Youth Units."

The richest of all foods is "Youth Units" is milk—except for pure ice cream, such as Fro-joy. And the new Fro-joy 2-flavor pint package contains three times as many "Youth Units" as a pint of milk!

"Fro-joy" ICE CREAM

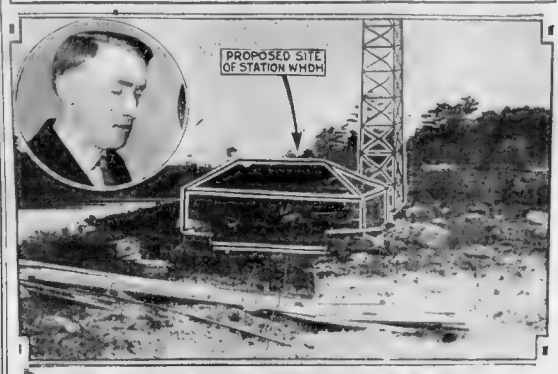
POWERFUL RADIO AT GLOUCESTER



NEW 1000-WATT STATION UNDER PROCESS OF ERECTION

So efficient was the low-powered station WEPS in giving aid and information to fishermen that the Federal Radio Commission readily granted a license for the erection of station WHDH in West Gloucester. R. C. Matheson (inset), who was treasurer and plant manager of WEPS, will be in charge of the new station. (Staff photos.)

75 in Northeastern Musical Show Cast

Seventy-five students will take part tonight and tomorrow night in the Northeastern University musical comedy, "Top o' the World," in the Fine Arts Theater.

One member of the collegiate cast not a student is "Husky," sledding mascot of the university, presented two years ago by Leonard Sepalla, famous musher.

New Transfer Point for Fields Corner

Beginning tomorrow the Boston Elevated will establish a new transfer point at Dorchester and Savin Hill aves. Passengers may transfer from the Andrew sq. station line to Dorchester ave. cars running to the Fields Corner station, or to the "belt" bus line, and from Fields Corner to cars going to the Andrew sq. station.

YOUNG NIMRODS FILMED ON VELOT

Scene: The high veldt, British East Africa, 1000 miles from civilization.

Characters: Dave Martin, Doug Oliver and Dick Douglas, American Boy Scouts; and Martin Johnson, famous explorer and big game hunter.

(All four are peering through a screen of grass at some sort of moving wild creatures.)

Doug: I bet I can shoot one of those with my bow and arrow.

Johnson: No. You might just wound the poor thing and let it suffer.

Doug: Gee, though, I'd like to see how my aim is.

Johnson: All right, then, but wait—I'll tie a handkerchief around the arrow head so it will just scare the animal, not hurt him.

(He blunts the arrow. Doug fits it to his bow-string, draws it to the head, and—)

Greater Boston Boy Scouts will have opportunity tomorrow to see —and hear—how the drama came out. Here's an advance tip, though. It wasn't a squirrel Doug Oliver wanted to practice archery on. It wasn't a monkey or a jackal or even a gazelle, either.

It was a full-grown, bad-tempered African lion.

The adventures that Doug and Dick and Dave had in the veldt with Johnson and the latter's wife are all recorded in a moving picture reel that has more thrills to the yard than there are in a whole dime novel.

That film and the amazing wild animal movie, "Simba," will be shown FREE at Tremont Temple tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock sharp for Boy Scouts of Greater Boston who are invited to be guests of the Boston Evening American. Scout badges and Scout uniforms will serve as admission tickets.

REBUILD RADIO STATION FOR FISHERMEN

By FRED TOVE, Radio Editor.

Radio, born of the storm-tossed sea, is tossing again to the sea. Within 30 days Boston will have a fourth high-powered radio station whose chief reason for being will be to maintain contact with the 7000 or more hardy fishermen who sail out of the ports of Boston and Gloucester.

WHDH are the call letters which the Federal Radio Commission has assigned to the new 1000-watt station, now under construction on a picturesque hill in West Gloucester overlooking Gloucester Bay.

MARKET PRICES

The current market prices of prices of fish at Boston, the location of the best fishing grounds at the moment; vital matters concerning health and sickness, births and deaths in the families of the fishermen, weather reports, all these will be sent out.

Also, there will be bulletins advising land-lubbers what to expect in the market of products of the sea. Meantime, musical programs by the best organizations in New England will be supplied after the manner of the finest commercial broadcasting stations of the land.

WHDH'S START

Starting in a modest way, with the call letters WEPS and operating on only 100 watts of power, the Gloucester station, which is opening its Boston studios early in May, so thoroughly demonstrated its value as a service to mariners, that the Federal Radio Commission gladly granted a construction permit for a 1000-watt Western Electric transmitter, duplicating the new WNAC apparatus, and gave the owners permission to use the excellent wave of 361.2 meters. This position is midway between WBZ and WEEI on the dials.

The station is owned and operated by the fishermen of Gloucester, under the name of the Matheson Radio Company, Inc.

REP. CROWTHER BACKS MELLON TAX STAND

The "radio announcement of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon that he is in sympathy for a downward revision of the federal income tax on earned income, and that the treasury department will do what it can to bring about such an alteration, should give encouragement to those who are fighting for such a result."

This statement was made by Rep. Thomas C. Crowther, of Fall River, in discussing the movement for tax cuts on earned income, which is being supported by Hearst newspapers throughout the country.

"The clear-cut announcement of the secretary of the treasury should hearten all who favor modification of the income tax so far as it applies to earned income," continued Rep. Crowther.

"The federal tax on earned incomes hits the professional man and woman hard. It is extremely unfair to them in many ways. There is no doubt in my mind that it should be completely revised and without delay.

"The wage earner or professional man who lives up to the American standard today and keeps out of debt while doing so is fortunate, to say nothing of putting aside a reasonable amount of money for old age or for his dependents in case of death.

"The present exemption of 25 per cent allowed on earned income is far too small. It should be at least doubled and if tripled that would be better. Many single men, who have to pay income tax to the government are unable to marry because they are caring for parents or other members of their families. To give such an exemption of only $1500 is ridiculous.

"The present exemption of $3500 allowed married men should be increased to at least $5000 as the cost of living has materially increased since the income tax law was passed."

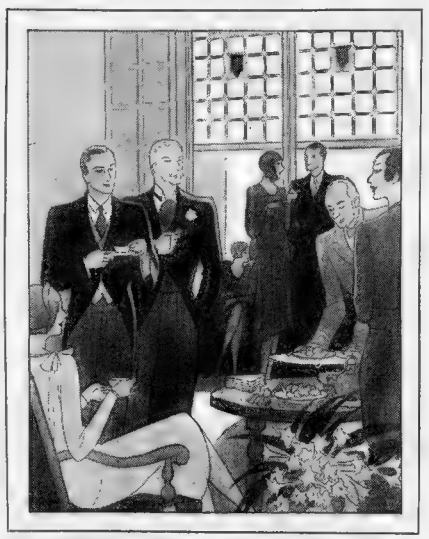
The ENGLISH BISCUIT,
fresh from English Ovens in America



ENGLISH biscuits! In their wide variety they mean fine flours carefully blended, a myriad of delicate flavors from strawberry to chocolate, butter so special that the finest table butter will not do. And they mean much more than these delicate ingredients; for it has taken generations of tradition, the secrets of which have been handed down from father to son, to perfect the confections that melt so deliciously on your palate.

Perhaps these famous biscuits helped make your stay in England memorable. Perhaps, when you sip your cooling drinks, or take your tea, or cap the night with a glass of fresh milk, you recall those pleasant days and their dainty "cakes." How well one or two of them would go just then!

And now you may have them!—any time such a crisp, fresh morsel of pastry would be appropriate. For English ovens have come to America, along with the inimitable traditions that make of biscuit baking an art. Ask for them—Weston's English Quality Biscuits—at your grocery store. You will find them there either in bulk or in a smart little package, at a price no greater than that of the ordinary cakes and cookies you have been buying.

JUBILEE...the biscuit is rich with eggs and clear honey. The filling is cream blended with both lime and lemon flavors.

CANUCK . . . the shape is patterned after the Canadian maple leaf, hence the name. And the filling is a rich maple blend.

WEDDING BELL CREAMS . . . rich shortcake, delicately flavoured with orange.

"HEAT CONTROL NEVER FORGETS"

says Priscilla—

"Getting dinner is so easy with my new gas range. The HEAT CONTROL device is simply wonderful! I can put everything from roast to dessert into the oven, set the indicator, and forget them until meal time."

THIS is just another one of the many ways in which gas is helping to relieve women of household drudgery—give them more time with the children and for cultural pleasures that they enjoy.

The chart tells Priscilla just what foods can be cooked at the same time, with the same amount of heat, and also gives the oven temperature required. She sets the HEAT CONTROL and gas works for her while she does something else.

Then there are other reasons, too, why gas is the better fuel for cooking. Its quick flame sears steak or chops as nothing else can. No juices are lost.

Gas gives instant service—so that breakfasts are on time. It is clean—no kitchen clutter. It is always dependable and the most economical of fuels.

Visit your gas company for a special demonstration of gas range cooking. While there, ask to see other gas appliances—for water heating, house heating, refrigeration, incineration, laundry drying, garage heating, fireplaces, store heating, etc.

A small amount down brings to you any of these wonderful helps. Pay the balance on convenient terms.

Cook with Gas ...THE BETTER FUEL

Widow Shot Because Man Gave Her Candy

New York, April 5 (INS)—Mrs. Katherine Lotock, a widow, was shot four times as she lay in bed in her Brooklyn home early today. Harry Klein, 32, was arrested in connection with the shooting. Police said he was jealous because another man had given her a bag of candy.

LAST WEEK FOR FLAG ESSAY WRITERS

Boys and girls entered in the great patriotic and educational Flag Contest of the United States Flag Assn., have until one week from today in which to compete for the national awards.

All papers to be prepared in this nationwide competition must be finished by not later than April 12.

These papers will consist of answers to 75 questions pertaining to the American Flag and an essay on "Old Glory's Greatest Glory."

Contestants must send their finished papers to the supervisors of the local units with which they are entered.

Individual contests will then be held at those various local units following the above date and the winners chosen by the juries of awards.

Each jury of award will select three winners, the first award to be the "Old Glory" medal of the United States Flag Association, while the second and third winners will each receive the "Testimonial of Honorable Mention."

The papers of the winners of the first award will be sent to the Flag Contest Editor of the Boston Evening American, who, in turn, will have the Regional jury of awards select the boy and girl who are to receive patriotic pilgrimages and scholarships.

The two boys and two girls who are to receive trips around the world will be chosen from among the contestants who win the patriotic pilgrimages.

WARNERS WILL FILM 'SO LONG, LETTY'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

(Copyright 1929, By Universal Service Inc.)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 5—Charlotte Greenwood turned her back very coldly and firmly on a Warner Brothers proposition made her to play the wisecracking chorus girl in "The Gold Diggers," the same one that Jobyna Howland made so popular on the stage. Charlotte had other fish to fry. She wanted to bring "So Long Letty," her greatest stage success into the talkies, and she didn't want to ruin that chance by being busy with "The Gold Diggers."

Charlotte is to have her way. "So Long Letty" is going into production almost immediately, with Lloyd Bacon directing and Bert Roach and Claude Gillingwater in the leading roles.

MARY PICKFORD certainly has changed. She is ambitious to play the part of Katherine in "The Taming of the Shrew." Mary is not only ambitious to play this part, but she and Douglas Fairbanks are working together on a scenario of this Shakespearean drama with the idea of bringing it to the screen.

There has been much talk that Doug and Mary would make a picture together—in fact Mary told me that she and Doug wanted to co-star in a talkie. The story leaked out that it was "Romeo and Juliet" that they had in mind. Apparently the much more lively drama, "The Taming of the Shrew" and not the romantic "Romeo and Juliet."

THE radio is to be featured in the talkies, and who is better fitted to do this than Radio Pictures? Graham McNamee, the prize announcer of the world, will be starred. Again I say what could be more appropriate. Lucrezia Bori the opera singer, and others who have contributed to radio entertainment will be both seen and heard.

It's certainly a break for the listeners to both see and hear their own particular favorites—and the movies did it, my children, the movies.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR., is returning to the type of role in the movies in which he started—that of a very young boy with flapper tendencies. Now Doug is to be co-starred with Loretta Young by First National. They ought to be a great team of youngsters, and they ought to go well with those who find the younger generation fascinating. Their first is "Fast Life" by John Hyner. Sounds like cocktail parties, strip poker, etc.

Held in $25,000 for Wool Theft

Charged with the larceny of a shipment of wool valued at $14,000 and an automobile truck valued at $7200, Eugene Kelly, 28, of Pearl st., Charlestown, was arraigned in municipal court today and held in $25,000 bail after the case was continued for one week. Kelly is the third man arrested in connection with the alleged theft, two others having been sentenced recently to Concord Reformatory.

Warner Brothers in German Talkie War

Berlin, April 5 (INS)—Germany is soon to be the battle ground of a struggle between American and German "talkie" film companies. The clash was precipitated when Warner Brothers announced they were investing $1,000,000 here to produce "German "talkie" pictures under Western Electric Company patents, competing with the system using German patents, and which is backed by the recent European combine.

Guard Is Held in R. I. Prison Break

Providence, April 5 — Charged with negligently suffering prisoners in his charge to escape, Iva Holmes, hospital guard at the Rhode Island State prison at Howard, was under arrest today. According to the warden, Holmes unlocked the hospital door, permitting Thomas Di Mizio and Carlo Di Rosa, long-term convicts, access to the recreation yard. They scaled the wall and fled, Di Rosa being captured when he broke his leg. A State-wide hunt is on for Di Mizio.

The DELUGE

A SIX-DAY STORY

by S. FOWLER WRIGHT

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

A deluge sweeps over the civilized world. Martin Webster, a lawyer, saves his wife, Helen, and two children in the flood, but is cut off from them by the waters. He thinks they must be dead. Claire Arlington, young and beautiful wife of a middle-aged invalid, also escapes death, and, swimming to a bit of land, runs across Jephson and Norwood, derelicts like herself. She overhears them fighting over her.

She swims to another point of land and is picked up by Martin, who manages to get her to a tunnel where he has sought refuge. After various perilous experiences she is captured by a leader of a gang of lawless men, taken to their camp and left securely bound.

Martin rescues her and wins her love. They are preparing to leave the tunnel when a conflict ensues, in which several desperadoes are killed by Martin and Claire. Meanwhile Tod Aldworth, who saved Helen and the babies from death, falls in love with Helen. He had been freed from a murder charge by Martin in the old days. Helen learns this, and begs him to find her husband. He agrees.

Tom wipes out the gang and tells Martin how matters stand between him and Helen. They decide to let the women settle the question of husbands. Martin is elected leader. He insists on implicit obedience to all his commands.

CHAPTER 5.

MARTHA BARNES was a widow who had four children. One had been killed by a falling wall, but she had rescued two.

Davy, oldest son, was saved at a mine mouth.

When Sir John Debenham left the ruins of his country house, his wife and daughter cowered in the limousine.

He and his wife died within the day as the car plunged down a cliff at the Barnes cottage; but Sybil Debenham was alive, with a cracked head and a broken leg, from which injuries she would doubtless have died where she lay but for the assistance which she received from Martha Barnes, o whose household she became a regular inmate. She was an ineffectual, fluffy girl, who had been carefully trained to incompetence. Now, in wiser hands, she was being inured to many useful occupations, including the care of the two younger children.

Martha raised her head. "Davy," she said, "make 'aste to Ted Nuttall's. Tell 'im Cooper's gang's on the way, an' there'll be 'all to pay if they don't clear the women out sharp. Then borrow Ben Todd's bike, an' get out by Souter's Lane, an' find Tom Aldworth. Tell 'im I'd better be back today, or there'll be no cause to 'urry."

There was dawn in the northeast sky when Joe Harker, riding somewhat wearily, approached the locality in which Jerry Cooper had established himself and his following.

Jerry Cooper had been a builder's merchant in a South Midland town, known as the richest man in his native city but he was discovered in thievery and lost his post as councilman.

He had established himself with his following, which consisted of 27 men and five women. There were no children.

He lived and worked for one object—the overthrow of those who had cast him out, and for his dominion over them.

He had already explored the limits of the land which the seas had spared, and knew its extent, resources and remaining inhabitants better than Tom Aldworth or any other member of the larger community had exerted himself to do.

He had obtained sufficient arms and ammunition for the equipment of his followers. He had horses to mount them.

His object was the creation of a military force, the efficiency of which would compensate for the smallness of its numbers.

The house in which he lived was barred and barricaded as though it were besieged already.

Joe, coming early to this military establishment, found himself confronted by "Capt." Cooper, who was seated at the further side of a deal table.

"Who are you?" said the Captain.

"Joe Harker." And then as one who drops a bomb from a casual hand: "Bellamy's dead," giving a nama to the giant leader of the gan repulsed by Martin and Claire.

Jerry Cooper started inwardly. The news was of importance to his plans. He had watched the desultory wanderings of Bellamy's gang with a natural contempt, an' had already decided to assimilate it.

"I didn't ask you about Bellamy, but about yourself. What were you?"

"A jockey."

"I won't work. I can find things out if I'm left alone."

Jerry nodded. "I want a man like that."

"Bellamy's dead, as I told you before—Fighting over a girl. There's a girl and a man wandering loose. I don't know where from. Bellamy stole the girl. Then she got clear, and they broke his head. They're devils to fight. Then he followed them into a railway tunnel. He didn't come back. Now there's Tom Aldworth, and Jack Tolley, and their lot, trying to wipe out, what's left of the gang. They are all fighting each other. It's a fair mix-up. If you drop on them now, you can get what's left. I want the girl."

"Could you manage her?" said Jerry. "She sounds a live one."

"Easy," said Joe, grinning re-

CRIPPLE GETS HER WISH

STILL BLOW UP RAZES HOUSE

Springfield, April 5—A terrific explosion that was heard for miles, blew out all four walls of a two-story stucco dwelling in Lincoln st., Keating Hill, a suburb, today.

Wreckage of one of the largest redistilling plants discovered in this part of the state was found in the cellar, according to police, who estimated the capacity at 500 gallons a day.

A woman and two men were seen leaving the place about half an hour before the explosion and state police believe they started the still in operation and left it unattended.

Twenty big drums, each of which had contained 52 gallons of alcohol, according to police, were blown 100 feet from the house by the force of the blast. Fire broke out with the explosion.

Police of Agawam and state police are investigating. The owner of the premises is a Springfield man.

YEAR IN JAIL ON DRUG CHARGE

Charged with having had three kinds of narcotic drugs in his possession, Chin Gee, a Chinese, of Tyler st., South End, was sentenced today to one year in jail.

The penalty was imposed by Judge Joseph Zottoli in municipal court after Special Officers Frank Monahan and John Laidlow had told of arresting Gee, searching him and finding him to have been carrying packets of opium, morphine and a third drug, as yet unidentified.

Probe Fatal Truck Crash-Fire in Revere

Motor Vehicle Inspector Edward O'Hare of the Chelsea-Revere district began an investigation of the accident in which Charles Anderson, 18, of 30 Vernon ave., Somerville, was burned to death when the motor truck in which he was riding struck a telegraph pole in front of 1019 Broadway, Revere, and turned over. An inquest will be held in a few days in Chelsea district court.

MEDFORD GIRL, 10, TO SEE THE WORLD THROUGH BOOKS

Little Virginia Dodge of Medford is going to have a dream come true.

That doesn't happen to everybody, of course, but not everybody has had to live as much in dreams as has 10-year-old Virginia. Until now, she hasn't found the real, hurly-burly waking world too kind to her.

Virginia, you see, can't walk. She has been very sick for almost as long as she can remember. For months and months, pain has tortured her. That's why she has learned to shut her eyes and live in a land of make-believe.

She has invented little games for herself—and the one she has always loved best has been that of the fairy wishes. You can wish three times, you know, and then the fairy comes with a magic wand and the wishes are granted.

In her secret heart, Virginia finally selected the three wishes she wished most. First, she wished to be able to leave her wheel chair and see the big world and all the beautiful things within it. Second, she wished to have company, boys and girls to play with. Thirdly, and most of all, she wanted to go to school and learn to read and write like other children.

A substitute for the fairy volunteered to take the fairy's place. It was a member of the Medford school committee. He told his fellow committeemen all about Virginia and her dream.

The school committee arranged for her to learn the things that are taught in schoolrooms.

They ordered teachers and instructors to go every day to Virginia's home at 4 West st. with books and maps and blackboards and everything.

They told Virginia the news of today. They told her that the world of books would be opened to her so that she could go to stranger and more interesting places. They told her that she could learn the useful things that will some day enable her to earn a living as well as anybody. They didn't need to tell her more. She knew her dream wish had come true.

Twohig Challenges Harriman to Debate

Representative Twohig of South Boston today challenged Henry I. Harriman to meet him in public debate on the question of public ownership versus public control of the Boston Elevated, either on Boston Common, Faneuil Hall or the Gardner Auditorium.

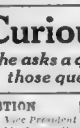
Harriman is chairman of the Boston Elevated trustees and Twohig is a member of the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs and one of the foremost advocates of public ownership.

The Curious Quizzer

Every day he asks a question and pictures those questioned.

THE QUESTION

Do you think Vice-President Curtis' sister should have the social standing usually accorded the wife of a Vice-President?



ELEANOR GORANSON, 68 Salford st., Wollaston—I think that the social circles in Washington should accept Vice-President Curtis' sister into their ranks the same as they would the wife of any Vice-President. Vice-President Curtis is not married and he has made his sister his hostess. I think that anyone who does not recognize her as such is directing a snub at the Vice-President himself.

MADELINE KANE, 20 Hunt st., Auburndale—I can see no reason why Vice-President Curtis should not be given the same social standing as the wife of a Vice-President. Someone must act as his hostess and whoever the Vice-President wishes to act in this capacity should be given the usual social position that would be given her if she was his wife. If Mrs. Gann was not capable of handling the duties of a hostess the wife of a vice president there would be some reason for not accepting her, but she is capable and her rank should not be lowered any.

ALBERT RYDER, 108 Sisson st., Providence—It looks to me that someone has a grudge against Vice-President Curtis' sister. Of course, if society leaders do not choose to accept Mrs. Gann the same as they would accept the wife of a Vice-President, that is their privilege, but officially, as long as the Vice-President is not married, she should be listed the same as his wife would be listed.

* * *

CHARLES DOYLE, 33 Massasoit ave., Providence—In my mind all the talk about social standing and such in Washington is silly. This is supposed to be a democratic country and one person is as good as another. It is only natural where Vice-President Curtis is not married that the duties of hostess should fall to his sister. I don't see how any other arrangement could be made. She should be recognized as such just the same as handling the duties of a hostess the wife of a vice president.

NEWS OF BOSTON MARKETS

OIL PROBLEM IS LIKELY TO BE SOLVED

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

Despite seemingly adverse decisions by federal authorities on the oil conservation plan, designed to cut down wastage of national resources, a solution of the problem seems probable. President Reeser of the American Petroleum Institute says the Supreme Court has ruled minerals are "not interstate commerce," and oil is a mineral. If it is definitely determined the oil problem must be dealt with by states, the machinery is already at hand, governors of major oil-producing states having already been called into conference.

Larger orders for gasoline are reported in the midcontinent market with the advance of spring in the North. The vicious features of the gasoline tax system are flayed by directors of the American Petroleum Institute. The directors are unopposed to a reasonable tax where all revenue is used solely for highway purposes. But they hold the tendency to divert gasoline tax funds to other purposes "unsound and vicious," declare the growing total is the subject of increasing public and editorial comment and concern and place the gasoline tax in category of "sales or consumption taxes" opposed by economists and federal legislators.

"State taxes paid by motorists average around 25 per cent of average filling station price of gasoline," it is explained, "and evidently the average tax has passed reasonable bounds. In many cases the present tax is unfair to users of gasoline and harmful to the gasoline business. If the tendency to increase amount of tax prevails, it will have the effect of reducing the ratio of buying gasoline sales and diminishing tax revenue." The nation's aggregate gasoline tax in 1928 is reported by U. S. Bureau of Roads at $300,000,000. Tax yield this year is expected to total $450,000,000.

Yesterday in this column we stated: "When the United States Civil Service Commission issued its latest communication to Postmaster Charles R. Gow, it declared private corporations were adopting civil service methods. Naturally this, if true, was a topic of considerable interest in circles of business and finance. So we asked the Civil Service Commission for particulars, and were furnished with a list of about a half dozen corporations, nearly all outside of New England. Then we asked the corporations for particulars. The first reply received is from J. L. Lovitt of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. (under Mitten management), who says no employment tests are being used at the present time. Mr. Lovitt adds: "We, however, are in the process of developing them, but they will not be installed for some time to come."

Now comes another reply. This is from the Phenix Mutual Life Insurance Co., Hartford, to which the United States Civil Service Commission referred us. Miss Florence L. Sexton, supervisor of the Phenix Mutual's Employment Division, says: "This company has had experience with two psychological tests; one, Dr. Pearson's clerical test, and one, Test VI, produced by the Bureau of Personnel Research, which was formerly owned by Carnegie Institute of Technology in Pittsburgh. The first test is on the market and the second is a proprietary test owned by the members who formerly contributed to the Bureau of Personnel Research. Consequently, we do not feel free to give you this latter one. We do state that this is copying the methods of the United States Civil Service Commission, but that perhaps it gives an some slight index to the intellectual capacity of an applicant."

We have the following from one of Boston's biggest industrial achievement leaders: "I am particularly interested in your communication with the Civil Service Commission and its claim that private enterprises have adopted its methods. Of course, it is obvious that no private corporation will ever permit an independent agency to select its personnel, but the commission evidently has reference to the creation of special employment departments within its organization for the purpose of passing upon questions of employment or discharge.

"This, I submit, is quite distinct from the procedure employed in the Government service, inasmuch as the control of all of the Department is under one management and the Employment Department is subject to such changes in policy as the operating heads find necessary for the purpose of controlling the efficiency of the organization."

* * *

Note that this is not a controversy as to the merits or demerits of civil service, but merely concerns the facts regarding its at leged extension into private industry.

American Telephone

The Largest Publis Utility in the World.

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is the largest public utility in the world.

It owns, controls or is substantially interested in two dozen telephone companies, including the New England.

These companies furnish service throughout the United States. They connect with Canada, Cuba and Europe.

The company, with its numerous subsidiaries, is known as the Bell System, named after the Charlestown artist-inventor.

It operates as a connecting link between the subsidiaries, in charge of toll communications.

American Telephone also owns 98 per cent of the Western Electric Co., manufacturing telephones, radios and "talking film" equipment.

Since 1921, the growth of the company has outstripped the growth of the country. Increased use of the telephone over long-distance wires has been a contributing factor, fostered by rate slashes.

Last year American Telephone spent $400,000,000 in expansion, and its program alone, this line calls for like or larger expenditures annually for at least five years, according to unofficial reports.

The expansion adds to the value behind the stock. Earnings in 1928 averaged $12.11 a share, against the average of $11.63 a share over a seven-year period.

A remarkable feature of American Telephone's "partnership" is that it has 454,596 stockholders, with average holdings of 28 shares each. "Few if any other corporations can equal this unusual distribution.

All stocks are subject to market reactions, but American Telephone is held steadier than many because it is what the Street calls "closely held."

Rumors of big merger developments, though frequently denied, are persistently circulated in connection with this stock.

Under favorable stock market conditions, the price of American Telephone shares can reasonably be expected to appreciate along with those of other investment issues in the same general class.

STOCK BUYERS ASK

O. R. S., Mattapan—I have 50 shares of Waldorf and 25 of Barnadall. Should I sell?

Ans.—Not on basis of company earnings or outlook. The credit tangle is the market's "fly in the ointment."

L. J. F., Concord, N. H.—I am holding Rio Grande Oil. Should I sell?

Ans.—It is not suggested that you sell, provided you own the shares outright. It pays from $2 and 3 per cent in stock, and is reported per earning at an annual rate of $8 a share.

H. G. G., Randolph—I am thinking of buying 100 shares of Bethlehem Steel common. What do you think of this company?

Ans.—Outlook good industrially and marketwise.

J. J. D., Pearl st.—I bought some Mohawk Carpet and was disappointed. Would you switch to Skelly Oil?

Ans.—Liking both, no particular advantage is seen in switching.

V. L. W., South Station—Should I continue to hold New Haven preferred and common?

Ans.—It is suggested you do so, provided your holdings do not represent too large a proportion of your capital.

F. M. N., Springfield.—I have Standard Oil of New York, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Texas. Is it advisable to hold?

Ans.—Outlook appears good for all three companies in which you are a stockholding partner.

W. E. B., Worcester.—What are the prospects for the new Canadian Ford issue?

Ans.—They appear bright.

H. E. R., Scituate.—What would be your choice between Anaconda and Kennecott?

Ans.—Both are good with no special reasons for picking one in preference to the other.

H. G. G., Lynn.—I hold General Electric. Would it be advisable to sell?

Ans.—Not unless you are holding too much of it. It is never advisable to have all one's eggs in one basket, as the saying goes.

O. I. P., Chestnut Hill.—I have 500 shares of Kreuger & Toll together with the accompanying list of sound bonds. Should I keep Kreuger & Toll, in your opinion?

Ans.—The answer is yes.

D. R. R., Chelsea—Which do you like better, North Butte or East Butte or Arcadian?

Ans.—Our selection from among the three named would be North Butte.

N. N. H., Dover, N. H.—Are General Motors and Packard entitled to good ratings?

Ans.—We accord good ratings to both of the issues you name.

L. O. M., Milton—I hold 100 shares of Imperial Oil, Ltd., which I have had for more than a year. It is held in due proportion to the rest of my list. Should I sell.

Ans.—No reason for selling it appears at this time.

H. J. U., Worcester—Do you regard the present stock market as dangerous?

Ans.—There is danger in the stock market at any time. You find a certain amount of risk involved in almost everything.

G. F. F., Braintree—I have only $200 saved. What can I buy to make money quickly.

Ans.—There is no way you have is too small for stock market purposes Keep it in the savings bank until you have accumulated more.

New York Standard to Kill Oil Well in Curtailment

Los Angeles, April 5.—General Petroleum Corp. (Standard Oil Co. of New York) well Oeschner No. 2, new producer, 6¼ miles northeast of Kettleman Hills field, is estimated flowing 29,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day, containing probably 1500 barrels of oil. The present intention is to kill the well in conformity with field curtailment plans, but gas will be allowed to flow probably two or three days to insure successful shutting in.

Clark President of the Old Colony

At a meeting of directors of the Old Colony railroad, C. Peter Clark was elected president, taking the place of Fayette S. Curtis, who died recently. Howard Stockton was reelected vice-president.

W. H. Wright, assistant to the executive vice-president of the New Haven railroad, was appointed by the directors a trustee of the Boston Terminal Company, representing the Old Colony railroad. At a recent meeting of the directors of the Union Freight railroad, A. P. Russell, executive vice-president of the New Haven, was elected president of the Union Freight in place of Fayette S. Curtis.

Says Pupils Drink at Malden Dances

That drinking is common at dances conducted by fraternities was the assertion of Edward J. Bushell, member of th Malden School Committee, speaking before the auxiliary o Division 37, Hibernians, in Malden.

Committeeman Bushell was speaking of the case of a Malden pupil who had been suspended from school when found guilty of rum running in the Malden court. Mr. Bushell declared it would be a drastic act to expel the boy and suspension until the opening of schools next fall, which would put him back a year in his studies, seemed to be the punishment which a majority of the school committee favored.

He declared whereas much publicity attended this boy's actions, nothing was said about the drinking which is taking place at the fraternity dances, whose attendants "come from another part of the city."

CAPTAIN LOST IN 11-DAY BATTLE WITH THE SEA

Philadelphia, April 5 (AP)—The auxiliary schooner Nomad was at anchor in Philadelphia Harbor today, her skipper was in a watery grave and her millionaire owner and crew of two were resting from the strenuous efforts in 11 days battle with angry seas.

The 125-foot pleasure craft was towed into port here early today by Coast Guard patrol boat 107 from a point 18 miles off Cape May, where it had been sighted, apparently aimlessly drifting, by Ensign W. C. Anderson, Coast Guard aviator.

Aboard the schooner was Customs Officer Sterner, who told of the Nomad's terrifying log as it had been related to him by the owner, Leland H. Ross of New York city. Ross and the crew, Richard J. French, steward, and Henry C. Bush, sailor, were in their bunks below decks.

PUT WIFE ASHORE.

The Nomad, Sterner said, put out from Charleston, S. C., 11 days ago, flying the pennant of the New York Yacht Club. Ross, as if acting on premonition, placed his wife ashore just before they left. Within a few hours the motors failed and, when efforts to repair them failed, sail was set.

Capt John L. Schofield was swept overboard while inspecting the rudder.

ENGINES SUBMERGED.

Day after day Ross and his crew worked to keep the craft headed into the seas. Water flooded the stores and submerged the engines. A distress signal was flown on the 11th day, with all on board prostrated by exhaustion. The Nomad was sighted by the aviator and a patrol boat despatched to assist her.

Sterner denied that Ross and his crew were drunk or that the craft was without a helmsman when picked up. He declined to comment on a report that 40 bottles of liquor were found in the ship's cabin.

Barnsdall Earnings Show Large Increase

Earnings of Barnsdall Corp. for two months this year showed a large increase net, after all charges of $1,191,612, against $162,110 in corresponding 1928 period. As proxy has been to conserve cash only the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents was declared at recent meeting March earnings are expected to show further substantial gain over two preceding months, and by mid-year it is estimated the company will have about $5,000,000 cash. Barnsdall is free of indebtedness other than current bills.

Circulating False K. of C. Oath Costs Man $100 Fine

Denver, Colo., April 5—L. D Hand of Boise was fined $100 when he entered a nolo contendere, a technical plea of guilty, when he was accused of circulating a false fourth-degree oath of the Knights of Columbus, a Catholic organization.

William J. McGinley, national secretary of the lodge, from New Haven, Conn., and Joseph Little, Denver attorney, both testified that there was not a "phrase of truth in the circular."

M'GRADY WILL HURRY BACK TO STRIKE ZONE

Bristol, Va., April 5—Edward F. McGrady of Boston, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, today flung defiance at the business men of Elizabethton, Tenn., who railroaded him out of town at the point of a gun with threats of death if he returned.

Albert L. Hoffman, textile labor representative, who also was kidnaped and forced to leave Elizabethton, said today before leaving for the Tennessee town that he was prepared to identify at least 12 of his abductors. Hoffman will be under escort.

RETURNS TOMORROW

The Boston man made his preparations to return tomorrow before Henry W. Horton of Tennessee had announced that the protection of the national guard would be extended to him. Adjutant General Boyd of the guard then telegraphed Elizabethtown that he was ready to go at once, but Sheriff J. M. Moreland replied that the local authorities had the situation well in hand.

Meanwhile six prominent business men of Elizabethton were under arrest as the kidnapers of the labor organizer, and President Green of the American Federation of Labor had telegraphed Governor Horton of Tennessee a protest of the "outrage."

McGRADY'S OWN STORY

Grady told his story of the kidnaping in his room at the Hotel Bristol, saying:

While I was asleep in my room on the third floor at the Linwood Hotel at Elizabethton, I heard a knock at my door. When I opened the door I saw about 20 men outside in the corridor.

"They took me down the stairs and to the street where there were five automobiles. They put me in one of the automobiles and after all five cars were filled they drove to the outskirts of the town.

"They pulled me out of the automobile, surrounded me and heaped verbal abuse on me.

"The leader of the gang pointed a revolver at me and said 'We will fill you full of lead if you ever come back. We will plant you in the grave if you ever show your face around here again.'

"They told me that they would not permit any unions to be organized in Elizabethton, nor have any union officers or organizers visit the town.

"After they had finished threatening me, they ordered me to get into an automobile and get out of the state. I got into the car and was dropped off at the Virginia-Tennessee line at Bristol.

McGrady's Wife, in Dorchester, Not Worried

Out In Dorchester today the wife of Edward F. McGrady, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, expressed pride in her husband, but admitted being concerned over his completed return to Elizabethton, Tenn.

"He is just the type to go back into the midst of trouble and try again to straighten things out," she said at the McGrady home, 12 Chamblet st.

"I would rather he would come back to Boston," she smiled, "but he'll stick there, I suppose, until the thing is finished.

"I'm not going to worry about him, because I know he wouldn't want me to. And he won't worry about himself one bit."

Mrs. McGrady said the labor leader had communicated with her last night through a man who had talked with him over long distance telephone.

His message was that the worst was first and that he was going back and bring order out of confusion in Elizabethton.

It has been about a month since the last was home in Dorchester, she said. His headquarters are in Washington, where he lives with a widowed daughter, Mrs. Mary L. Ghilane. Another daughter, Mrs. Margaret Simpkins, is a resident of Stoneham.

Hub Schoolboy Athletes Given Uniforms This Year

BOSTON BOYS NEED NOT PURCHASE OWN SUITS

By DICK McSWEENEY

Boston's schoolboy athletes will not have to go without athletic uniforms for this season at least, according to reports received from the department of physical education today.

It had been feared that the various baseball teams in the city schools would lack equipment for the diamond pastime because of recent ruling which prohibited the school department from buying uniforms.

If Hub schoolboys were forced to buy their own uniforms, a burden would be laid upon them which might prevent many of them from going out for sports. Few of them can afford to pay for suits.

The matter of procuring uniforms for the athletes has been placed in the hands of the business manager of the Boston schools

His will endeavor, with the aid of physical education department authorities, to straighten out the legal tangle which bars the city from purchasing uniforms for the athletes

Meanwhile, school committees in other cities are watching the Boston case with interest.

Jerry Carrigan, manager of the Hyde Park hockey squad, announces that Mike Dardinski, brilliant left wing of the Park hockey sextet, has been elected captain of the 1930 six.

The choice of Dardinski is an ideal one for Mike was one of the hardest working and best tempered boys on the Hyde Park ice squad.

Mechanic Arts will meet Trade School and East Boston will face Hyde Park in a pair of dual swimming meets scheduled for the Cabot st. baths today.

Ganson Loses to DeVito at Grand

Joe DeVito of Providence defeated Jack Ganson of California in straight falls at the Grand Opera House.

The battle was a close affair all the way until DeVito forced Ganson into the ropes so hard that the Californian seemed weakened

The Providence wrestler then secured the first fall with a head and hip-lock in 32 minutes and 35 seconds. The second and deciding fall came in easy fashion in three minutes as a result of the same hold.

Old Time Horses Were Best Sprinters

By FRANK G. MENKE

If you use time records as the standard for decision, then the fact is obvious that horses of this particular decade are wholly inferior in sprint races as compared with those of old.

At least five times as many nags have been annually campaigned through the past six years, as were raced in the earlier days.

Although trick stuff now is employed to produce chain lightning tracks, the result still shows that the horses of long ago could generally outpace the ones of this era at any distance up to eight furlongs.

Every record for standard distance up to one mile now is held by thoroughbreds which raced in the somewhat dim past.

The Victorians, the Reigh Counts, Exterminators, Zevs, High Strungs, Blue Larkspurs, Old Rosebuds, Trysters and 10,000 others of this day and decade have tried to step faster—and failed.

HERE are the marks from the "quarter horse" distance up to, and including, seven furlongs—every one of them held by horses of days that now are but mists in the dells of memory:

¼—Bob Wade, Butte, Mont.,	1890	:21 1-4
¼—Alcaza, Butte, Mont.,	1906	:21 1-5
¼—Dugan, Santa Anita, Cal.	1909	:46 1-5
½—Amoy, Juarez, Mex.	1911	:46 1-5
½—Panamita, Juarez, Mex.,	1915	:47 1-5
¾—Iron Maxx, Juarez, Mex.,	1914	1 09 3-5
¾—Roadoo, Belmont, N. Y.,	1926	1 22

The Juarez track was, at the time its records were made, the fastest on this continent. But since then, Belmont Park and Saratoga have been rebuilt and geared to a point where they are tuned to higher flights than Juarez.

THE Latonia, Ky., Oval, with its springy turf, is only a notch back of both Gotham tracks in the matter of swiftness.

Yet not one horse of the countless thousands, which have run over those three whirlwind strips, have come close to eclipsing the spring records of the horses of other years.

The one-mile race record is held by Cherry Pie. He made it in 1923 at Belmont, N. Y., Park when he was a 3-year-old, carrying 112 pounds. His mark is one minute 35 2-5 seconds.

The fastest time ever made for a mile around turns was in 1922 when Roamer, the great gelding, racing against time, stepped the eight furlongs in 1 34 4-5.

In the six complete years since Roamer whizzed to his mark and the five years since Cherry Pie hung up his figures, tens of thousands of mile races have been run and no stepper has come reasonably close to those figures.

GOING beyond a mile, and reckoning only standard distances—not those "mile and 20 yards, mile and 40 yards, mile and 60 yards" events that are arranged only to suit certain tracks—the historians can find only two horses among the thousands in action today who are record holders.

Spectre First Sande Stable Winner

Bowie Racetrack, Md., April 5—Earl Sande, former jockey prince, sent his first winner to the post this year, when Spectre came home in front of a large field in the second race.

With E. Benham in the saddle, Spectre, a black filly by Bud Lerner and Joannah 2d, paid $11 in the mutuels to win and best back the bids of many of the favorites.

It was the first time this year that Sande had saddled a horse for the races.

Later in the day, Sande saddled Chantry, but was unable to break into the money.

Philadelphia Star Enters April 19 Run

William M. Geroult of Philadelphia has entered for the Unicorn Marathon run to be held on April 19 Five other entries were reported so that the total now announced is six.

Other entries made public are those of William C. Zett of Worcester, Anthony P. Paskell of Revere, Walter Colton of Needham Heights, Edward J. Brodis of Melrose, and James Arears of the Theaton A. C., Somerville.

NICK FLATLEY, back from the South, where he spent five weeks with the Braves, was asked by Mr. Boston as to what kind of a showing the Tribe will make in the National League pennant fight this year.

"I'll give you my answer on July 4," said Nick jokingly.

"I believe July 4 should be set as the official date for making baseball predictions," chirped Mr. Boston. "It is often amusing to read some of the baseball stories that come out of the South each spring.

"I believe this condition of affairs is partly due to the fact that everything looks good to a folk of scribes who have been sent South at a time when snow covers the ground in the North.

"The average phenom of the Southern training camps is back at his old job in some Class B league by the time June roses bloom. The first division clubs of March are often battling to keep out of the cellar by summer.

"I DO not intend to permit my feelings to run wild over the chances of the Braves and Red Sox until I have seen them under fire. I never get greatly concerned over what a ball club does during spring games. They are merely practice tilts without anything at stake.

"The real test of a ball player is in a crucial spot in a league game. The size of the athlete's heart is then important.

"The trouble with a great many of the minor league stars is that they lack courage and fail in the pinch,' Bob Quinn of the Red Sox once told me. 'I have known young players who looked like Ruth and Cobb rolled into one when doing their stuff in the bushes, but when they got into the big show and the opposition was strong they folded up.

"'I would like to find some kind of a scientific device by which a rookie ball player's heart could be tested and it could be found out whether he had the kind of courage required to make the big league grade.'

"WHILE the fans are waiting for the opening of the baseball season, Nate Hurwitz, athletic director at the Boys' Club of Boston, is doing more than his share to furnish action. Nate has some 150 basketball teams battling for various titles in six divisions. The games are being staged in the Eben D. Jordan Gymnasium at the Boys' Club.

"The six divisions follow: Pygmies, 90 pounds and under; Cubs, 100 to 115 pounds; Juniors, 115 to 130 pounds; Intermediates, 130 to 145 pounds, and Seniors, limited to boys under 21 years.

"These youngsters furnished as much action as the fans have been getting at the Bruin and Tiger games. Drop in and hello Nate Hurwitz and watch his youthful stars shine.

"I MOTORED up to Lowell the other night with Johnny Buckley to attend a K. of C. smoker. Mister Buckley has developed into quite an after-dinner speaker. As he was speaking about Jack Sharkey, he knew his subject. Johnny told his Lowell audience that Sharkey will meet the winner of the Schmeling-Paulino bout in September for the heavyweight championship of the world. Of course, he made no secret of the fact it is his opinion that Sharkey will bring the title back to Boston, from where it strayed when Jim Corbett defeated John L. Sullivan at New Orleans back in September of 1892.

"I FOUND the good citizens of Lowell firm in the belief that Al Mello would upset Joe Dundee if the latter would sign to meet him in a title bout at 147 pounds. There is also a demand in Lowell for another meeting between Mello and Billy Murphy, his home town rival. All the fans ask is that the weight for the tussle be 147 pounds.

"Lowell is one of the many live wire sport towns of New England. The folks up there are particularly interested in boxing. This is natural in view of the many star boxers who have come from there."

Brown to Try Out Jai Alai Game Here

George V. Brown, manager of the Boston Arena, has been in communication with certain New York business men who are interested in bringing the game of Jai Alai to this country.

As is understood that arrangements to introduce the game in Manhattan already have been made and Brown has hopes of interesting the parties to foster this thrilling sport in Boston and to have the games played in the St. Botolph st. Arena.

Women's Golf Ass'n. Slates Team Matches

The Women's Golf Association of Boston announced the schedule of team matches for the spring of 1929.

The list contains, in all, 10 active dates, with two open dates reserved for postponed matches and one for a play-off of a possible tie for winner of series.

Competition will start on Monday, April 15, and will run through each succeeding Thursday and Monday up to and including Thursday, May 16.

Tech Riflemen Lead in N. E. Shoot

Northfield, Vt., April 5—Riflemen of Massachusetts Institute of Technology continued to hold first place in the New England Intercollegiate Rifle League at the close of the sixth week of shooting, according to returns made public here.

Norwich was in second place. In the sixth-week contest, M. I. T. defeated Boston University, 1346 to 1266. Norwich outpointed Worcester Tech, 1330 to 1231, and Amherst beat New York Aggie, 1275 to 1114.

Von Porat and Risko Clash at Garden

RIVALS FIT FOR HARD BATTLE TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

OTTO VON PORAT, who packs a couple of sticks of dynamite in his big right mitt, will try to continue his drive in the general direction of the heavyweight championship of the world when he clashes with Johnny Risko of Cleveland in a 10-round bout at the Boston Garden tonight.

The speculative element has installed Von Porat a 2 to 1 favorite

These odds are made in view of his recent decisive victory over Tom Heeney and his fine showing in his New York tussle with Paulino.

Jack Conway

Von Porat was battling for Norway in the Olympic games of 1924. He later came to this country and started his sensational drive for fistic fame.

Von Porat has engaged in 23 pro bouts since coming here. He has lost only three starts and has never been knocked out.

Napoleon Jack Dorval, one of Jack Kearns' fighters, scored a victory over Von Porat. Dorval is a fine boxer which enabled him to keep out of the way of the Norwegian's sock.

Paulino outscored Von Porat, but was almost knocked out himself by a right hander to the chin in the 10th round.

RISKO realizes he will be fighting with his back against the wall tonight. He has been beaten by Maloney and Schaaf in Boston, while he was stopped by Max Schmelling in New York. Johnny is the type of boxer who usually does his best work when on the short end of the betting. So you may expect to see Risko giving everything he has in the fighting line tonight.

Tommy McFarland will assist Danny Dunn in handling Risko tonight.

A SECONDARY heavyweight feature is carded at the Garden tonight between Jimmy Byrne of Louisville and Phil Mercurio of New York. Neither of these fighters ever met defeat in this city and this bout is sure to provide plenty of action.

Haakon Hanson, middleweight titleholder of Norway also makes his bow here tonight against Eddie Adonis, Hub favorite, while Johnny Urban of New York, former sparring partner of Gene Tunney, will take on Marvin Schector, a local heavyweight.

Al Ridgeway of Jersey City meets Frankie Moore of the North End. In the opening bout, Frankie Zerelli of Boston meets Johnny Moore, another local rival.

Wightman in Court Tennis Semifinal

George Wightman of Boston entered the semi-final bracket in the national court tennis singles championships by defeating W. T. Ades of New York, 6—3, 6—2, at the Tennis and Racquet Club.

William C. Wright, Jr., of Philadelphia, disposed of J. W. Appel, Jr., of New York, 6—3, 6—2, 6—4, in a nip and tuck match, which placed him as a semi-finalist, while Hewitt Morgan of New York, title defender, was forced to four games to defeat W. F. Robinson of Philadelphia, 2—6, 6—4, 6—1.

F. P. Frazier of the Tennis and Racquet Club defeated J. H. Van Allen of New York in another four-game match, the scores being 6—1, 6—4, 6—2, 6—1.

Frazier will oppose Wright in the first semi-final match today. Morgan meets Wightman to decide the finalist to face the winner of the Frazier-Wright contest.

DIGS IN IN GARDEN

JOHNNY RISKO

Risko, Cleveland baker boy, fights Otto von Porat in the Boston Garden tonight. Risko must win this fight if he is to be considered by the promoters when the big money wars are planned. Von Porat has a terrific right hand punch though, and is a tough hurdle on Risko's path to fame.

Lacrosse a Regular Sport at B. U.

Lacrosse was instituted at B. U. when 40 athletes signified their intentions of reporting for the team.

The first practice will be at Nickerson field, Weston, Monday afternoon.

John Sullivan, a former Harvard player and a second-year student at the B. U. law school, was appointed coach on the recommendation of President Marsters of the Boston Lacrosse Club, who, with Reggie Brown, football coach, spoke. Jack Crosby, junior manager of football, was appointed manager.

B. U. will meet Brown, M. I. T., Harvard and Boston Lacrosse Club. No dates have been set.

Mass. Aggie Nine Plays Clark April 19

Amherst, April 5—With M. A. C. slated to open for the spring term Monday, the varsity baseball team which has been putting in three sessions a day will shift its practice to one workout a day in preparation for the opening game of the season with Clark on April 19 while the varsity track team goes through their first paces.

Dobens Fans 16 in Win of H. C. Over W. & M.

Williamsburg, Va., April 5—Ray Dobens, Holy Cross pitcher, was a potent factor in the Crusaders 6-to-0 victory over William and Mary College.

Dobens struck out 16 batters and held the Indian tossers to two hits one an infield scratch of the doubtful variety.

Only 30 men faced the southpaw today and not a single one of them reached second base.

Behind such pitching, Holy Cross hit the ball hard.

Hub Boys' Club Five Downs Orioles

The Boys' Club of Boston seniors trounced the Hyde Park Orioles 49 to 28, in the senior division of the amateur basketball tournament at the Boys' Club in the Eben D. Jordan Memorial gym. Linc O'Kane led the scoring for the winners with 12 points.

Newport Y. Independents swamped the Gloucester Collegians, 41 to 12, in a junior division game. Gloucester Eagles nosed out the Everett Junior Catholic Club, 14 to 10, in an overtime game which featured the evening's contests.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Members of the Woodland Golf Club will gather at the Auburndale resort tomorrow night to pay homage to Charlie Burgess, the popular veteran, who has completed 20 years as their club professional. "Chase" has been brushing up his "BRRR8' since he was informed that Wootland was to honor him, and has promised to bring along his own interpreter.

Bill Cosgrove, the well known junior golfer from Worcester, is captain of the St. John's high school in the heart of the Commonwealth, and is desirous of securing matches with Greater Boston high schools represented by golf teams. He would like to arrange matches with Newton high, as the Worcester school has a strong team, but will gladly do business with any teams in this vicinity.

Although there is little chance of Horton Smith, the spectacular young professional from Joplin, Mo., showing his wares in these parts until after his return from England, he will tour New England with Walter Hagen during the summer.

Ray Ouimet, who succeeded Chris McGrath at Commonwealth, is highly delighted with his new berth. Until this season, Ray never took any great amount of interest in his vocation but now he is knuckled down to business and it will not be surprising if he takes his place among the leaders of professional golf in New England. He is an excellent instructor and one of the best shot makers in the game.

Tommie White, who was the assistant professional at Commonwealth, for the past few years, has joined forces with his old boss, Chris McGrath. Tommie is now located in New York, under Walter Hagen products.

Among the members of the W. G. A. who have been or still are in the South getting in condition for the annual tennis matches, which start one week from next Monday, are Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., the district champion; Mrs. C. F. Eaton of Wellesley, Miss May Kennedy of Commonwealth, Mrs. W. P. Arnold, Cohasset; Miss Harriet Elliott, Brae Burn; Mrs. S. D. Waxman, a former titleholder from Kernwood, and Mrs. H. C. Philbrick, Brae Burn.

As soon as the Women's Golf Association of Boston team matches get underway, look for a change for the worse in the weather.

Phillips Finley, Jim Baldwin, Bill Arnold, Eddie Murphy and Charlie Eaton of Harvard will leave tomorrow morning for Pinehurst, where they will compete in the annual North and South tournament next week. They have been playing almost daily for the past three weeks and should make a very creditable showing in their first tournament of the season.

Judging from his play this spring, Jim Baldwin is in for his best season. He has been playing wonderful golf this spring, hitting them long and straight off the tees and scoring well. Since he has been playing with Phillips Finley, Baldwin has taken a serious interest in the game and gives promise of taking his place with the leading golfers in the state.

Francis Ouimet has sufficiently recovered from his recent operation as to warrant his release from the hospital and is planning to recuperate on the Cape.

After six years in the north country, Jack Twiss has succeeded in locating in Greater Boston. Jack started at the Hourglass Country Club, in Windsor, Vt., but for the past five years he has been first at Keene and Dublin, N. H.

Tigers Battle Reds for Can.-Am. Crown in R. I. Rink

WIN TONIGHT GIVES HUB SIX TITLE CUP

Boston Tigers tilt with the Providence Reds tonight in what probably will prove the windup game of the Can.-Am. series for the Fontaine Cup.

If the Reds win, however, the teams play in the Hub Arena tomorrow night

President Clapp of the Canadian-American League announced that the series was to be decided on a 2 point basis. As the Tigers already have captured two games and tied one, giving them five points, a Tiger win or tie tonight spells curtains to the Can.-Am. stretch of 1928-29.

The Tigers are favored to conquer the classy Red six. In the third game the Tigers, evidently overconfident, were lucky to get a tie. But Manager Eddie Powers has the men on edge for the fray in the Providence rink, and they will go out for the win from the start of the game.

The regular Tiger lineup, of Waite, Taylor and Loucks, with Mackey and Ostman on defense and Rheaume in the net, will face the Reds.

'Pebble Beach Fine Course'—Farrell

By JOHNNY FARRELL
American Open Golf Champion.

SINCE my caddy days around Mt. Vernon, N. Y., I have been roaming about the countryside, looking upon the world when it was fresh and green and splendidly groomed

To me there is no outlook more entrancing than a finely cultured golf course, whether it be in woodland setting or situated along a wind-blown sea.

There are courses in this land of wide-flung boundaries that I have not seen, but they are few. Many of those that I have visited have laid their impress so deeply in my memory that to recall each of their individual characteristics is but an easy task. Oakmont, Lido, Pine Valley, Olympia Fields and others are chiseled boldly in my mind.

BUT during my travelings through the far West I played upon a course I know I shall never forget. The Pebble Beach layout on the Monterey peninsula, Mr. M. C. Hall will tell you, is just north of the geographical line that divides California.

PEBBLE BEACH is as fine a layout as I have ever seen. I envy those amateurs who are to play there during the national championship next year. Bobby Jones is in for a real golfing treat. A mere sight of Pebble Beach stirs ambition, quickens eagerness, makes you want to get out there and wrestle with this course that lies so close to the sea. The sippy, tangy air, warmed by a constant sun, invigorates you for the grapple, the while it makes the test more difficult.

The winds that come in from the Pacific are not so riotous as those that are sent forth by the Atlantic to play tag over Lido, but they are sufficiently strong to make them ever a force to be reckoned with in the playing of every shot, whether it be a long drive from the tee or a low-flying pitch.

PEBBLE BEACH has many natural advantages and these have been fortified and strengthened until the layout is as stiff as any to be found in all gunkerdom.

I would advise all those simon pures residing along the Atlantic seaboard who plan to make the long trek to the coast next September to become acquainted with Lido and the National links at Southampton, L. I. Plenty of practice over these two seaside courses will help prime them for the tough time that awaits them at Del Monte.

HUSKY NINE IN OPENING WAR

Northeastern nine will open the season tomorrow against Lowell Textile, at Lowell, with three new faces in the starting lineup.

Bill Carter, last year's Needham high captain, is the only freshman winning a position

He will play shortstop, with three letter men, Ray Richardson, Eddie Goodwin and Warren Nutter, at first, second and third, respectively

Perry Ranney, the only veteran outfielder, will be flanked by two sophomores, Herb Tiffany and Dick cook.

Tiffany, the only two-sports letter man at the university, and Cook, who sacrificed a track letter to go out for the nine, are the newcomers with Carter.

The veterans include also Capt Neil Mahoney behind the bat and George Whittum, who will be starting his first game on the mound.

HARVARD TEAMS TO TRAVEL

Three Harvard teams leave Cambridge for a week's training trip during the annual spring vacation period, which starts tomorrow.

Departing on Sunday, the Crimson baseball team will face William and Mary on the following day at Williamsburg.

Next they will play successively the University of Richmond at Richmond, the Marines at Quantico, Va., Georgetown and Catholic University, both at Washington winding up their trip Saturday in New York against Columbia Nineteen players will make the trip.

The varsity tennis team will spend the entire week at the Norfolk Country Club at Norfolk, Va where four matches will be played

The lacrosse team will spend the week at Syracuse, engaging in daily practice with the University of Syracuse squad.

Braves-Athletics in Rubber Game

BRANDT TO TOSS FOR HUB TEAM

Braves Seek to Get Spring Trip Series Margin in Richmond Conflict

Richmond, Va., April 5—Johnny Evers, acting manager of the Boston Braves, sends his charges against the Athletics here today in the rubber game of the spring training trip between the pair.

The Braves and A's each have three wins to their credit.

And as the regular season is very near at hand, they will fight for the win.

There will be no fooling or loafing in the exhibition games from now until the respective leagues open their schedules.

Ed Brandt goes on the hill today for the Braves. The young man is set to toss the full route, if necessary

RED SOX BATTLE NEW HAVEN

Norfolk, Va., April 5—Full of confidence as to the result of the 11 to 1 victory over Charlotte, N. C., the Boston Red Sox baseball team came here today for a three-game series with New Haven

Billy Rayne and Charlie Ruffing will do the pitching for the Sox this afternoon

Defends Title

New York, April 5—Humbert J. Fugazy, partner of Jack Dempsey, announced that Tommy Loughran, world light-heavyweight champion, would defend his title against James J Braddock, July 4.

MEET THE NEW BRAVES
NO. 5—FRED MAGUIRE

Fred Maguire, second baseman de luxe, was born in Roxbury and played his first baseball with Boston Latin. He went to Holy Cross, where he was a star for his four years. He was graduated in '23 and joined the New York Giants and stayed with them in '23 and '24, thereby getting two World Series cuts for himself. He was sent to Toledo the following year, and remained there for three seasons. He was bought by the Cubs in '28. He led the Association second baseman for his three years there. He was the big figure in the Hornsby swap, the Braves refusing to talk business until Freddy was handed over.

SARAH PALFREY DROPS TITLE TO SISTER MIANNE

Mianne Palfrey of Brookline today dethroned her sister Sarah as national girls' indoor singles tennis champion at the Longwood Cricket Club, 4—6, 6—0, 6—1.

Mianne, the oldest of the three Palfrey sisters in the competition, is not considered to be as great a net player as Sarah and her victory was a big surprise.

In the doubles championship finals, Mianne and Sarah Palfrey combined to retain their crown by defeating Louise Packer of Brookline and Mary Cutter of Winchester, 6—0, 6—1.

Summary:

NATIONAL GIRLS' INDOOR SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP.
Finals

Mianne Palfrey, Brookline, defeated Sarah Palfrey, Brookline, 4—6, 6—0, 6—1.

DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP.
Final Round.

Louise Packer, Brookline, and Mary Cutter, Winchester, defeated Joanna Palfrey, Brookline, and Louise Harding, Chestnut Hill, 6—3, 6—1.

NATIONAL GIRLS' DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP

Sarah and Mianne Palfrey defeated Louise Packer and Mary Cutter 6—3, 6—1.

55 in Cathedral Y 10-Mile Road Race

Over 55 entries have been received to date for the 10th annual ten-mile run of the Cathedral Y. M. C. A. held the afternoon of April 13.

Entries close April 10. Blanks may be secured from Manager Joseph E. Hickey, Cathedral Club, 75 Union Park st., Boston, by writing or by calling at the clubhouse.

Haines Ranking Squash Player

New York, April 5 (INS)—For the third successive year, the National Squash Tennis Association has awarded the No. 1 position in the national ranking to Rowland B. Haines of the Columbia University Club. Haines has won the national title for the past three years.

Play Eleven Games

Newport, R. I., April 5—St. George's school baseball team will commence its schedule of 11 games on April 13 when it meets Dummer Academy.

The games include the strongest preparatory teams in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, the season terminating on Saturday, June 1, with Middlesex.

Harvard Football Coaches Appointed

Eddie Casey, Charlie Hubbard, Jimmy Knox and Duke Dunne are the official football coaching assistants to Arnold Horween at Harvard for the coming season.

The announcement of the appointment of Art French as freshman coach came through as expected from the office of William Bingham, Harvard athletic head

Eddie Casey, successful freshman coach of the last three years, will be varsity backfield coach

R. Jerome Dunne, head line coach for the last two years, is again appointed to Horween's staff. Charlie Hubbard, his assistant last year, will share the task of molding Harvard's line.

The surprise in the announcement is that of Dunne's return. Dunne, ex-Michigan captain and later their line coach, came to Harvard two years ago

Duke was considering offers from several Western colleges, among them Wisconsin.

Dunne will be the only non-Harvard member of the coaching staff.

French will be assisted by others. They have not as yet been appointed.

While Casey handled the fresh eleven only one game was lost in three years—the first one in which a Casey-coached team engaged, and a game which came after the Harvard squad had been out for six days

French will have fine material to work with, for the gridiron talent has started coming to Ha vard once more.

BOXERS ARRIVE FOR TOURNEY

Indications point today to the shattering of gate records at the annual national boxing champion ships at the Boston Arena next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Within the next 24 hours most of the ambitious amateur boxers who expect to win titles at the Arena will arrive in the Hub

Already the Los Angeles and San Francisco hopefuls are here after a long ride across the country, and they are training daily at local gymnasiums. Others will follow on their heels immediately

Entries for the tournament continue to pour in and the committee will have its hands full to pack in all the bouts necessary during the three nights of the tournament.

Helen Wills To Play in Holland

New York, April 5 (INS)—Holland has been added to the itinerary of the Misses Helen Wills and Edith Cross, the two California girls who are going across to Europe within another fortnight for an extended tennis campaign.

Bouts Last Night

By The Associated Press

Penn, Pa.—Joe Schickery, California, outpointed Sylvan Bass, Baltimore; 8 Los Gatos, New York, won on foul from Georges Andaloz, France (5).

Berlin, Germany—Ludwig Haymas outpointed Rudi Wagner (15) retaining German middleweight title.

Buenos Aires—Jose Palmeo, Salt Lake City, Utah, and Jolie Mocoron, Argentine drew (10).

Hot Springs, Ark.—Jack Ashton, Chicago, knocked out Johnny Evergreen, La Rock, Ark. (8).

Morgan Retains Title in Coast Go

Los Angeles, April 5 (AP)—The junior lightweight crown today rested more securely on the head of Tod Morgan as the result of his decision victory over Santiago Zorrilla, Panama challenger.

In the same ring in which he won his title three years ago Morgan pounded out a distinct victory but there was no knockdown in the 10 rounds.

Action Is Expected at St. Joe's Show

The greatest number of amateur boxers ever assembled in a local tournament will meet tomorrow night in Commercial Hall, Bow ton sq., in the weekly tourney of St. Joseph's T. A. S

Bouts are to be held in the 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 pounds and heavyweight divisions, and every class is crowded to the limit with entrants. Because of the tremendous entry list, the show will be started promptly at 7:30.

Training Camp Notes

Waco, Tex., April 5 (AP)—'Babe' Ruth is the New York Yankees' big training attraction, but his teammates are doing most of the heavy hitting.

While the Babe entertained the kids in right field, Tony Lazzeri and Lou Gehrig hit three home runs between them to enable the Yankees to down Waco of the Texas League, 13 to 5, yesterday.

Philadelphia, April 5 (AP)—Manager Shotton of the Philadelphia Nationals believes that Tommy Thevenow, his star shortstop, injured in an auto accident, will be back in the game "before long."

"The blow was heavy, but we will come through it," Shotton said today. "Tommy's injury might have been a great deal worse, but he has the courage and determination to rally faster than a lot of fellows might, and I think he will be in the game for us before long. .

Biloxi, Miss., April 5 (AP)—The Joe Genewich goes the honor of being the first New York Giant pitcher this season to hurl a full nine-inning game. Although hit hard, especially in the early innings, Genewich pitched the Giants to a 14-6 victory over the Toledo Mud Hens yesterday

Pensacola, Fla., April 5 (AP)—En route to Pensacola for an exhibition game, the Brooklyn Robins were delayed several hours by a freight train wreck. Finally several tottering autos, a team of horses and a few bicycles were commandeered and an hour later the Robbins arrived in Pensacola, but in time to down the local club of Southeastern League fame.

Houston, Tex., April 5 (AP)—Sherrill Blake apparently is ready for his share of hurling in the Cubs' campaign for the National League pennant. Blake pitched seven innings against Houston yesterday and allowed four hits. The Cubs won, 10 to 0.

Wichita Falls, Tex., April 5 (AP) A tired and weary White Sox team trooped into Wichita Falls today for a game with the Texas League spudders. Yesterday at Seminole, Okla., they were listless and were defeated 6 to 4 by Des Moines.

Macon, Ga., April 5 (AP)—A ninth-inning rally by Macon cost the St. Louis Cards a 7 to 6 game yesterday. Manager Billy South worth got into the scrap as a pinch hitter and remained as right fielder.

Memphis, Tenn., April 5 (AP)—Rip Collins, being groomed as a sure sticker in the big leagues this time, is out of the game temporarily with a sprained ankle sustained in the St. Louis Browns 10-frame victory over Memphis yesterday. Herb Cobb, rookie pitcher, was slapped for seven hits and five runs in five innings

Ft. Worth, Texas, April 5 (AP) —Although they were beaten, 2 to 1, by Pittsburgh yesterday, Manager Bucky Harris found a measure of satisfaction in the performance of the Tigers. Owen Carroll and Lil Stoner pitched good ball and demonstrated they are about ready for the start of the American League schedule.

New Orleans, April 5 (AP)—More work in the sacrifice department occupied the Cleveland Indians today. Manager Peckinpaugh went through a post mortem of the two-game series with the Giants and decided that a big part of the spring drill, learning short knocks to advance base runners, had failed.

Ft. Worth, Texas, April 5 (AP) —With Paul Waner scheduled to report tomorrow and Lloyd Waner already performing brilliantly, a lively battle is about to begin for the third position in the Pirate outfield. Comorosky, Brickell and Frey will fight it out for the job.

GLENNA WINS GOLF CROWN

Pinehurst, N. C., April 5 (AP)—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., national woman s champion, today added the North and South women's championship to her group of trophies by defeating Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, 4 and 3.

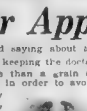
Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

AN occasional Turkish bath is good for the skin and the circulation. Many of us do not perspire enough, and this puts a greater load on the kidneys. But do not stay in the steam room too long, especially if the heart begins to pound.

Martha Lee's Recipes for Apple Sauce

THE good old saying about an apple a day keeping the doctor away had more than a grain of truth in it, but in order to avoid the monotony of eating a raw apple each day of the week, why not give attention to the merits of apple sauce? Not the apple sauce which compels you to peel and core innumerable apples and then stand over the stove stirring them to the right consistency; rather, the apple sauce which comes to you ready prepared in canned form



Martha Lee

Of course you like the smoothly prepared canned apple sauce and how the children approve of it! Spread on bread and butter it is jam, mixed with beaten egg white to form a whip, served in the morning meal, or simply served alone with cream, it is a food which they will ask for day after day, and it is a good food for them.

It is with an approving mind that you can give the apple sauce to the children, for the numerous acids which the fruit contains are most beneficial. The apple sauce also helps to supply the water needed by the body and the cellulose is a desirable addition to the bulky foods of the day's menu.

But it is not only children who like apple sauce; grown-ups welcome it as an accompaniment to roast pork. But they also like it in pies and other desserts which are not usually given children.

However, when you make a pie for the family, it is often possible to pour some of the filling in an individual glass baking dish, and top it with a meringue which, when browned, transforms the dish into one which will appeal to the child as being different and will be dietetically suitable for him.

Here are some recipes for apple sauce desserts:

FROZEN APPLE SAUCE

Mix together contents of a No. 2 can of apple sauce, ½ c. lemon juice, ½ c. orange juice, 2 tsp. grated orange rind and ½ c. sugar. Fold in 1 stiffly-beaten egg white. Pour mixture into the ice cream freezer like any ice cream, using 3 parts ice to 1 part salt. Makes a little over 1 qt.

APPLE SNOW

Cut 10 maraschino cherries into quarters and drain thoroughly. Beat 1 egg white stiff and fold in 2-3 c. canned apple sauce and the cherries. Add sugar if desired. Add a few grains of nutmeg and 2 tsps. lemon juice and pile lightly in glass dishes. Chill. Top with whipped cream sprinkled over with minced maraschino cherries.

APPLE AND DATE PIE

To the contents of a No. 2 can of apple sauce add ½ c. chopped dates, 2 beaten egg yolks, few grains salt, and 1 tbsp. lemon juice. Pour into a pie tin lined with pastry. Bake in a hot oven, 450° F., for 10 minutes, then lower heat to 325 for 20 minutes. Remove from oven, cool slightly and cover with a meringue made from 2 egg whites and 6 tbsps. of confectioner's sugar. Return to the oven and let brown for 15 minutes at a temperature of 300°. Serve cold.

PLAIN APPLE SAUCE PIE

Combine contents of a No. 2 can of apple sauce with 1 tsp. lemon juice and pour into a tin lined with pastry. Dot 1 tbsp. of butter over the top and sprinkle with ½ tsp. nutmeg. Cover with the upper crust and bake, having oven hot at first, then moderate. The temperatures are 450° F. for 10 minutes and then 350° F. for 20 minutes.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Filmy Stuff for Formal Gowns

Champcommunal also uses lace in models with basque bodices, full skirts and normal waistlines.

While these thin materials prevail, the bouffant silhouette plays a large part in their making. The gown pictured from Norman Hartnell varies the usual scheme of lace and tulle, adding a third fabric by way of a satin bodice, evolving in this case a symphony in white and green.

Printed chiffons are classed with sheer stuffs and their number in summer collections is legion. While one couturier waxes enthusiastic over printed chiffon for evening gowns, another, such as Chanel, reverses this and displays them extravagantly for day wear.

The day models almost invariably have berths or cape collars, frequently are without sleeves, the collar making a graceful finish for the bare arm, as is now a familiar method with many frocks shown in metropolitan shops.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

A handy little dish washer for the milk bottle which is too narrow for the hand and cloth is made from the wire handle of a grape basket, if it is straightened, and the hook is left on one end.

Bread makers and cake makers reduce the labor of mixing pastry and bread to a minimum. They wear forever and the money spent may well be considered a lifetime investment.

About Running After a Man

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

IN love as in all the affairs of life, human nature tries to believe what it would like to believe But is it not far more sensible to face facts frankly and be honest with ourselves even in romance?

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes "Broken-Hearted," who is trying hard to believe a young man loves her because she would like to believe it. "I am a daily reader of your column and I get a great deal of information from it. May I ask your advice concerning my problem?

"I have been going with a fellow for about two years, off and on We went together steadily for eight months, then I went away for three weeks. During those eight months we were together at least three or four times a week. But since I have returned he seldom comes to the house.

"His friends and mine tell me he still cares for me and often speaks of me. My friends also tell me he just stays away because he knows it bothers me. But I can't see it that way.

"When we are together he seems to enjoy my company and I his Do you really think he does care? Do you think it is true love when a fellow stays away just because it bothers the girl? Shall I write him a friendly note inviting him to come to the house? Or do you think it is best to pay no attention to him, and that if he really cares he will come back? He knows he is perfectly welcome to come to the house at any time.

"I hear he has made the remark: 'No girl is going to have any strings on me.' What does that expression mean? I will appreciate your reply."

The clue to your problem, Broken-Hearted, it seems to me, is the remark your friend is said to have made: "No girl is going to have any strings on me."

Whether he actually made the remark is unimportant. His independent attitude—his remaining away from you—announce to the world that he does not care to be tied to any woman's apron-strings, to borrow an old-fashioned phrase.

That indifference is characteristic of the independent modern young man—until he falls in love. Then he entirely reverses his philosophy and is only too eager to bind himself with the permanent tie of marriage to the One Girl.

Young men and women are quite likely to fancy themselves in love numerous times before they finally settle down to serious enduring affections. During the eight months you and your friend went about together, he may have fancied himself in love with you. Or possibly he was merely enjoying your companionship without any intentions.

Then when he broke away for a few weeks, he realized he was not in love and dreaded above all else being drawn into a serious affair —possibly an engagement.

That is why he is staying away. He chooses not to become engaged and is afraid to go about with you steadily lest you may take him seriously.

Wise is the girl who does not take any young man seriously, except as a platonic friend, until he proves he is taking himself and her seriously by his proposal of marriage. Doubly wise is the girl who refuses to pledge herself to accept attention and friendship of one young man only until he makes up his mind whether he cares for her.

Doubtless, your friend likes you. In the friendly sense, he cares. Positively, he is not in love with you, my dear. If he were he could not wait to tell you so and secure your promise to become his wife.

If you appear very eager to win him back, you will frighten him further away. Treat him casually, but be friendly.

If you write him notes begging him to come to see you, he will draw farther away from you. Devote yourself to good times with all your friends. When your friend comes to see you, give him a charming, gay evening. Do not invite him to come again. Ask him only to big parties at your home. Meantime, at any moment, you may become interested in another young man who may prove ever so much more congenial than this one and awaken your affection by unchanging love

Dr. Bisch Writes on Delusions

By L. E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

IT is not generally known that delusions and hallucinations may appear in perfectly normal individuals.

A delusion is really a mistake of judgment, while an hallucination is a mistake made by one of the senses.

If, for example, an individual believes that the day is Sunday when in reality it is Tuesday or some other day, then that individual is suffering from a delusion. Such a person, however, will correct his error when his attention is drawn to the calendar or the daily newspaper or some other evidence is brought forward to prove that he is in error.

But an insane person would act quite differently when confronted by evidence to show that he is in the wrong in this particular. No matter what proof might be brought forward to show him that the day is not Sunday he would still insist that it is.

This emphasizes the cardinal difference between sane and insane delusions. In insane delusions there is no appeal to the patient's reasoning.

Another characteristic to be noted in the insane delusion is the fact that it is quite out of harmony with the patient's station in life and past experience. As an example of this one might mention the case of a man in the poorhouse who insisted that he had more money than Henry Ford and Rockefeller put together. Each day he would sign checks amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, which he distributed freely to the attendants and other inmates.

As regards hallucinations, any of the senses or several at one and the same time may be affected.

Should I insist that there is a clock on the wall when in reality none is there, then I am suffering from an hallucination of sight.

Should I hear the ringing of bells or a buzzing sound or voices or music when no such sounds are actually taking place, I would be suffering from an hallucination of hearing.

Should I drink a glass of pure and tasteless water but insist that it is salted or poisoned then I would be suffering from an hallucination of taste.

Should an individual smell foul odors which so many of the insane claim they do, then an hallucination of smell would be the diagnosis.

Persons who are suffering from an insanity often harbor several kinds of hallucinations as well as delusions. These ideas and feelings are just as real to them as they would be to a normal individual if they actually existed. Often through special psychological procedures one can determine why and how these mistakes of the mind develop.

In fact, that is one of the ways in which insanity is treated.

Insane patients sometimes give up one set of ideas but supplant them with another set. Sometimes it is very difficult to determine whether hallucinations or delusions exist because the patients are very suspicious and unwilling to divulge what they really think and feel.

There are also types of cases where these cardinal symptoms of insanity are not noted at all. Always, however, the insane individual shows a distinct and complete separation from reality and always thinks that he is right and the world all wrong.

I want to emphasize again that the mere presence of delusional ideas and hallucinations do not by any means indicate a beginning of insanity. The important thing is whether such mental twists persist and whether or not the individual eventually corrects them.

Shapely Shoulders

By MARIA JERITZA

WHEN you see a woman with drooping, round shoulders you see a woman who suggests age by her posture and carriage. She may be only a schoolgirl, but, nevertheless, there is a look of decrepitude about her posture

In this day, when youth is at such a premium, you cannot afford to add years and years to your appearance by letting your shoulders sag. As a matter of fact, there are grandmothers—even great-grandmas—among us nowadays, who carry themselves with such easy grace and erectness that they pass for 35, even though they may be close to the allotted span of three score and ten. So even age is not an excuse for the ugly awkwardness of slumped shoulders.

I should say the first essential if you would attain and retain slender, graceful, erect shoulders is to face life courageously. Battling with difficulties does not hurt us—it puts strength and energy into us and keeps the fires of youth glowing—provided we face the battle squarely, head up, shoulders back

When a discouraged thought pops into your head, throw it out again and put a pleasant, equally true thought in its place. Since depressing thoughts are strong and destructive, and courageous, cheery thoughts are builders of charm, youth, success, why not refuse to whine and welcome life with a smile.

Next to straightforward, courageous thinking, rugged physical health is essential if the back and shoulders are to be so strong that the muscles will easily hold themselves erect. Follow the rules of health we all know so well—abundant sleep at regular hours, well balanced, regular meals exercise, fresh air, the daily bath and drink six glasses of water daily Then the shoulders should not droop from physical weakness

Near-sightedness, causing you to bend over your work, may bring about round shoulders Children at school get this habit from bending over desks too low for them.

The head poked forward, a flat chest and protruding abdomen too often accompany round shoulders All the result of the habit of sitting and standing improperly So you draw your backs up as straight as you can and carry your neck straight, your shoulders will take care of themselves falling into easy, natural position

Walk about your room on your toes, your arms at your sides, with a book balanced on your head, for one minute every night and morning to get the habit of standing and walking straight with your shoulders erect

Here is an exercise that is wonderful as an aid to correct posture of the shoulders and arms, provided it is practiced faithfully, every morning and evening for two or three minutes:

Stand straight with the feet facing forward about six inches apart, your weight over the balls of your feet, your body bent slightly forward at the waist, both arms straight out at the sides at shoulder level, palms up. Now bending your arms straight, move them in circles on your shoulders as you take ten times to the back and round to first position, then ten times forward in a circle. While you practice this exercise, have the windows wide open.

Prove yourself modern in the best sense by facing the world with graceful, straight, sturdy shoulders

THERE can be no more thought of winter when the haute couture displaces all heavy evening fabrics with light, sheer materials Soft and silky or diaphanous and preys are the spring and summer gowns of formal character destined for afternoon and evening wear There is a great deal of lace, much chiffon, tulle and net.

So fashionable is lace that tulle and net approaching lace in appearance are markedly prominent in these thin stuffs that, like magic are swirled into gorgeous gowns

There is a fancy existent among couturiers to trim lace models to the extent of adding bands of georgette or frills of tulle in matching color. Black lace is effectively enhanced with chiffon in the afternoon dress topped by a sleeveless jacket, shown from the collection of Bernard et Cie.

Narrow tiers of lace and quite narrow lace bandings used in horizontal direction trim tulle and georgette evening dresses, the lace trimming being a distinct departure from the customary manner

Lelong favors the heavier laces, always in small patterns and for rather coarse nets, among them being a diamond mesh net and one of round mesh like a multiplication of small flat rings.

Nicole Groult shows in her collection several attractive lace models such as black lace combined with net, one layer of the net posed over the extreme decolete cut of the gown. Elspeth

Advice by Elinor Glyn

By ELINOR GLYN.

GIRLS—If you are thinking of becoming engaged or are engaged and really mean to get married, do take my advice, and whether you like them or not, try to get on with your fiance's relations

Use every bit of your tact to make them like you—for their appreciation of you can make the greatest difference to your happiness even if you should divorce in a few years

Do not allow prejudice to get in your way—very often the young man's mother thinks an angel from Heaven hardly good enough for her son, and will be on the lookout for every little fault in Lily, or Alice, and I want our girl to use calm reflection about it

She should reason with herself in this way—that if her future mother-in-law feels that unjustly, the clever thing would be not to resent it but see how soon she can make her feel otherwise

I do not mean by gushing and subservience, but by sheer tact and politeness. Then she will not start with an adverse influence in her new home—and the young man's sisters also should be taken into account and not be antagonized.

It is a popular idea that it is always the girl's mother who makes the mischief, and is the handicap—but I think it is quite as often the young man's—indeed oftener, for mothers in this country are so very absorbed in their sons

The parents in either case have no right to make the newlyweds miserable, but they often do, insidiously, because of having taken an unreasoning prejudice beforehand

So, girls, be clever—make yourselves beloved—and then if your in-laws are tiresome folks, the same fact you used to endear yourself liked can be used to keep them from annoying you—and if they are delightful people you will have a far happier existence.

The BROADWAY MELODY by JACK LAIT

A Story With a Thousand Thrilling Episodes

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

EDDIE KERNS, song plugger has written the music for "The Broadway Melody," a big revue, to be produced by the famous Zanfield. For two years Eddie has been engaged to "Hank" Mahoney, and now he sees his way clear to marry her. She and her younger sister, Queenie, are playing in vaudeville. Eddie tells them he has managed to place them in the revue. Eddie discovers he's lost his heart to Queenie. He keeps his secret from Hank.

Zanny, after seeing the "Mahoney Sisters" perform, decides that he could only use Queenie. She begs him to give her sister a chance. Zanny gives Queenie a place in the revue. Two "angels" of the revue invite her out to dine. Dare, one of the show girls, tells Queenie to watch her step with Worthington. Eddie questions Queenie about "Warry" (Francis Warriner Worthington's pal), and tells her to keep away from him. When "Hank" arrives home with Eddie she discovers Queenie in bed and is overjoyed to find she really did not go out with "Warry." Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER 11.

HANK MAHONEY'S ecstatic sobbing when she discovered that Queenie had not gone anywhere with Francis Warriner continued for a full minute. Then, with happy, tear-streaked face, she ran out to Eddie with the news. He had poked his head in at her first cry, but had discreetly returned to his chair in the sitting room—a look of satisfaction replacing the glum blueness which he had shared with Hank until the great discovery.

He knew she could not have spent more than five minutes in Warry's society. And on Broadway they count time as the essence of many things—and by it they measure faith. The best proof that something fearsome has not happened is that it could not have happened. The Hardened Artery is loath to give much weight to any less absolute evidence.

"She didn't go—she didn't go," repeated Hank. "Oh, Eddie, we did her a lot of dirt the way we talked." Her voice came down to a whisper as she added "And she must have heard every word of it—well, anyhow, I know her we're sincere and that we love her doesn't it, honey-man?"

Eddie nodded as he added, sotto voice:

"She must o' handed Warry the ice—high, wide and swift . . . is she—h'm- is she gonna get up?"

"No, she says she's got a headache. We can go out now an' put in some gas an' oil. My appetite's come back."

Eddie, with a shrug, knowing he wouldn't see Queenie the rest of the night anyway, consented. Hank called into the darkened bedroom saying they were going out for a bit and she'd be back soon.

They went to a beanery of the all-night type which attracts minor performers and sat down to a glazed-top table, took up their paper napkins and ordered their coffee cakes and half-and-half.

Not a hundred yards distant in the costliest grillroom the Times Square region boasted, sat Francis Warriner and Stewie Worthington.

"Unusual kid that one," Warriner was saying as he poured from a silver flask into a highball glass steaming with cracked ice.

'Oh, Boy What a Sweet Turndown You Got, and I Win $1,000

"Unusual for you, you chicken-rustler. Oh, boy—what a sweet turndown you drew—and I win the $1000."

"Oh, yes—quite forgot that. "I'll write you my check for it . . .

Waiter, pen and ink!—by the way, how does that make her stand?"

"Well, I gave her half of the $1000 bill—the non-negotiable half, of course. She was to get it's mate when she sat down with me. Now she didn't go through with. So she's out a grand and you're out a grand and I'm in a grand and a half—that doesn't sound right, but it's a fact—ha-ha—I was always dumb in arithmetic. But it pays to be foolish at figures."

"Wait a moment—I don't get the transaction clearly, myself. You were to have given her the other half, making $1000. Then I was to have paid you the same amount for losing the bet. Now you've given her, in effect, nothing. And I'm still to pay you?"

"Cert. My $1000 is my $1000, and I get yours because I won it. She'd have gotten mine had I bet it."

"But I'd have gotten nothing—you win and are in $1000, and I'd won I'd have been in nothing."

"Nothing but the girl, you flathead!"

"I see—I see now. I was always apt at figures—feminine ones, I mean."

"I think she's a little bonehead Why couldn't she have sat here with us, listened to my drooling and your slick line, fed herself to the grade of chow she's probably never even smelled, and been in what to her must be a flock of manna?"

"That's just the theory. You don't think I'm an eleemosynary institution, do you, and give away $1000 bills like John D. does shiny dimes? It's to what high-pressure salesmen call 'the power of suggestance.' Giving her a $20 note would be merely wasting the twenty; but handing her one for a billeen. Then there's the further psychology of the bill itself. Few people ever have that amount in their currency and not one in a million ever does in one bit of paper.

"Why, I know many rich people who not only have never had one but have never seen one. Indeed, a $1000 bill is far more effective than, let us say, twenty fifties, and in turn they click lounder than fifty twenties.

"If a girl accepts it's worth the $1000 to find out—that means she is unsensible—is a potentiality. But if she turns down such a neurlich treasure for the mere return of having a pleasant meal, that's a rather decisive test of what the girls call 'Miss Hard-to-Get'—and maybe even ungettable."

"Oh, Warry—be yourself. Say it ain't so, Warry—don't tell me any girl is ungettable. It's too, too, terrible. It's wicked . . . your lengthy answer is all cockeyed, if you ask me. You know what went demoniacally with our little half-a-grand check?"

"No. Give the little boy a nice big bell. Speaking from the wisdom of the many you've given up, you should speak as Sir Oracle Now, what, oh Ancient Sap of Boobylon, went sour with my $1000-William proposition?"

'Not Enough! Laugh That One Off, Mr. Treat-Em Rough'

"Not enough! Laugh that off Mr. Cut-Em-Cheap and Treat-'em-Rough."

Warriner took a sip of his high ball lit a cigarette and smiled.

"There may be something in what you say, Stewie," he agreed. "Out of the mouths of babes and sucks cometh oft wisdom. There may be something in what you say—$1000 is not all the chicken feed on earth and by the same token that I said it was a lot, more is yet more so. These gals are beginning to roost high, eh, Stew?"

"They can't pick 'em. They think when he blows his glorified hand into their bottle they are a set on the Stock Exchange or the seagoing yacht or something. The high price of blondes is getting toward the saturation point Zanzis should be enjoined against enticing them at our expense. The way his elevated gold-diggers rate themselves is positively immoral. I think it comes under the head of a conspiracy in restraint of trade, and, therefore, uncon stitutional. If not, the old Constitution should be amended, which is the next word . . . pass the flask."

Warry smoked for a moment.

"Stewie," he resumed, "I'm no unsophisticated sophomore. My trust in mankind, especially the female of the species, is a mi ceeeepie phenomenon. I'm hardboiled, skeptical, cynical and I believe even Schopenhauery. But—now don't throw anything—something—and by it they measure where in the back of my cranium rents a conviction that this little Queenie Mahoney—this half baked, small-time, baby-faced un sophisticated ingenue—cannot be bought."

Stewie set down his glass—an extraordinary thing for him to do —and registered hurt.

"Warry," he exclaimed, "do you realize that in a statement, a heinous statement like that, you strike at the very substructure of Broadway society? Why—you could be arrested for uttering such blasphemy. Have you gone Red? Put down that bomb. You aren't Schopenhauery; you're blotto. What's IN this booch?"

Warry smiled but picked it up again.

"And what's more, Stewie, old bum, I don't think she can be had at all!"

"Now I know you're drunk They can all be had. I think the head of a conspiracy in restraint of trade, and, therefore, uncon stitutional. If not, the old Constitution should be amended, which is the next word . . . pass the flask."

Warry smoked for a moment.

"Stewie," he resumed, "I'm no unsophisticated sophomore. My trust in mankind, especially the female of the species, is a mi ceeeepie phenomenon. I'm hardboiled, skeptical, cynical and I believe even Schopenhauery. But—now don't throw anything—some-

If it weren't for him you'd be out your grand note and I'd be out on a grand evening."

"You mean she—is that way about him?"

"In a big way. Girls like that do things like that. No matter how far we may get, no matter how we may fascinate them and reward them, we are still aliens We do not spell matrimony, that's one thing. But it's deeper than that. We are not their people We are of another station. Now she and a ham like Kerns, they get off at the same station. She thinks his solid gold tooth is the class because it's his; she thinks my imported town car is just a prop. She knows he's worth a million. But she can't visualize that much. Her mind and imagination don't run beyond four figures. All he has, she can get; she knows she'll never get all I have

"And I doubt whether she really craves it, any more than you do to be an emperor. You know it isn't in the deck, so you waste no time playing or sighing for the unattainable. Why should you and I go after Queenie Mahoney, when we could be stalking a real queen —Marie, now, is a widow. Have we sent her any fawn grass-notes? We have not We, too, reach for what we think we might hook We wouldn't be comfy with a queen, anyhow. And the Queenies aren't at ease with us, by the same wrinkle.

"That is the most dangerous sort of competition, Stewie. I'd rather try to outbid or outwit bank presidents, Senators and princes than go into competition for a frail like that against that crude, self-satisfied 'dese an' dose' tinpanner, Eddie Kerns . . . Still, I'm no siredale, but I'm a bulldog . . . no Warriner ever stopped chasing a skirt while there was one of those 345,678 chances still open."

"Attaboy—now you talk like a gentleman, a sportsman and a Stewie Worthington. More power to you. I'm with you to the finish and I'll bet you a grand that you'll win."

"No, thanks," replied Warriner, "I've lost enough bets for one day."

sponsively. "Tie and starve. Let me try?"

Cooper nodded. "No fair pay," he said amiably. "But we're not going there for . . ." He got up and led the way to the door. "Let me see you ride," he said curtly.

Joe felt himself tested that he could ride. Jerry quickly realized he was a . . . man he needed to control this time, and to teach him to his new recruits

Joe received this proposal with an enthusiasm He preferred a good job.

And an hour later the leaders of the force to ride were summoned into the house. They were told that a night operation to Marching but Joe found them disposed for conversation.

After a time Cooper came from the house, spurred and belted and with a more military aspect than he had shown previously. He came straight to Joe. He said: "We're taking three troops. Your horse will be tired. You can mount from No 1 troop on the next. If you want one We start at noon."

"I don't fight," Joe said cautiously He wanted to be on the spot but—

"You weren't asked," Jerry said with contempt. "You must look after yourself."

At noon they started They took no bounce What each man carried of food or utensils, or ammunition, was strapped with his blanket behind the saddle

They moved with scouts ahead and with outriders on either flank through brooding a hostile country.

Before night Joe guessed that they were not riding to the attack of Ailworth's little force, or to raise the reinforcements of Bellamy's guns but to make a raid in Tom's absence, upon the unsuspecting community from which the best men were absent

As they halted, the captain came up to Joe Relieved in spirits he spoke with a renewed affability "I keep my word You shall have the girl. If we get her, as I intend we shall. Go to Tom Ailworth's house with Rentoul and Bryan, it will need men who can ride. Tom has a wife and there are two children Bring the girl He added "There'll be no fighting there unless Tom's back."

Joe made no objection. It sound ed easy work—with two others to do it. He was quite sure that Tom would not be back

It was about an hour to midday when they descended the road that showed the mansion in waiting. Joe knew his northern side, and observed that there was a single house with a chimney from which smoke rose, that a woman was cleaning her doorstep before it

Rentoul Cooper reined his horse and looked down at the kneeling Martha. Martha wrung out her flannel and looked up at the captain

Capt. Cooper looked at his men. "Anyone want her?" he asked, with a sardonic smile. The men grinned in answer The line of horsemen was in motion again She heard a shot from the valley She looked pleased. Davy was a good lad."

The first house beyond the ruins Village stood well back from the road, with a field behind it and beyond that a staggering copse

They saw a woman running to seek refuge in the copse. Some warning she must have had for she was already in flight when they came into view of the house

The boy horse plunged, and the Captain had his seat with difficulty There was the report of a rifle

The Captain saw a red mark on the horses counter where the bullet had scored it "Go on, men," he shouted. They clattered down the road to the gate

The man did not wait to fire again when he saw how his first shot was received He ran out of the back of the house after the woman

A stern word from the Captain checked the pursuit, which would have set a premium to men to so inadequate a purpose

"Forward," he said, "and keep together You know the object"

They went on down the road

Meanwhile Davy, proud possessor of a firearm, which he had still worked, had run into Jerry's troop escaped the shots aimed at him and was already in flight

Jerry decided to retreat

He looked around at the disheartened group that had pulled up behind him He turned his horse. "Fall in," he said sharply. "It's no place for betrayed some how. Look alive."

The road to Crowley Thurn turned left from the main road, slanting somewhat backward and roadside behind them and Rentoul dropped

His companions reined up for a moment, and then rode on.

"He's out," said Bryan

Joe had no intention of risking delay for a wounded man. "He'll be two for one of us to manage," he said "Shall better take the lads"

Suddenly as they rode they came upon Helen

"I have a message," Joe said, for Mrs Ailworth; are you she?"

"No," said Helen, "at least, I am—I think you mean me."

Tom says that Jerry Cooper's coming, and you won't be safe here. He's sent us to bring you away."

Helen looked at the men, and did not trust them

"I cannot leave the children," she said "Is there really much danger?"

Joe answered "We are to bring the children with us Tom said there was no time But we can't wait. He sent three of us and one was shot as we came to the road"

Helen still doubted, but his words turned the scale

She Called the Children, Who Were Playing a Few Yards Away

She called the children who were playing in the woods only a few yards away

"You'll take the kids," said Bryan, speaking for the first time He did not prefer this, but he did not want an altercation before the woman, who might take alarm He looked at the children They were light enough One before, one behind He could manage Their mother lifted them, and with Bryan's help they were strapped securely They were timid of his strangeness, but keen on the unexpected pleasure of the ride

"Much better this way than any fuss," thought Joe

It was Helen's turn now to mount She stood doubtfully beside the unattractive Bryan

Shall I get up behind you?" she said doubtfully

"No," he said, "in front." He reached a hand, and she jumped easily enough with a foot on his stirrup. He drew her up roughly Handcuffs clicked on her wrists A rope was twisted. He threw it over so that she hung like a sack above the horse's neck, her loose hair trailing She was powerless even to struggle

They debated by which way they should return. They had no wish to ride back along the road where Rentoul had fallen. There might be other bullets in waiting

They looked back and saw an old woman staring at them curiously from the door of the lodge

Tom Aldworth's force under Martin's leadership came upon Davy and received warning of the raid. Twenty men, all mounted, Davy told them.

Martin turned to Tom. "If they've got clear, have we horses to follow?"

Tom shook his head They had nothing better than their own legs "Anyone want her?" he asked, with a sardonic smile. The men grinned in answer The line of horsemen was in motion again She heard a shot from the valley She looked pleased. Davy was a good lad."

Martin turned to Tom. "If they've got clear, have we horses to follow?"

Tom shook his head They had nothing better than their own legs "But if they've taken the women we'll soon catch them. They can't keep riding forever. They'd come to the water."

"Boys," said Martin, "every minute counts now. We're going to try to cut off their retreat. It's a poor chance, but it's the best. But I say this, if any of you want to go to protect his own I don't forbid that."

Claire touched his arm "You won't want me?" she asked.

He hesitated for a second. He had learned to rely upon her so much in their four days' intimacy.

"No. You must stay here with the others. I hope you've seen your last fight."

"Mew I go to Helen?" She pointed to the cycle that Davy was holding in readiness. "He says he can take me."

"Yes," he said. He was surprised and grateful that she should have proposed it

Martin went the rest to get his own rifle. Claire came beside him. "I'll have the pistol," she said, "if you don't want it." She ran back to the waiting Davy. "Good-bye," she called, "and good luck. You'll find them safe tonight." She did not look round for a reply

Claire had proved her nerve a score of times since the night when it seemed that the whole earth had failed her

They turned into the road that led to the lodge. A saddled chestnut mare that grazed at the roadside lifted a sudden head. An urgent word from Claire brought the horse to a halt She jumped off. "Davy," she said, "I want that horse."

She did not intend to remount the cycle under any circumstances. She walked up to the horse. A man lay across it. She knew what death was here

She laid a hand on the mare's neck, and their eyes met. "Good, got a mistress now," she said, smoothing the gleaming shoulder

She mounted, and they went forward side by side

Some minutes later, Mary Wittels looked up at a woman who sat astride on a chestnut mare before her door and questioned her eagerly

Half an hour later she saw two horsemen, the foremost loaded with two children, one before and one behind. She saw his face, and recognized an earlier acquaintance with a start of natural excitement. He saw her at the same moment.

"David take us both," he ejaculated, "it's the fighting woman!"

The woman reined round one another beside the waiting horses

'Return of Old King Brady'

Edited by Merle W. Hersey.

CHAPTER 5.

CAPT. BELDEN came toward Jake and Harry "Now, you boys want to get ready for business," he said. "We have been fortunate in getting on board this yacht so we can put our job through."

"I was told I was to do a lot of swimming Is it to be done tonight?" replied Jake.

"Yes. Are you ready? And you, too, Conors?" turning to Harry.

"I'm all ready for anything, sir"

"Well, then, for your instructions I shall have to take you into my confidence. This means an escape from Sing Sing in a short time we shall be opposite the prison where we shall drop anchor over by the west bank We will then take a boat and pull out into the middle of the river You two boys will then undress and take to the water, swimming over to the prison wall

"What about getting shot by the guards?" said Jake

"We are expected at 1 30 and the guards on duty will be deaf and blind to what is going on. The only danger lies in delay."

"How are we to get our man?" asked Harry

"He will be passed out of a small door which communicates with the prison wharf at exactly 1.30. He will conceal himself as best he can until he sees you, when he will drop into the water. You must be right on hand to catch him for he is a large man and cannot swim a stroke." The captain then went back to talk with Captain Rowland.

Harry found opportunity to tell Old King Brady what he had learned. The old detective was not overpleased. "It is a terrible risk if trouble comes, Harry, remember —save yourself. Don't forget it either"

The yacht came to anchor under the shore on the west bank of the Hudson opposite Sing Sing. The position was a most favorable one, for discovery from the prison wall was almost out of the question.

The boat was at once made ready, and Captain Belden and the boys pushed off

Old King Brady called Captain Rowland to him. "Do Whitesides and the woman keep close to the cabin?" he asked

"They have, so far."

"Place chairs under the window here and make it a tempting place for a quiet talk." His foresight was rewarded after the departure of the small boat. Mr. Whitesides and the woman came on deck.

They enjoyed forenoon tea and took the seats which Old King Brady had ordered placed under the window. There was a sigh, and a "Oh, Charley," followed by a noise which sounded amazingly like kissing

"Oh, ho! This is the way the cat is jumping," thought the old detective.

"Don't, Charley We shall be observed," said the woman "Now for a minute's quiet talk . Oh, I feel so nervous about it all"

"Why should you Juliet" answered the boy "Everything is working as smooth as glass."

"You don't fear treachery from the inside, then?"

"Why should I? Think of the money the under keeper has made through my Wall street operations under the direction of Mr Drake Your respected husband displays a wonderful knowledge of the stock market."

"Don't call him my husband, Charley."

"All right That is to be my proud title as soon as this job is done"

"Yes. If you still think you want to marry a woman 15 years older than yourself But there is one condition which I have not stated yet"

"Julie, you alarm me. What is it?"

"Put your arm around me—listen while I whisper it in your ear. I will never marry you while Stan Drake lives."

"What do you mean by that? You can't mean—. When it comes to murder——"

"You crawl?"

"Julie, let us stick to our original plan. We will tie him up in the old house and make our escape When he comes to himself he is bound to be recognized and then taken back to Sing Sing."

"Oh, well," replied the woman lightly. "I was only trying you Charley. I wanted to see how far you would go for my sake."

There was more hugging and kissing, and a pause was patched up between them

"There's a fiend" thought the detective. "I see it all now. This is a strike for Staniland Drake's hidden stealings, with a little matter of murder on the side"

While Old King Brady was listening Harry and Jake were pulling the boat to a point opposite the gray stone walls of Sing-Sing Soon they reached a place where Belden called a halt

Capt. Belden took a long look at the prison walls through his night glass. "I can see no sentinel, don't altogether like this," he said "However, dive in, boys, we'll make the best of it" Young King Brady and Jake dived and swam toward the prison wall. Sentinels appeared on the wall, but no challenge came. The swimmers were unobserved. Harry's eyes were fixed on the wharf, but no movement was noticed until they were very close, when a man's hand was raised above the string piece. Harry pulled in close to Jake They rushed forward and came noiselessly alongside the wharf. Neither of them dared speak. Young King Brady was entirely at a loss what to do when suddenly a man's cropped head came over the string piece and a frightened face looked down upon them.

No word was spoken. The convict began to lower himself, moving slowly and noiselessly until he hung down by his hands. The boys clutched his legs as they trod water and lowered him down

"Lie on your breast," breathed Harry. "Throw your arms over your head. Keep your legs close

Build Up With Bon-Tone — Lay a Foundation For Health

MRS. HILDA RYAN

Mrs. Hilda Ryan of 57 Cartier St., Manchester, N. H., states: "For 15 years I have been troubled with constipation and this condition became chronic. Although I took everything I could only get temporary relief. My stomach wasn't right and I always had a gnawing, empty, sour feeling there. I was always hungry but whether I ate or not I would get sick. I would get gas pains in my chest which would go through to my back and were like knife thrusts. I was always tired and felt weak and exhausted after doing my housework. I had neuritis in my arms and the pains I suffered were terrible. My fingers would go to sleep and the right arm was worse. I became very nervous and couldn't sleep well but was very restless, and often would be awake for hours. I've taken 6 bottles of Bon-Tone and sure do feel fine. My stomach is fine and I can eat anything with no more pains in the chest and back. Neuritis pains are gone and so is the swelling of my fingers. My nerves are better and I sleep the whole night through and fall asleep the minute I close my eyes. Best of all the constipation has been entirely corrected. I tell everyone I know what Bon-Tone has done for me."

Bon-Tone is not an experiment but a definitely proven remedy, and will show conclusive results if instructions are followed carefully. Our representative will explain more about this remedy and give you a free booklet called THE ROAD TO SUCCESS.

The World's Greatest Authority

NO TRUMP BIDS AT CONTRACT

Bids of Two or Three No Trumps

THE minimum requirement for an original two No Trump bid, regardless of the position in which it is made, is SEVENTEEN ABLE TRICKS, inclusive of at least FOUR QUICK TRICKS; and for a three No Trump EIGHT PROBABLE TRICKS Mustre of at least FIVE QUICK TRICKS; with high card protection in all four suits, as I told in the following paragraph:

The INVARIABLE INFERENCE to be drawn from an original two No Trump is that bidder holds all four suits stopped and (at least three doubly stopped; and from a three No Trump that he has all four suits doubly stopped or the equivalent of such holds.

ASSISTING AND TAKE-OUT MINIMUMS

An original two No Trump is an IMPERATIVE DEMAND for an assist, or a take-out by partner, unless complete knowledge either possibility; and three No Trump, a demand not to increase the contract unless I invite a Slam, and not to take out unless a suit trump would make to offer a better chance for me.

SLAM BIDDING

Assisting Hand: To ance a two or three No Trump to four or five, or to take out to a Major bid of five, shows not only the strength required to advance the original bid beyond a game contract, but the desire to have the initial hand try for a slam if holding more than the minimum requirements for the original bid. To take out a two or three No Trump to a Major bid of four, or to a Minor bid of five shows merely a better chance for game with a suit trump and therefore, no desire to have the initial hand try for a slam unless fairly certain that a slam could be made. Similarly to advance a two No Trump to three shows no desire for slam bidding.

Initial Hand: If, following partner's advance of a two No Trump bid to three, or, following partner's take-out of either a two or three No Trump to a Major bid of four or five in partner's Major, such advance beyond a game contract shows not only the required added values, but the desire to have the assisting hand try for a slam if holding any further possibilities.

MERELY MARGY

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.

SO YOU PULLED THE RICHEST GIRL AT PALM BEACH OUT, AND YOU'RE GOING TO MARRY HER. I GUESS THE BEST THING TO DO IS TO HAVE A DOUBLE WEDDING IN JUNE!
THINGS IN THIS LIFE NEVER COME OUT THE WAY WE WANT. I THINK THE CAT IS FRAMING YOU!
I SAVED YOUR LIFE AND YOU DIDN'T MAKE ME MARRY YOU - I'D LIKE TO!
HERE I'M GOING TO MARRY A RICH MAN AND YOU A RICH GIRL. WE BOTH OUGHT TO BE VERY HAPPY
I'M NOT!
GEE MARGY, I DON'T WANT TO GET MARRIED. I'M TOO YOUNG. I WANT TO SEE LIFE BEFORE I SETTLE DOWN

"MY dear, I'm ALL-of-a-bib-and-TUCKER, no less! I mean I'm comPLETEly SUNK at this point because I've been having the most FRANtic argument with that oaf BULL about this matriMONial situation he's making with this POIsonous FEase who inVEIGeld him into RESoning her from DROWNing and then sort of COYly invited him to MARry her—can you COPE with it! HONestly, I couldn't be more upSET, because I was sort of THIng to make the poor goofer realize it was ALL for the BEST but he was TOO paTHETic about it, my dear, because when I PLAYfully suggested we might have a DOUBle WEDDing my dear, he gave a huGUBrious MOAN and said he'd rescued ME from drowning and I didn't make him marry me and he wished I HAD, whereupon I remarked in philoSOPHical ACcents that thing NEVer came out the way you WANted them to, but it's simply a USE trying to conSOLE the big oaf, my dear, because he thinks he's too YOUNG to be married ANYways because he told me with the most PETrifying exPRESsion of comPLETE deSPAIR that he hadn't seen LIFE and he WANTed to before he settled DOWN! HONestly, my dear, I'm conVINCED we've got to DO something about his PROBlem at this point, my dear, and I'm going to get together with ARab this MINute about the situation, my dear—I mean I ACtually AM!"

'THE RETURN OF OLD KING BRADY'; FAMOUS DETECTIVE STORY

together, and don't move them on any account!" The man gave himself up wholly to his conductors, and soon they were on either side of him, with his hands clutching them.

"Now, keep perfectly quiet, and we go!" breathed Young King Brady. It was slow at first, but they soon got used to it, and there was no challenge so far—the dreaded searchlight had not appeared.

"Is it far?" gasped the man at last.

"Not very," replied Harry. "We shall soon be at the boat."

"Heaven grant it," mumbled the man.

No more was said until suddenly the sound of voices was heard on the prison walls.

"The guard has been changed," said the convict then. Now comes the dangerous time. At any moment my escape may be discovered. Are we out of range yet?"

"I don't know. I don't dare look around, but here comes the boat."

The convict murmured something inaudible and Harry could tell he was growing nervous by the way he clutched him. The boat soon reached them and they were hauled over the side. The convict immediately took off his prison clothes and put on others. He presented a very different appearance. As they reached the yacht the shrill croak of the prison whistle was heard and the searchlight flashed from the walls.

"My escape has been discovered," said the convict. "Captain, lose no time! No matter what money has been promised I'll add a thousand to it if you get me safely out."

"Trust me," replied Capt. Belden, and they ran alongside the yacht.

The Prince and Mrs. Drake were on hand to greet them as they came on board.

"Julie!" cried the convict, shedding tears and holding out his arms.

The woman submitted to his embraces and Drake shook hands with the Prince, after which they withdrew to the seats under the captain's stateroom window.

The Staghound was instantly got underway. They steamed rapidly down the river, keeping close to the west bank. Harry, who had dressed on the coast, stood by the rail watching the prison. There was no boat in sight and the searchlight had not been thrown on the water again. "They didn't see us," he thought. "They know he has escaped but that is all."

At half-past 2 the Staghound ran alongside the Aldebaran, where Capt. Rowland stopped. Now the Prince came forward and said to Capt. Belden:

"Cap, I see no use in going aboard the Aldebaran. You go and take charge of her. Take her to the nearest place where she can be repaired and report to me at the old address."

"Very good, sir."

The Prince then summoned Capt. Rowland. "Can I have the use of this yacht for the remainder of the night and all day tomorrow?" he asked.

"I suppose you can," replied the captain, "if it won't endanger the yacht."

"It won't. We are going to make a run to the south shore of Staten Island, where a steamer will be waiting to take us to South Africa."

"I don't know what you think, young man," said the captain, "but it strikes me that this is a job for which a fellow ought to be pretty well paid." The Prince satisfied him on that score.

Capt. Rowland gave orders and in a few minutes they were under way again.

"At last!" muttered Young King Brady, and he tapped upon the stateroom blind, whispering, "Let me in, governor."

"I have got this business pretty straight," Brady told Harry. "This convict is, as I expected, the Wall Street defaulter, Staniland Drake. The woman is his divorced wife. It was she who put this Wall Street Prince up to this whole job. He is no more a real prince than you or I. She made all the arrangements with the under keeper at Sing-Sing, and Drake has supplied the money from his secret fund I doubt if ever there was an escape better planned."

Just here the captain's whistle startled the Bradys.

"Glide out, Harry, if the coast is clear," breathed the old detective Harry, with a hasty glance about him, slipped out upon the deck. He could hear the convict talking to Captain Rowland.

"Did both those young fellows who helped me go back to the other yacht?" he asked.

"No. One of them is here now. I want to see him."

"Conors! Oh, Conors!" the captain called.

"Here, sir!" replied Harry coming from behind the deck-house.

Drake hurried toward him and whispered, "I want to speak to you in private."

"All right, sir. Step up here against this window. It is the captain's stateroom and there is no one in there."

"Listen! I am very far from safe. I have enemies in the cabin. I have just learned this and I want help."

"How do you mean?"

"I want you to come with me and never leave me until I say the word. Do this and I'll place a thousand dollars in your hands within 24 hours."

"I'm ready, sir."

"Wait here a minute. You will never regret it." He hurried off to speak to Captain Rowland.

"Did I do right, governor?" breathed Harry, without turning toward the window.

"You did quite right," the old detective replied.

Harry was leaning carelessly against the window when Drake returned. "I have fixed it up with the Captain. You get a revolver and come into the cabin."

When Harry later descended into the cabin he found Mrs. Drake and the Prince sitting at one end of the table, and the convict at the other.

"What do you want, fellow?" cried the Prince, angrily.

"Your Grace can intrude into the cabin?" asked Mrs. Drake.

"That's all right," said Drake. "Jack, you stand behind my chair and stay there until I tell you to move."

The Prince was clearly frightened.

Suddenly Mrs. Drake sprang up. "Charley, we will leave this place. Stan Drake you will regret this!"

"Oh, don't hurry away, my dear," said the convict, sarcastically.

Mrs. Drake hurried on deck, the Prince trotting after her.

Drake began to talk.

"Jack, that woman is a fiend. They have set the lion free—now they shall feel his claws!"

"How would you like to see something of the world, Jack? There is a steamer waiting for me off Fire Island, a small tramp, bound up the Orinoco river in South America. I shall have plenty of money. Come on and be my companion. I will take you as my son."

"That would suit me fine," replied Harry.

"We must dispose of the Prince and my wife somehow, but we want the stuff they have with them. We must get it."

The Prince brought a grip on board," said Harry. It's in the stateroom now. I'll get it."

Bringing the grip out they proceeded to open it. It was empty! Disgusted, Drake retired to his stateroom and several hours elapsed before he was seen again.

Meanwhile the yacht proceeded to the south shore of Staten Island.

Harry continued his watch, and a little later the yacht turned into one of the many coves found in this section. The place seemed deserted. Harry could see an old mansion on the bluff, reached by a flight of wooden steps which ran up from a ruined old wharf.

The Staghound ran alongside the wharf and tied up Mr. Drake then appeared on deck. "Oh, Jack. So you are here?" he asked. "You have stuck to your post?"

"I have never left it for an instant, sir."

"Good! Have they returned since?"

"No."

"They fear the lion's claws. I have had a good night's rest and have my plans all thought out. We are sure to win. Come here and listen to me."

"Go on, sir. I will do just as you say."

"You saw the house on the hill? Well, that is my old home. Before my arrest, when I saw trouble coming I drew a large sum of money and brought it down and hid it. My wife knew it was here, but did not know the hiding place. When I was arrested I refused to tell it to her. She immediately sued for a divorce."

"And so you kept your secret," said Harry.

"Yes. Now listen closely. In a moment they will make a move and I shall pretend to fall in with them. You go ashore, you will find a little window leading into the cellar. You drop in and hide. Wait for me and be ready to back me up when I turn on them. We will tie them up and leave them to their fate while we make off with the money."

Thus far the convict had been undisturbed in his talk, but now Mrs. Drake came up.

"Stan," she said meekly, "we have got there. What are you going to do?"

Fad of the Hour Explained—Master Steps in Your Own Home

The Correct Position
(Posed by Mr. and Mrs. James Gleason)

THIS course in ball-room dancing does not claim to be exhaustive. It is designed for those who work hard all day and are too tired at night to go to some dancing academy, but would rather remain at home to dance with wife or sister. Those steps which have as yet failed to attain recognition which insures a place on your select social programs will be omitted.

Dancers should at first master what we call "The Correct 'vodtion" illustrated above. Now begin with the waltz, following with the Dese-Temps and Polka. When these are mastered, all the other steps will come easily.

'THE DELUGE' NOVEL

"I came to tell you that Martin is alive, and may be here before night. We have been good friends, Martin and I. More than friends I ought to tell you that. I will bring you the children."

She saw joy leap into Helen's eyes. She did not know whether she realized or regarded the meaning of the words that followed. She rose away.

Helen went down the lane. She expected to meet Claire at any moment returning with the rescued children. She came to the highroad, then went homeward. She supposed it was there that Martin would seek her. There she might find news, or means of succor. She came back by the way she had come; hope, anxiety, and anticipation, contending for supremacy in her heart.

and the body of the dead man. It was not the meeting which Claire had purposed, but Fate deals the cards, though there may be freedom to play them. Claire had noticed the handcuffed wrists as she had helped Helen from the horse. She had turned to the dying man, and found the key she sought in the first pocket she searched. Now their hands met as she released her — rival — enemy? She looked at Helen with interest. She was not of a jealous nature, but the meanest of human passions stirred in her heart as she did so.

Helen looked at the bruised face and uncouth dress of her abrupt deliverer, but she scarcely saw them. She was in a second state of bewilderment, and her mind was on one thing only.

She said: "Can you save them?"

Claire said: "Can you ride?" She looked at the dead man's horse.

Helen hesitated for a second. She could not ride, as she could not swim. Yet for her children's safety there was nothing that she would not have ventured.

But the second's hesitation was Claire's answer.

"You had better wait here," she said. "My horse is faster. I will bring them to you."

Her foot was in the stirrup as she spoke, and her leg went over the saddle.

She looked at Helen again.

Wisconsin Speaks

It Wants Its Home Brew and No State Dry Enforcement

If the legislators of the "Badger State" pay heed to the will of the voters as expressed at the polls Wednesday, Wisconsin will join with New York, Montana, Nevada and Maryland and remove all State prohibition enforcement measures from its statute books. The referendum, however, is not binding on the Legislature and may be ignored

Wisconsin wants its home brew, and voted against any State laws interfering in any way with its 2.75 per cent beer. It wants no State attempt to enforce national prohibition, preferring to take its chances with Federal "enforcement."

The temperance forces campaigned with "National repeal will come through State repeal" as their slogan. The drys asked voters to "Stand by Hoover and uphold prohibition."

Three years ago these same voters in a State-wide referendum decided by 172,000 majority to have the Legislature memorialize Congress to modify or repeal the Volstead act. Wednesday's referendum, confined solely to the State enforcement issue, was carried by the "wets" by a majority slightly in excess of 100,000.

But the difference in these figures is not the sole solace of the drys. The cities were wetter than before while the rural districts were dryer. Five counties which voted to modify the Volstead act shifted and supported the drys against repeal of State enforcement and against home brew

Milwaukee, as expected, went five to one for the wets In the university towns, the college wards went wet.

It is well to observe that the "dry" rural counties have their cider, their home-made wines and their fruit juices, which are expressly exempted from the operations of the Federal prohibition law, while city dwellers have not the same facilities for making or storing cider and home-made wines. This fact has a decided bearing on the "dry" rural vote.

Your Garage Doors

Be Sure They Are Wide Open Before You Start the Engine

How long will it be, and how many more useful lives must be sacrificed, before every motorist knows the danger of starting his motor in a closed garage?

As soon as the engine is started, carbon monoxide is generated. This gas is deadly.

In Malden, only a day or two ago, Walter Briggs, young insurance agent, went home in the middle of the afternoon to fix his car. Having several professional calls to make, he announced that he would be away until a late hour. In the morning, his body was found face downward, parallel with the machine. In one hand he held a screwdriver, in the other a flashlight. He wore a duster coat. The garage door was LOCKED FROM WITHIN.

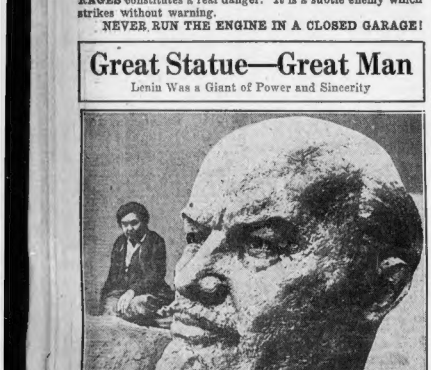
At Meredith, N. H., the son and daughter of Stephen Guardino, marine contractor of Brooklyn, N. Y., went into the garage of their Summer place, closed the door and started the engine. They were found on the floor of the garage, unconscious. The engine was running. In the evening, they were said to be out of danger, but they "will feel the effects of their experience for some days."

The carbon monoxide in the exhaust gases of automobile engines WHEN RUN IN SMALL UNVENTILATED GARAGES constitutes a real danger. It is a subtle enemy which strikes without warning.

NEVER RUN THE ENGINE IN A CLOSED GARAGE!

Great Statue—Great Man

Lenin Was a Giant of Power and Sincerity



STATUE OF LENIN UNVEILED IN MOSCOW

Lenin, dead, embalmed, lies in state, very lifelike, where all Russia may see him.

Hundreds of thousands make pilgrimages to his tomb to look upon his face. Where the REAL Lenin now is, soul, spirit, consciousness, or whatever it may be called, no man knows.

Childish American financiers that bought Russian bonds just before the Czar and his Grand Dukes went overboard, will tell you that Lenin is doubtless in hell, burning for all eternity—at least they hope so.

But millions of Russian peasants, who owe to Lenin the fact that they OWN land on which they were virtually the slaves of the nobility, believe that Lenin is in heaven, occupying a front seat.

At least they hope so.

Meanwhile, it is a pity that Lenin, a powerful man, whose strength of purpose overthrew the Russian Czar—and they needed overthrowing badly—could not have seen this extraordinary statue of himself.

It was unveiled five years after his death. And a sight of it would have delighted the stern Russian.

The Czar killed his brother, by law, and Lenin vowed revenge. He took the Czar's place and killed him, by law, also—each was killed for his political opinions.

The BAER Facts

COMMANDER BYRD'S indomitable personnel has discovered lands on which the foot of man has never grown a bunion.

It is the jaywalkers' paradise, where you can see seabkins swimming around without a price tag on them.

Although the citizens of Antarctica are all penguins, Commander Byrd did not go to the South Pole to get his eggs free.

Antarctica is an unknown lying six degrees south of the chain store system.

Byrd is down there for glory and investigation.

He will get the glory.

But he could have stayed in Washington and got the investigation.

He has already added a new state to America. Which will be a step forward in progress and history provided that two new Senators do not go with it.

While in the Ffigidaire Zone, Commander Byrd will live on penguin eggs for breakfast, dinner or supper.

The difference between these three meals is purely mathematical.

By adding penguin eggs to breakfast you get dinner. By multiplying the answer you arrive at supper.

A penguin lays an egg every time it thinks of it. Each egg hatches out another penguin.

Which is why an adult penguin wears such a puzzled expression.

It is not sure whether it is a penguin or a round robin.

The penguin is the most foolish bird in the world. It lays its eggs ten thousand miles away from the market.

A penguin cannot sing, it cannot fly a yard and it cannot act as master of ceremonies.

It lives without rhyme, reason or amendments. Like many other suburban dwellers, it manages to stay happy by worrying over its neighbors.

After living on penguin eggs for a month, you start to look like the result.

You keep your arms close to your sides and your brain becomes a trap for static.

Like its unfeathered brother, the pedestrian of America, the penguin lives in huddles, walks in bunches and has no voice to run the scale of organized protests.

It is not the national bird of any country, it has no beautiful feathers like the peacock and it cannot sing like the nightingale. It would lose a beauty contest to a frog.

But we admire it for its placidity during all administrations, its steadfast refusal to claim that it won the war and the fact that it has never indorsed a cigarette.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

FOR the protection of animals, $8,301,480.

For the study of bugs, $2,038,200.

For the service of children and mothers, $1,000,000.

That is our Federal Government's estimate of the relative value of Bugs and American Babies. And, with the expiration of the Sheppard-Towner Act on June 30, 1929, even that small subsidy will cease. But we'll still go on paying $2,038,200 for the study of bugs and $8,301,480 for the protection of domestic animals. Babies not raring as bugs or animals will be out of luck.

Millions for bugs, nothing for babies—that is the vote which America will presently chalk up on the annals of history.

AND IT WILL CAST THAT VOTE IN THE FACE OF THE FACT THAT AMERICA HAS THE LARGEST DEATH RATE AMONG MOTHERS AND BABIES OF ANY CIVILIZED COUNTRY IN THE WORLD.

There are more than two million pregnant women in the United States, distributed over 3,026,789 square miles. Every year more than 20,000 women die from causes due to childbirth—one mother for every 150 babies born.

These mothers do not die from rare, unpreventable accidents. They die from ignorance and neglect which a very little trained service might have prevented.

Here is an extract from an article by Hazel Corbin, R. N., in The Survey.

"Some states require only that a doctor shall see six babies born in order to qualify for a license which permits him to care for any obstetrical patient, no matter what the complications.

"Of the twenty thousand nurses who will receive diplomas from hospital training schools this year, according to Dr. May Ayres Burgess, ten thousand are not eligible for jobs as salesgirls in an enterprising department store because they have not the education requirements. Yet they will be absorbed into the nursing profession and a share of them will be doing the country's maternity nursing, for they are meeting the educational requirements of their states.

"There are, caring for our mothers, midwives so ignorant and superstitious as to suppose hemorrhage can be controlled by placing an axe upside down under the patient's bed. Of about 50,000 practicing midwives only a small proportion are well trained and the majority are untrained—yet, in most instances, they are licensed or registered by their states."

Midwives ministering to the "poor whites" and colored people of the South "cure" bowed legs in infants by driving a nail through the shell of a live turtle and dripping the warm blood down the child's back and legs, and "heal" rupture by sprinkling "sunjer powder" on a dishrag stolen in the dark of the moon, said dishrag being then applied over the rupture. Which is an ample commentary on the progressiveness of these states which license such nurses.

Yet federal subsidy for the protection of mothers and children is being defeated on the grounds that it violates states' rights and that the individual service in such matters should be controlled by the individual states rather than the federal government.

The ugly truth is that these fine considerations hav nothing to do with the defeat of the bill. It is being defeated because the voters of gentlemen who breed pigs and fight bugs are of far greater value to our legislators than the faint, tortured voices of women who go down into the shadow of death to bear American citizens.

The Sheppard-Tower Act was an attempt on the part of the Federal Government to teach the adequate care of mothers and babies. It worked on a very limited subsidy but through the devotion of those enrolled in its ranks, gave splendid service. Much of the information was given in the form of prenatal letters which covered every phase of care during prenatal and childbirth periods. It also held classes for midwives, supervised their work, installed visiting nurses and clinics.

With June 30, 1929, this act will expire, defeated on the ground stated. The Newton Bill has been proposed to take its place and carry on the work already started. What are its chances of passing? Slim! At present it looks as if the richest, proudest, most intelligent nation on earth would still continue to spend millions on bugs but not a nickel on babies.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 5—Thoughts while strolling: Wonder if I shall call Eddie Cantor Edward when he grows up. Those stores with artificial onyx fronts. Norman Anthony, the boyish new editor of Life. And Columbus circle is tidied up again—hooray! Canes with clear crystal handles. A Michael Arlen conceit.

Ward Morehouse, a Savannah, Ga., boy, who made good in the city. Bereft colored gentlemen who wear black hearts on their sleeves. Howard Acton's mustache. Chinese cafes grow dimmer as outside signs grow brighter. More than 300 in the Broadway district alone. And what is more mysterious than chop suey.

Ladies in soft plum sport clothes. The new Childs with old English tavern effects instead of sanitized white tile. Lobby sign: "Get away from crowds—go to the theater." And that's a bit of unconscious something or other. And more of those cackling party theater things that "come up to Broadway" to lay an egg.

Delicatessen window displays silk hose. O, M'oo Reuben! Collegiate upstarts who snap fingers at hat check girls. And order artichokes to prove their worldliness. So Police Commissioner Whalen's middle name is Aloysius. The crooks will have a lot of fun toying with that one.

The Broadway pageant at cocktail time. Jazz divas honing up for "boop-a-doop" arias. Freshly barbered stayouts with eyes still heavy with sleep. Venerable and motherly wardrobe mistresses. Night hackmen shining up cabs. Dove silk shirts with boom-boom ties. Sure thing toothpickers in front of the Astor.

Rothstein's old table at Lindy's. The giant movie doormen with a thin high C voice. Around the corner jewelry shops where sirens lead boy friends "just to look." The celebrity who refused to have a sandwich named for him. And that is 18-karat high hatting along the Big Dipper.

More expensive corners gobbled up for soft drink stands. Telephone pay stations jammed. And the evening flood of "kept at office" fibs. Karl Kitchen's derby. Oscar Hammerstein, the—I forget the number. The rim of clay that betokens the Jersey farmer. Two ladies' smile. What power is this?

BRYANT HALL is, to the theatrical profession, one of the best known buildings in town. The decaying pile spreads its architectural gloom across from Bryant Park on 6th ave. We antiquarians describe it as a landmark. It is the preliminary stage of many shows. Early rehearsals, chiefly for the chorus and special dance numbers, are held there. All day and into the night it is noisy with the thump of pianos and clump of feet. In the assembly hall are held those odd Slovak weddings, union banquets and beauty "specialiced" foreign luncheons. Shortly after the Civil War the big society balls and dinners were given there. But the especial room for the smartest dinners is now an Automat.

MY notion of a swell number is a lady who drew up in front of a heigh-ho luncheon place yesterday, sent the footman of her car inside for a menu, studied it carefully through a lorgnette and stifling a yawn with a jeweled hand gave it back. "Return home for luncheon, Montague!" she said to the driver.

THREE gentlemen usually termed "hard headed" proved soft marks for the ostchke-kostchke who-hoo of Broadway this winter. Baby talk and simpering smiles led them from wives who helped them up from obscurity. They were not the usual White Way philanderers, but men known for their fireside manners. But the vamps were those whose artistry in husband-snatching has been widely exploited. That old Broadway flame still scorches.

TRICKS of Broadway make all suspicious. A gentleman tells me of being approached by a woman with every appearance of being a lady. She feared she was fainting. A drug store had refused to give her a stimulating brandy. His apartment was two doors away with plenty of good liquor, and the lady seemed in distress. But nothing doing. The old suspicion—a drink, a knock at the door and "That lady is my wife!" So the lady actually swooned as he was assisting her into a taxi.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

"WHAT could a wife do for me?" asks Beverley Nichols, who boasts that no woman has got him—yet. "If I choose I can get on board a steamer tomorrow, and sail to Hawaii and start a trade in illicit drugs. I can grow a beard and screech anarchy in Hyde Park. I can stay in bed and eat macaroons. . . .

Yes, yes, Beverley. And you can go out in the garden and eat worms. Not just spinach-worms—but any kind of worms you LIKE! You can saw down the cellar steps and go boom. You can even wear white spats on a muddy day—and no woman can stop you! No woman can say, "Now, Hev!"

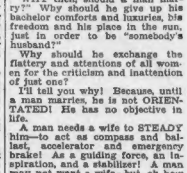
It's a grand, free life! Why SHOULD a man marry?

Not for a home and housekeeper, surely. No home could possibly have all the comforts of a bachelor flat. And "maid-service" is far cheaper than a wife. Besides, a hired maid doesn't leave her hair in the comb, or cry if you forget to kiss her goodbye, mornings.

No man need marry, in order to get a good cook, these days. The best cooking in the world is served in a bachelor flat, by a Japanese butler or a Chinese cook; and they are good he-meals, not reducing-diet snacks. Besides, there are all the chop houses!

Does a man, then, need to marry, just for love and kisses? Don't make me laugh! He may far more likely have to marry in order to ESCAPE from love and kisses. These commodities are so plentiful now, that marriage is a man's only sanctuary from ardent and pursuing women.

The happiest day of the attractive man's life is that in which he can stand behind some brave little woman's back with his fingers crossed and DARE the women to kiss him!



WHY then, should a man marry? Why should he give up his bachelor comforts and his luxuries, his freedom and his place in the sun, just in order to be "somebody's husband?"

Why should he exchange the flattery and attentions of all women for the criticism and inattention of just one?

I'll tell you why! Because, until a man marries, he is not ORIENTATED! He has no objective in life.

A man needs a wife to STEADY him—to act as compass and ballast, accelerator and emergency brake! As a guiding force, an inspiration, and a stabilizer! A man may not want a wife—but, oh how he NEEDS one! Just to keep him from growing a beard and eating macaroons in bed—if for nothing else!
